Wallace Named As Successor To C. A. Banks

Choice as Lieutenant-Governor Announced by Prime Minister

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 (CP) — A Vancouver and Victoria shipbuilding magnate was named Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia late today. New representative in the province of His Majesty King George VI is Clarence Wallace who will succeed Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks October 1.

Mr. Wallace is the president of Burrard Shipyards in Vancouver and Yarrows, Ltd., at Victoria.

Announcement of his appointment came from Prime Minister St Laurent who also announced appointments for Prince Edward Island and Quebec

During the Great War, Mr Wallace, who is father of four sons, served with the Fifth Battalion overseas as a private for four years.

In 1946, he and his brother Hubert assumed control of Canada's largest shipbuilding industry when the Burrard yard bought out the Victoria company for a price said to be $3,000,000

Mr Wallace serves as president and his brother as vice-president and managing-director.

The Lieutenant-Governor-elect also is a director of the Crown Life Insurance Co., and the British-American Oil Co He is vice-president of the Cassier Packing Co. Ltd.

Mr Wallace said he will move into Government House at Victoria when he assumes office Lieutenant-Governor Banks is leaving his post while his term has one year to go.

Other lieutenant-governors named today were T W. L. Prowse of Charlottetown for P.E.I., and Hon Gaspard Fauteux, former Speaker of the Commons, for Quebec.

Strike Negotiations Collapse in Ottawa

New Failure Throws Crisis Into Hands of Parliament

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 (CP).—Railway union negotiations for settlement of Canada's five-day general rail strike collapsed tonight, throwing the transportation crisis in to the hands of an emergency session of Parliament called for Tuesday.

Talks resumed Friday night at the urging of Prime Minister St. Laurent broke down at 7 45 p.m. (E.D.T.) tonight, with neither the railways nor the unions representing 124,000 strikers giving any indication of future settlement moves.

However, union spokesmen said they were willing to re-enter negotiations.

PRINTED STATEMENT

The breakdown came at the day's third conference between the disputants and 15 minutes after they had assembled Railroad executives left the conference room and immediately handed out a mimeographed statement saying a "stalemate" had been reached.

A little later, Frank H Hall, spokesman for 15 international unions, and A. R. Mosher, representing two Canadian unions, told reporters that the negotiations had been terminated.

The state of the negotiations as set out in company and union statements showed that they had made progress towards agreement in the final set of discussions but had foundered largely on these points:

1. The amount of a wage increase to be granted by the railways, and its effective date

2 The companies' refusal to include hotel and water transport workers, numbering about 4,000, in the same terms as a general agreement for the majority of the workers.

WAGE BATTLE

On wages, the last offer of the companies was a four-cents-an-hour increase effective next September 1. The unions held out for seven cents retroactive to last June 1.

There was disagreement also over the time to be set for the inauguration of the 40-hour week demanded by employees, but union spokesmen indicated that that could have been ironed out provided there was agreement on the other points.

It was believed the union leaders would meet Sunday with Labor Minister Gregg.

The railways announced no plans.

Next move appeared up to the Government, but Mr. St. Laurent in a brief statement issued through his office said only that "the Government's recommendations will be made to Parliament."

There have been persistent reports that the Government is planning at the emergency session of Parliament to introduce drastic legislation that would end the strike and perhaps prevent future stoppages of this kind in public utilities.

Tonight, Mr Hall and Mr Mosher said the Prime Minister, at a conference with them Thursday, had not indicated what the Government planned

OBEY LAW

Asked how they would react to strong legislative measures, they said that their unions always obey the law.

"We would deeply resent any move to take away the right of our unions to strike," Mr Hall said, "but in our opinion there is not the slightest chance of this Government going to that length."

"We are in the position where we have to take a chance with legislation rather than make a settlement that our members feel would be unjust and unfair," he added.

BULLETINS

Twelve Die

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26 (INS). — An explosion and fire in a slipper factory in a suburb of Buenos Aires today claimed the lives of 12 women.

Fire Toll Three

DENVER, Aug. 26 (INS).—The death toll rose to three late today from a 20-minute fire which gutted a small second-story hotel in downtown Denver.

Further Strike Tie-Ups Faced by C.P.R. Ships

The possibility loomed yesterday that C.P.R. coastal ships will not resume operations immediately after settlement of the current railway dispute.

Unofficial but reliable sources indicated that the B.C Coast Steamship Service may not resume operations until assurance is received from the Seafarers' International Union that it will not call a strike of deck and engine-room ratings

The sources said that the seafarers' union has not yet told the C.P.R. if and when its threatened strike will begin. But it is generally believed the action is being timed to follow almost immediately after the dispute now in effect is over

Local officers for the seafarers' union were not available yesterday for comment on the matter.

NOT RELEASED

In Vancouver, a union spokesman declined to comment beyond the bare statement that results of strike votes involving C.P.R. and C.N.R. employees have not yet been released.

The present strike, as it affects C.P.R. ships, involves waiters, freight clerks and assistant pursers. The threatened S.I.U. strike involves deck and engine-room ratings.

Pay increases of $30 a month, shorter working days, and amendments to overtime pay regulations are being sought by the S.I.U.

Granting of higher pay requested by the S.I.U. men would add $318,000 to operating costs of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service

This information was recorded at conciliation meetings held at Vancouver from July 4 to July 7.

Meanwhile, a check among men close to the scene of the C.P.R ship tie-up indicates that more than 500 men have been made idle as a direct result of the current strike

Ss Maquinna arrived here early yesterday morning from her West Coast of Vancouver Island run. Members of the ship's company involved in the strike left the ship here and she proceeded to Vancouver where the remaining strikers went ashore. The ship is to join others of the coastal fleet at anchor in English Bay

Ss. Princess Kathleen reached Vancouver yesterday morning to complete another Alaska cruise. She came to this port last night to be tied up at Inner Harbor docks and decommissioned until next Spring

Ss. Princess Norah will reach Vancouver tomorrow from her Alaska run, and will then be anchored in English Bay She will be the last ship of the fleet to join her already strike-bound sisters.

Man Injured In Club Blaze

MONTREAL, Aug. 27 (Sunday) (CP) —One man has been taken to hospital with severe arm and face burns suffered in a three-alarm blaze which has gutted the Carrousel Night Club in the heart of the city

The fire of unknown origin broke out at 1 50 a.m. E.D.T. and is still blazing Police say that the club was crowded with patrons but as far as they know all reached safety. The man who was burned made his way out the back fire escape

Reds Drive Down Coast In Full-Scale Offensive

TOKIO, Aug 27 (Sunday) (AP). The Communist drive down the east coast of Korea is a full scale offensive, designed to recapture Pohang, a spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said today.

The Reds intend to cut westward toward Taegu if they are able to regain Pohang, the spokesman added.

The new offensive dispelled any supposition the Reds were incapable of mounting a major attack The two Red divisions making the east coast drive have received reinforcements in men and equipment, the spokesman said

The enemy holds Kigye, nine miles northwest of Pohang, but the situation in that area was described as "confused"

Intelligence sources said the Communists appeared to have gained about two and one-half miles, and probably are about six miles north and northwest of Pohang—the U.S. secondary supply port 65 miles north of Pusan.

The Communist push on the northeast, in the Pohang-Kigye sector overran the town of Kigye, drove South Korean Capital Division troops eight miles south of positions they had held on August 24, and prompted the United States Eighth Army commander to fly to the sector for a look at the situation.

The Capital Division, after yielding Kigye, nine miles northwest of Pohang, withdrew two miles to a road junction to the southeast.

PUSHED BACK

On the Capital Division's right flank, the South Korean Third Division, which had advanced past coastal Hunghae, was pushed back Saturday night two miles to a position one-half mile south of the town. Hunghae is eight miles north of Pohang

These reverses were suffered by the defenders despite a supporting bombardment of 1,100 rounds of heavy shells poured into Communist positions over a 24-hour period, starting Friday morning, by American warships This warship support may be continuing on an increased scale today

The new Red coastal punches were dealt on a front some 35 to 45 miles east-northeast of Taegu The North Koreans had shifted their main forces eastward after 50,000 Reds had fallen in seven days of fierce fighting to capture Taegu.

Report Island Now Sub Base

HONGKONG, Aug 27 (Sunday) (AP). — The Independent Chinese newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po said today — without confirmation that Russia has converted the Hainan Island port of Yulin into a submarine base. Hainan is off the south coast of Communist China

The newspaper said its report was based on information from "reliable sources" on Hainan. They were quoted as saying surfacing of Russian submarines in Yulin Harbor was a common sight They said the base is capable of all kinds of repairs on undersea craft.

Yulin was built up as a naval and air base by the Japanese in their drive into Southeast Asia in the World War.

Welsh Crash Kills Five, 35 Injured

LONDON, Aug. 27 (Sunday) (INS) —Five persons were reported killed and 35 others injured today when a London-bound passenger train crashed into another train near a railway station in Wales.

A British Railways spokesman said that all 35 of the injured had been rushed to hospital but it was not known how many were in critical condition.

The passenger train was carrying many vacationers from Ireland when it met tragedy 30 minutes after leaving the Penmaenmawr station between Conway and Bangor in Wales

A spokesman at the Bangor hospital where many of the victims of the accident were taken warned a British Press Association reporter to stand by for a "large number of casualties."

First reports said that two passenger cars were smashed and two others overturned

Molotov May Attend Next U.N. Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 26 (INS) Sources close to the Soviet delegation indicated today that Deputy Premier Viacheslav Molotov, second to Stalin in the Kremlin heirarchy, may lead the Russian team to the U.N. General Assembly.

Although there is no way of weighing fully the significance of this information of Soviet origin, it was recalled that Molotov reportedly has been master-minding the Chinese Communists in their sweep through China proper and is said to be in Peiping urging Mao Tse-Tung to hurl his divisions into Korea and against Formosa

PROPAGANDA SIGN

The appearance of Molotov at Flushing Meadows, N.Y., next September 19 could be taken as a sign that the Soviet delegation is bent on staging the greatest propaganda offensive yet unfolded against the non-Cominform world

It is self-evident that the main purpose would be to condemn the United States, Britain and France in the eyes of the Asiatic peoples as war-like nations fighting for imperialist motives on the pretext of safeguarding U.N. and global peace.

According to the spokesman, the question of Molotov proceeding to New York for the assembly hinges on development over the next week on the Korean situation, particularly in respect to those concerning Communist China.

A well-informed Asiatic source said that "a battle royal" has been raging around Communist Chief Mao in Peiping He said that a faction probably headed by Molotov has been pressing Mao to disregard all considerations and give the order to the Chinese Communist forces to cross the Manchurian border into Korea

CAUSE OUTCRY

The same faction, according to the source, has been counselling him to overlook the inclement weather and the United States Seventh Fleet in the Straits of Formosa and send out an invasion force of thousands

The Molotov faction was said by the Asiatic source to be stressing that the slaughter of a large-scale Communist invasion force in junks and motorboats would provide all Asia with cause for an outcry of horror and indignation against the United States and others participating in smashing the attack

Molotov last came to New York and the assembly in 1946 when he also attended the final meetings of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Raid Toll Set at 167

Philippine Towns Burned, Terrorized By 5,000 Communist-Led Guerrillas

MANILA, Aug 26 (AP).—Five thousand Communist-led guerrillas ravaged and set fire to 11 towns in Central Luzon last night and today in terror raids that left 167 persons known dead.

The heavily armed and Red-directed marauders swooped down from the hills in what high officials called a "concerted" attack against the Philippine Government.

The raiding "Hukbalahaps," who organised to help fight the Japanese during the World War but refused to disband when peace came, raided within 25 miles of Manila before they retreated toward the canebreaks and mountains late Saturday.

A heavy police guard was thrown around this capital city in the uneasy quiet of Saturday night.

The toll included 100 persons killed at Tarlac, 70 miles north of Manila. Government reports said at least 20 dead "Huks" were left on the battle scenes where the Philippine Army used light tanks to rout the rebels.

In some attacks, according to witnesses, the guerrillas shouted opposition to Philippine Government plans to send a combat team to aid the United Nations in Korea.

A National Defence Headquarters spokesman said the Filipino soldiers, a group of about 4,000 still would go to Korea as soon as transportation was available.

Half of Crew Survive Wreck

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug 26 (AP) — A Coast Guard cutter reported today two survivors were rescued from the storm-battered fishing boat Vermay, and that two others apparently were lost.

The cutter Citrus radioed headquarters that the survivors were Norman Ranquist of Kirkland, Wash., and Harley Miller of Everett, Wash.

The report said the fishing boat Maxine picked up the body of the Vermay's master, identified only as "Swanson," off Point Cornwallis, five miles northwest of Cape Muzon. Survivors were quoted as saying a fourth crew member, known to them only as "Arnold," was swept overboard from the Vermay, yesterday

The packer was reported lost in stormy seas off Dall Island, 60 miles southwest of here. The rescue was off Cape Muzon, near the southern end of the islands off the Southeastern Alaska coast.

Waves Sweep Over Hospital Ship

AP Wirephoto

The red cross painted on the side of the hospital ship Benevolence shows through the water as waves sweep over the side of the stricken ship. The vessel rolled over and sank with hundreds aboard when it was rammed by the freighter Mary Luckenbach in a dense fog off the Golden Gate Friday. A Coast Guard boat is shown patrolling area in search of victims possibly not yet found.

Grim Game Described

Known Dead Number 18 On Rammed Mercy Ship

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 26 (AP) — Seventeen men and a pretty United States Navy nurse were known dead today—victims of the collision that sank the American hospital ship Benevolence

Some others may have been lost The known survivors numbered 487

The big mercy ship was rammed and slashed by a freighter in a blinding fog late yesterday, just outside San Francisco's Golden Gate. She overturned within 15 minutes and settled in 75 feet of water.

HEARD WHISTLE

The freighter was the Mary Luckenbach, outbound for the East Coast. She was not badly damaged and none of her crew was injured The Benevolence was coming in from a shake-down cruise for Korean action.

Capt. Barton E. Bacon, 40, skipper of the hospital ship, said the pilot shouted "I hear a whistle!"

The order was flashed: "Full stop Full right rudder"

"Then the ship appeared," Capt Bacon related. "While we were making the turn it hit us"

The pilot was one of the dead brought ashore that night.

GRIM GAME

Those who did not die saved themselves or were saved, in a multitude of manners. One boy told of playing a grim game of "Ring around the rosy" in the cold water with the fog dripping around them, waiting for rescue.

"We formed a circle with our hands to stay afloat," he said. "The ring got bigger and bigger. When one guy got a cramp or started to go down, we hauled him over our arms and held him till he was better"

The Benevolence and the Mary Luckenbach each carried radar equipment. One of the survivors of the Benevolence radar room said "I don't know what happened We had five ships on that radar screen and not one was near us, and all of a sudden we get rammed"

The Navy said as many as 526 persons could have been aboard.

The 522-foot Benevolence lay on her side today, with the big red crosses on her white hull showing through the waves washing over her.

Investigations of the crash were opened today by both Navy and Coast Guard officials.

Reds in Asia Said Riding Nationalism Bandwagon

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP).—Russia is riding the bandwagon of a force in Asia that is more immediately powerful than Communism.

That force is nationalism.

Students of Far Eastern affairs say that in its breakneck scramble to halt the spread of Soviet Communism, the West is in danger of losing sight of this important fact.

For the last 100 years or more, millions of yellow and brown people in Asia have known nothing but white masters.

BREAKING SHACKLES

They now are engaged in a titanic struggle to break the shackles of European domination.

Events which will fill many pages of future history books have taken place in Asia in recent years. Tick them off:

1. India, a sub-continent of 360,000,000 poorly-fed, inadequately-housed people, was given its independence from Britain.

2. China, whose 450,000,000 people form the biggest population chunk of Asia, threw off a monarchy, adopted a republic and now has come under Communist rule.

3. The Philippines obtained independence from the United States.

4. Indonesia, one of the richest areas on earth, became a sovereign state bound by tenuous ties to her former master, The Netherlands.

5. Japan, once the aggressive leader and would-be boss of all these peoples, was reduced through war to the status of a minor power.

REVOLUTIONS

Countries which have failed to shrug off colonialism, like French Indo-China and British Malaya, have plunged into bloody internal revolutions.

This, then, is the pattern. A handful of big Asiatic countries slowly and cautiously getting to their feet after years under white domination. Another handful desperately trying to achieve national status.

Into this situation, the Soviet Union has cunningly and effectively intruded. It has announced that it is on the side of Asiatic nationalism.

Fighting Communism, all observers agree, is thorny enough.

Added to this, now, is a struggle to win the friendship of the little men and women of Asia.

People who ought to know say that unless this is done, the United Nations, while it may win the battle in Korea, might, in the process, lose the war in Asia.

Think Children May Have Set Church Ablaze

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 26 (INS).—Fire, believed to be one of incendiary origin, virtually destroyed a Mormon Church in southeast Salt Lake City late today.

Howard McKean, building supervisor for the Mormon Churches, officially estimated the damage at more than $100,000.

However, total loss, including furnishings, was placed at close to half a million dollars by Don Whipperman, an elder of the church.

The fire started at about 6 p.m. in a storage shed adjoining the church. The blaze spread to the attic of the church. The cedar-shingled roof caught fire and collapsed. The structure was of brick and rock.

Firemen brought the flames under control shortly after 7 p.m.

Neighbors reported seeing several children, about ten to 12 years of age, running away from the shed shortly before smoke began rolling out.

One man said he heard a little girl, about ten years old, say that she had lit with a match some newspapers stored in the shed.

A complete investigation is expected later.

Baby, Pre-School Clinic Planned at Langford

LANGFORD, Aug. 26—A well baby and pre-school clinic will be held Monday in the lower room of the Langford School at 2 p.m.

START ON STATION

DUNCAN—Start has been made on a building project for the Canadian Army at the F.M. Station situated on Mount Prevost. The plant consists of power house, receiving and transmitting station, and a housing project for station staff. Cost is stated to be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Nerve-Wracking Patrol Described by Reporter

This story of the importance of patrol action in the Korean War was written by International News Service War Correspondent Frank Emery who has returned to Tokio for a rest after being wounded while accompanying a patrol across the Naktong River into enemy-held territory.

By FRANK EMERY

TOKIO, Aug. 26 (INS).—You realise just how far away we are from a push button war when you see American soldiers out on patrol behind the enemy lines.

These men quietly pick their way through what sheltered places they can find, probing like Indian fighters to find out what the enemy is doing. They are Americans who have not yet received the benefits of such things as atomic bombs, Superforts or even such old fashioned things as artillery pieces.

Out there on the wrong side of the line they are on their own with a rifle, a pistol and a pair of alert ears.

The importance of patrol action cannot be overestimated.

These men, who "go over" in broad daylight or under cover of darkness, find things air spotters cannot see at all, and bring back information that saves untold numbers of American lives.

There are lots of examples of how these patrols are able to provide information which artillerymen and mortarmen use to keep the enemy off balance.

HEARD PEOPLE TALKING

One patrol heard people talking in a house in which there was not supposed to have been any people. On the basis of information the patrol brought back, artillerymen dropped a shell into the house. They learned later it wiped out a battalion command post.

At Yongdong, a patrol located 150 North Koreans concentrated very close to American lines, lying low just before evening awaiting a dusk jumpoff—a favorite Communist tactic.

Warned by the patrol, an artillery outfit put one shell into the midst of the concentration. It was a big shell, a 155. The artillery battery commander said later he learned only eight of the 150 North Koreans were able to walk away.

Daylight patrols usually go out in strength, ready to fight if necessary. And usually they expect it will be necessary. These move with strength anything from platoon to battalion size, and take heavier firepower with them than night patrolers.

Night patrols are nerve wracking affairs. I found that out when I went on one across the Naktong from Waegwan. After we had crossed the river a man approached me and said the patrol leader had instructed him to tell me we should stand with our backs toward each other to protect our flank.

SEEMED FISHY

Something seemed fishy to me about that kind of story. I could not see the man's face very well and was scared, so I began asking questions about the patrol leader's name; his name, and finally my name.

The man was scared, too, as I questioned him, because I was holding myself ready to clip him and he knew it.

Finally he satisfied me he was Cpl. Francis Forster of Black Mountain, N.C., and not somebody named Kim from Pyongyang, which was what I was afraid of.

Not All the World

Dashing Greek Kidnaps Girl, Launches Army-Sized Dispute

HERAKLION, Crete, Aug. 26 (INS).—All the world definitely does not love a lover.

And the legendary Greek Island of Crete proved as much tonight when its public security committee indignantly denounced "Romeo" Kosta Kefalogianni as a "bandit."

Kosta and his somewhat reluctant "Juliet," raven-haired Tassoula Petrakogiogi, are hiding out somewhere in the heavily-wooded mountains near Anogia.

HIGH ON MOUNTAIN

The 35-year-old Kosta, balked by political differences separating the two families, yesterday carried off the beautiful girl from her Anogia home to a cave high on Mount Pallorits.

From that recess, the dashing Kosta issued a series of flaming ultimatums, including a threat to kill the 19-year-old beauty and then commit suicide unless her parents assent to a marriage.

But, as with the star-crossed lovers of Shakespeare's tragedy, the impetuous kidnapping served only to make matters worse.

Tassoula's outraged father, a deputy of the Liberal Party, was not easily cowed by Kosta's refusal to surrender his daughter.

Shaking a figurative fist at the Populist Party, to which Kosta's brother belongs, he organised 2,000 supporters to help find his daughter.

PASSES CLOSED

The army closed all mountain passes leading from Anogia to prevent the lovers from reaching the sea.

And Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, commander-in-chief of Greece's army, sent a battalion of troops to join the gendarmerie in the area to prevent a war between the families and their political adherents.

Tassoula's attitude in all this has become the subject of considerable dispute.

Kosta told an unsuccessful group of mediators that the beautiful girl loves him deeply.

Another faction is convinced Tassoula is too afraid of her tempestuous abductor to come home.

German Reds Favor Plan To Fight West

BERLIN, Aug. 26 (AP)—German Communists acclaimed tonight a master plan for subversive action against the Allies in West Germany.

The "fighting program," as disclosed to a Red-organized national congress in East Berlin, calls for:

1—Incitement of strikes, especially in ports and heavy industries, under the guise of resisting "Anglo-American war reparations."

2—Sharp pressure against recruits for the planned expansion of West German police forces.

3—Direct attempts to convert idle former army officers to the Communist cause.

4—Mass demonstrations in West German cities in defiance of legal regulations.

5—Fresh efforts to persuade market-hungry West German industrialists to collaborate with the Soviet zone.

Max Reimann, West German Communist leader, told the congress that building workers in two important centres, Frankfurt and Braunschweig, will strike for higher wages Monday.

"The widest strata of the West German population are delighted at the defeat of the American aggression troops in Korea," he added.

Ten-Year-Old Girl Wins Alberni's Cattle Judging

ALBERNI, Aug. 26.—A little ten-year-old red-headed girl from Courtenay stopped the show yesterday in the junior cattle judging as the Alberni Fall Fair ended under a beautiful rainbow instead of threatening rain.

Scoring 90 points in the junior cow judging was Miss E. Elliott from Courtenay, who topped all comers even in the farm showmanship class, in which she showed like a veteran.

Officials of the fair say that all attendance records were broken for the five years that the Alberni Fair has been presented.

FARMERS' DAY

As Saturday was farmers' day at the fair, most of the day was taken up by livestock judging.

In the Ayrshire class, winners were Mrs. J. Thomson of McCoy Lake Farm, Tryon Brothers of Parksville and James Baker of Wellington.

McKinnon Brothers of Alberni were the big prize winners in the Holstein class.

Livestock Judge Dr. W. Gunn said at the close of the show that "it was remarkable how the stock had improved since the origin of the fair." He complimented officials on the fine treatment which had been accorded outside competitors and visitors to the fair.

One of the feature attractions of the day was a gymkhana put on by the Alberni Valley Riding Club after supper.

HORSE SHOW

Officials said that transportation difficulties made it impossible to get Qualicum entries in the horse class competitions, but local aggregations staged a show instead.

Judges for the various events during the fair were: Flowers, Dr. C. T. Hilton and G. C. Furniss; domestic science, Mrs. T. Christie and Mrs. P. Kendall; women's department, Mrs. T. Martindale; art, A. Church and M. Macvicar; hobbies, R. Ball, model airplanes, Lee Katilla.

At 10 p.m., there was a brilliant display of fireworks and the fair wound up at 12 midnight with the annual ticket drawing which featured a new car as the prize.

The car was won by Edward Price, 508 Second Avenue South, Port Alberni.

New Demand For U.N. Seat Voiced by Reds

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 26 (AP).—Chinese Communists followed up their charges of U.S. aggression in Formosa today with new demands that a Red delegation be seated in the U.N. General Assembly.

Chou En-Lai, Peiping's Foreign Minister, announced the names of five members of a Communist delegation he wants U.N. officials to admit to the assembly opening in New York September 19. He called on U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie to make the necessary arrangements to get them into the United States for the meeting.

In a cable to Lie, Chou repeated charges that Chinese Nationalist delegates "have absolutely no right to represent China . . . and must therefore be driven out from all meetings and organs of the United Nations."

HEADS DELEGATES

Heading the delegation is Chang Wen-Tien, who was Chou's choice last year to sit in the Security Council. Every U.N. body has refused to throw out the Nationalists and Chang made no attempt to come here.

The delegation's arrival—if it gets here—would set the assembly boiling on the Chinese representation issue from the very start.

U.N. officials expect an early challenge to the right of the Chinese Nationalists to sit in the assembly. Such a challenge could come from Russia, Yugoslavia, India—or even Norway or Britain, all of whom have recognized the Communist Mao Tse-Tung Government.

A British spokesman said, however, that it is unlikely Britain would propose ousting the Nationalists now. The delegation helped vote down Security Council President Jakob A. Malik's attempt to put the question on the Security Council agenda this month.

HEAR WITH RADIOEAR

VERY SMALL AND THIN: The Radioear "Starlet" is shorter in length and only slightly wider than the average business card.

EXTREMELY LIGHT WEIGHT: Only weighs 2.63 ounces (without self-contained batteries).

POWERFUL: Yet, with all its small size and light weight, the new Radioear "Starlet" is so powerful that many who were previously classified as "hard to fit" find its output is ample for them.

"HIDDEN HEARING" TYPE MAGNETIC RECEIVER: The small magnetic air conduction receiver is of the type particularly adaptable for use with so-called "hidden hearing" or "invisible" type of ear inserts. Operates well with a BONE RECEIVER.

WOULD Amm-i-dent HAVE HELPED?

HERE'S NEW HOPE AGAINST TOOTH DECAY

Millions have changed to Ammoniated toothpaste since clinical tests started

4 out of 5 Users in Three-Year Test Shown Definitely to Have Fewer New Cavities Yearly

If you are using a cosmetic type of toothpaste—shouldn't you try an ammoniated dentifrice? . . . give yourself the chance of having fewer new cavities . . . as well as brighter teeth . . . use Amm-i-dent.

Will Amm-i-dent save your children pain and grief?

Surely you want to do everything in your power to help your children have healthier teeth.

You can help. Scientific clinical tests show really promising results from the use of Amm-i-dent Toothpaste. The proof is piling-up month after month, that Amm-i-dent may be reducing the number of new tooth cavities with its action in the mouth.

Children love the clean, pleasant flavor of Amm-i-dent—so will you! And you, too, can look forward to fewer new cavities when you use Amm-i-dent regularly.

Here is Amm-i-dent Proof!

1. *Sworn dental records of cavity reduction!

In rigid, scientific 3-year test with hundreds of men, women and children, sworn dental records show definite reduction in number of new cavities.

2. Dental journals publish proof!

Only the Amm-i-dent formula can show proof, published in leading dental journals, that people using Amm-i-dent in the test had a reduction in the number of new cavities.

3. 1949 users report beneficial results!

Letters on file from 1949 Amm-i-dent users, after test dental check-up, add to the record of proof that Amm-i-dent continues to be responsible for reducing the number of new cavities.

*NOTARY PUBLIC'S STATEMENT: "I have seen the actual dentist's records and the dentist's sworn statement of the cavity reduction in each case."

Notary Public, State of New York Evelyn A. R[illegible]

Here it is — Amm-i-dent Toothpaste, the first genuine ammoniated toothpaste, made from the famous Amm-i-dent Tooth Powder formula. Now clinical tests show that it is probable that you and your children can help prevent tooth cavities every time you brush your teeth — with this delightful toothpaste.

How Amm-i-dent Works

Carbamide and Dibasic Ammonium Phosphate are the two active ingredients in the Amm-i-dent formula used in the clinical tests. They have been found to change those mouth conditions which are present in cases of tooth decay.

Amm-i-dent has more experience with anti-decay research than any other toothpaste manufacturer. Remember — this fine toothpaste is backed by the makers of Amm-i-dent Tooth Powder, one of the world's largest-selling tooth powders. That's why Amm-i-dent was able to bring you the first ammoniated tooth powder, and now, the first genuine ammoniated toothpaste from that formula.

You Should Try It

Maybe you're among those who want this protection for your family, but have been waiting for an ammoniated toothpaste. Maybe you're now using ammoniated tooth powder, but prefer paste. Either way, there's no reason to delay. Get genuine Amm-i-dent ammoniated toothpaste, today, for the whole family!

Amm-i-dent statements are based on 3 year clinical tests. Amm-i-dent research is continuing on an even broader basis.

Many Amm-i-dent Benefits

You'll be delighted with the sparkling smile Amm-i-dent gives you. It cuts through film and food deposits — leaves your teeth bright and clean! Your mouth will feel cleaner — look cleaner.

Kiss with confidence, when you've brushed your teeth with Amm-i-dent. Amm-i-dent's powerful cleansing action strikes at important causes of bad breath — keeps you "nice-to-be-near".

People who have tried it say, "My mouth never felt so clean!" It's a grand "wake-up" toothpaste; refreshing, invigorating, delightful to taste — and you can rinse after using without destroying the ammoniated effect.

Amm-i-dent and your dentist

Although Amm-i-dent's ammoniated formula gives promise of reducing tooth decay, no dentifrice can take the place of the professional help of your dentist.

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental health. Make sure that you have these essential check-ups.

—Colonist Photo

More than 60,000 pounds of meat and other provisions were brought to city early yesterday morning from Mainland in holds of trawler B.C. Producer, independently owned by former Victorian, Fred Kohse. Part of meat shipment is pictured here, being lifted from fishing vessel to truck in which supplies were taken to city meat distributing firm. A. C. Lindsay, head firm, is seen at left.

Meat Supply Renewed

Thirty Tons of Food Brought Here By Former Resident in Trawler

A young man who has made some significant strides in the fishing industry was in Victoria—formerly his home town—yesterday as a direct result of the railway strike.

Fred Kohse, who now lives in Vancouver, was here with his 60-foot modern trawler B.C. Producer, among the finest vessels of its kind in British Columbia coastal waters. But instead of bringing fish to this port, he carried more than 60,000 pounds of meat, shortening and butter for a local packing establishment. Beef, veal, lamb and pork were included in the shipment, brought here from Vancouver and New Westminster. The cargo was kept frozen with 400 pounds of dry ice.

Last Thursday night about 20,000 pounds of meat was flown to Patricia Bay by Queen Charlotte Airlines. "It was a pretty costly way of bringing in meat," remarked an official of the packing firm.

TOOK BOAT TO CHILI

It was skipper Fred Kohse who gained considerable attention in 1946 when he and a crew of five other Vancouver men took the trawler Arauco II from the Mainland port to a fishing port in Chile, a voyage of about 8,000 miles. The crew members flew back to Vancouver—despite an offer from a large fishing concern in Chile to remain for an indefinite time and work for $400 per month. Skipper Kohse, however, remained at the Chilean port for a year. He served as skipper of the fish boat delivered there.

Regarding weather conditions in Chile, Mr. Kohse said in the southern part of the country "it rains 13 months a year," while in the northern parts "they sometimes go six or seven years without ever seeing rain."

He said Chile was developing well, with special progress being noticeable in the fishing industry. He said there were many opportunities for technical men in the country, adding that Canadians were "always welcome."

Court Tells Man Who Gouged Cars To Pay for Damage; Grants Remand

The peculiar actions of a city man early Saturday morning brought him into city police court yesterday to face five charges of damage to property.

Charged was George Donald McRae.

The peculiar actions:

McRae was alleged to have walked past five parked cars on Fisgard Street and gouged the paint from each with a pair of keys he carried.

He pleaded guilty to all five charges and was remanded for one week. He was also ordered by Magistrate A. I. Thomas to make restitution, estimated to be less than $20 in each case.

McRae told court he would pay for the damage caused.

Constable William Knowles told the court that, while on duty in Chinatown early Saturday morning, he looked across Fisgard Street and heard a scraping noise.

He walked over and asked the accused what he was doing.

He said accused mumbled something that he could not understand.

On investigation, Const. Knowles found that "lines had been grooved in the cars" and he produced for the court a pair of keys that he had taken from the accused.

"I was under the influence of liquor and didn't know what I was doing," said McRae.

SIX-MONTH TERM

Magistrate A. I. Thomas sentenced David Montana, 21, to six months at hard labor in Oakalla prison farm on each of four charges of obtaining money and goods by false pretences by means of worthless cheques.

The sentences will run concurrently.

Montana was asked by the magistrate if he had anything to say before sentence was passed.

"There isn't much I can say," Montana told the court.

Magistrate Thomas told the accused:

"There is no excuse in the world why you should commit these offences—they are miserable offences."

FINED $25

Breaking a window in a Chinatown cafe cost a city man a $25 fine and an order to make restitution for the $10.81 damages he caused.

Charged with damage to property was Lawrence Arthur Dovey.

He was alleged to have smashed a window in the Don Mee Cafe, 538 Fisgard Street, early Saturday morning.

He told the court that he was struck by one of the employees of the cafe while he was in the middle of an argument.

"You took a lot into your own hands," said Magistrate Thomas.

"It was a despicable sort of conduct on your part."

The magistrate told Dovey that he would add an additional ten days in jail to the sentence if the damage was not repaired.

* * *

DRIVING CHARGE

Glenn B. Lamont was fined $25 on a charge of careless driving arising from an accident at Cook and Johnson Streets August 5.

Magistrate Thomas ordered Lamont's driver's licence suspended for a period of three months but rescinded the order when he was told that Lamont was leaving for Alberta today and would not be returning to the province.

He said, however, before withdrawing the suspension, that "you young chaps have to be taught something and the only way to do it is to take you off the road."

* * *

FIRE WATCH OFFENCE

A Duncan logging operator was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate Thomas for an infraction of fire watch regulations on his logging operations.

Charged with the offence was Allan Heyd.

The charge was laid by Forest Ranger J. P. Greenhouse of the British Columbia Forest Service at Langford.

Specifically, the charge read that Heyd "failed to maintain a watchman at his logging operation on August 7 for two hours after closing down operations for the day."

It arose from a fire on that date that burned a donkey engine and timber at the operation.

Increased Prices for Staples Face City Buyers This Week

Price increases on staple foods face Victoria shoppers this week.

Sugar probably will rise one cent a pound at the retail level as a result of an increase of 70 cents for 100 pounds in the wholesale price.

The sugar price-hike followed Friday's announcement by a major bakery that bread would go up one cent a loaf Monday.

In Toronto yesterday, two meat-packing companies announced two to three-cents-a-pound increases in the price of beef. It was not known whether the price jump would apply to Victoria.

The increases, spokesmen said, were not attributable to the railway strike.

GARDEN PROWLED

Even vegetables aren't safe from prowlers these days.

Henry Schact, 240 Ontario Street, asked police to keep an eye on his garden and vegetables.

He said that they were being "menaced" by youths.

ARTISTS INVITED

Victoria artists have been invited to submit pictures to a non-jury show to be held at the Arts Centre Gallery, 823 Broughton Street, from September 11 to 23.

Announcement was made by Mrs. Ina D. Ubthoff, chairman of the centre's exhibition committee.

Pictures, which may be in oils, water colors, black and white or other media, must be at the gallery by September 9. Each picture should be labeled with the artist's name and address and the price.

GOLDFISH THIEF

They're even stealing goldfish now!

Marga Colter, suite 11, New England Hotel, reported to police that someone had entered her room while she was out and walked off with her pet goldfish.

A thorough search of the premises failed to disclose her finny friend's whereabouts.

FIRE REPORTED

Firemen were called to Jubb's Fish and Chips store, 1127 Haultain, yesterday afternoon to extinguish a grease fire.

They reported a fair amount of smoke but no damage.

ARCHERY CONTEST

An archery tournament, with Vancouver Island championship honors at stake, will be held today at Cobble Hill, according to D. G. Odium, president of Victoria's archery organization.

At least ten Victoria entries in the total of more than 30 contestants. Vancouver archers will not be present, because of the holding of a B.C championship event there today.

The Cobble Hill contests, to start at 10 a.m., will include target, flight and clout shoots.

Today's Question

How much does the human brain weigh?

Ample Supply of Socks, Suits, Coats, Cash Taken

Best-dressed men of the week probably are the prowlers who broke into the Victoria Tailors Ltd., 754 Yates Street, early Saturday morning and stole $300 worth of clothing and cash.

The loot included two grey suits, one brown suit, three topcoats, two pairs of shoes, two dozen pairs of diamond socks and $10 in silver.

Insurance covers the theft.

Entry to the store was gained by taking the putty out of a window and removing a pane of glass.

POLICE ALERTED

R.C.M.P. and city police have been alerted to be on the lookout for a series of blank payroll cheques which were stolen on the Mainland recently.

The cheques—series 2,403 to 2,600—were taken from the offices of the Lulu Island Peat Co. Ltd.

One of the forged cheques was spotted in Victoria on August 22.

Others have turned up in Vancouver.

Merchants here are asked to look for cheques of this company bearing the serial numbers of those stolen.

ESCAPES INJURY

Damage estimated at $200 occurred early Saturday morning when a car crashed into an embankment at East Saanich Road and Martindale Hill.

Driver was Albert Szczpansky, Seamen's Institute, Superior Street.

Saanich police reported that the driver was uninjured.

They said Szczpansky's car hit a rock, blew a tire and traveled 300 feet before coming to rest on the bank.

* * *

CARS COLLIDE

Aggregate damage of $325 was caused Friday night when two cars collided at the Johnson Street extension and Alston Street.

No one was hurt.

Police said that a car, driven east on Johnson Street by Ralph Edward Anderson, Haliburton Road, was turning left onto Alston Street when it and another, driven by Frederick Little, 1453 Taunton Street, collided.

RESIDENT ANNOYED

Little children with grease guns are annoying a city man.

William Collier, 1430 Bay Street, complained to police that the youngsters persist in squirting the side of his house with grease guns.

He asked for police assistance.

Says Shoal Bay Garbage Came From City's Scows

Garbage found littered around Shoal Bay Friday afternoon definitely came from the city garbage scows, Arthur Musgrave, Oak Bay municipal engineer, reported yesterday.

Mr. Musgrave said that a sufficient number of the cans found along the beach were crushed to indicate that the garbage had come off the scows.

He said the whole trouble was caused by the tides, which had brought the debris towards shore instead of taking it out to sea.

Mr. Musgrave announced that the Oak Bay public works department would start cleaning up the garbage on Monday.

Ald. J. D. Hunter, chairman of the city's public works committee, and Cyril Jones, city engineer, both investigated the scene after several Shoal Bay residents had complained Friday afternoon.

Dr. Hunter, however, was inclined to believe that the refuse did not come from the city's scows. He didn't have a solution to where it had come from.

Collision Causes $200 Damage

Damage estimated at $200 was caused by a collision at 11 45 Friday night at Bay and Prior Streets involving cars driven by Thomas Lid stone, 722 Discovery Street, and Robert E. Graham, 2692 Cook Street.

No one was injured.

A Popular and Fitting Choice

CONFIRMATION of the appointment of Mr. Clarence Wallace, Vancouver industrialist and shipbuilder, to succeed Hon. Charles A. Banks in the position of Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia upon the latter's retirement on October 1 will be well received throughout this province in official and unofficial circles alike. One whose life has been bound up with the development of British Columbia and who is known in every part of it, Mr. Wallace, assisted by his charming wife, should have little difficulty in accustoming himself to the obligations of the office, and will enter upon it with the united good will of British Columbia citizens.

To His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor Banks, and Mrs. Banks, who gave of themselves during the brief term which is now drawing to a close, will go the sincere thanks of the Government and people of British Columbia. The postwar years have been difficult ones for any incumbent, and the circumstances of the office itself have been rendered more so by lack of adequate Government provision for the carrying out of the duties and obligations which time has attached to the post.

We suggest, again, that the Government of British Columbia take occasion now to review all factors of the case, to see if it would not be wise to amend the system so that the Province would retain the office of Lieutenant-Governor, but dispense with the trappings of Government House, as five other Provinces have already done. A considerable saving in the civil list would result, of funds for which there are many other uses. Also, the long drain that Government House imposes on all of its incumbents would be at an end. If that course, or one similar is not taken, then the Government should in all fairness to future incumbents make more adequate appropriations for the office.

As a Theatre the Arena Is Only a Stop-Gap

THE Starlight Theatre has rung down the curtain on what, from the standpoint of entertainment at least, has been a successful season. The programs have been excellent, the work of the artists first-rate, and the whole production level of a high order. More than ever it becomes evident that this annual event is one without which Victoria would be much the loser. The Starlight Theatre has added considerably to the cultural amenities of the city.

Yet once more it has been proved that the Memorial Arena is not adapted for musical and dramatic productions. The Starlight Theatre operated in spite of difficulties. Many seats offer a poor view of the stage, and the acoustics leave much to be desired. Since it was not designed with the intimacy of a theatre, the Arena is at best only a stop-gap. In view of the coolness of Victoria evenings Starlight Theatre producers were wise to take the show indoors, but they are faced annually with a structure that tests their capacities to the utmost.

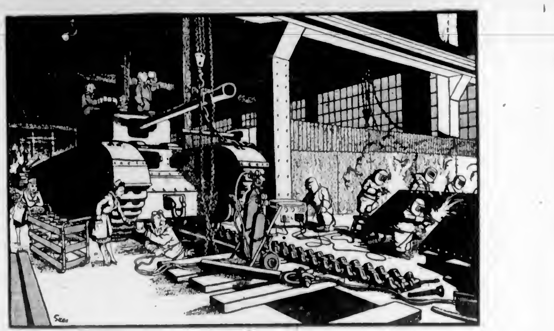
With the melancholy experience of the ice Arena before them Victorians may be shy of any proposals to construct a civic auditorium appropriate to concert, theatre, and related productions. In some ways an auditorium was more needed than an ice arena, and it is unfortunate that Arena history should dampen enthusiasm for such a project. If this city is to keep abreast of its artistic and cultural needs, however, such a building may soon become imperative. Those groups at present exploring possibilities along this line deserve to be encouraged.

August Is the Golden Gateway to Autumn

THE eighth month, the 239th day—how fast the year spins! Neither hurried nor flurried, Nature goes about her harvest with vast and orderly preparations, one season at a time. August is the golden gateway to Autumn. Spring prepared the sowing, Summer filled flower and fruit, but Autumn will be the harvest; the "ingathering" spoken of by Saxon minstrels long ago. There have been many and diverse generations of men, but Nature's harvest has not failed. Calm and purposeful, the seasons are the milestones of the year.

August is a beautiful month, on Vancouver Island or anywhere else in the Western Hemisphere. Apples gleam crimson and gold against the dark verdure of the trees. The chestnuts swell in their prickly cases, with here and there a glint of piebald mahogany showing through their widening seams. The ripening clusters of the mountain ash berries turn terra-cotta, well on their way to the flashing scarlet that will summon the robins from half a countryside. The end of the day draws in, and Summer constellations wane in the Western sky. Salmon seek the river of their birth, and the long fog rolls in from the Pacific like a veil across the waters.

In the forest and along the roadside, the bracken turns dun and russet in the underbrush. The Douglas fir is draped and decorated with pendant cones. Mother grouse marshal poults grown nearly as large as themselves. The quail pipe and feed in gathering coveys. The weathered old cock pheasant warms itself on the sun-baked rocks, wary but undaunted. Deer rest by day in the swamp grass, and cross the hills by night to get to water. The katydid rasps its sandpaper wings, free and carefree. On the forest floor, two-inch conifers start their long, long journey into time and space. What will they witness 1,000 years from now, one wonders?



"Don't hang around, girls — one of them's my missus, taken up war-work."

—London Daily Express.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

NOT being a novelist I am unfamiliar with the woes of those who write novels, but I can imagine they might be many. It can't be much fun devoting a year to the writing of a book only to have few people buy it. And not as many readers patronize Canadian novels as should. Like prophets, Canadian authors are insufficiently honored in their own land. As with numerous other products, books that come from abroad are automatically thought to be superior to the home brand. A quite erroneous idea.

This is not to suggest that in reality Canadian fiction leads the literary parade. It doesn't. But its quality is much better than most Canadians seem willing to give it credit for—on the cash counter, which so far as the author is concerned is what counts most.

Novelists have to eat, too. Art may be art and authorship may be authorship for its own sake, but unless the novelist has some other income the sales chart is all-important.

Which, of course, is a quite legitimate point of view.

* * *

A French-Canadian novelist has been speaking her mind a bit on this subject. She told an Eastern Kiwanis Club that Canadian writers are getting a raw deal from the public. Canadians go to the libraries for their novels or else borrow from friends.

They are willing to pay $2 to see a two-hour show, she said, probably with some bitterness, but unwilling to buy a Canadian book.

While appreciating her disappointment, I think this is too stern an indictment. After all the public also has a point of view. It has had many a raw deal itself one way and another, and in any case it can't buy a novel for $2—not nowadays.

And if Canadian novels are available in libraries and in the homes of friends, somebody must be buying them—even if in limited quantities.

The tone of the complaint seems to me to emphasize one factor that may tell against the Canadian novel—the implication that Canadians should buy it just because it is Canadian. This theme is sounded so often as to engender its own opposition. The sentiment is a patriotic one, but that's not how the public buys books—or any other product.

* * *

They buy according to merit, or what they think is merit. As I said, Canadian novels are much better than non-readers of them seem to be aware. After they are dead some Canadian authors may be much more highly thought of than they are today.

Not unnaturally, however, novelists prefer to gain credit, and cash, while they are still alive. That ambition is common to non-novelists as well and is quite excusable. The point, then, is how to convince Canadian readers they are missing a good thing by not patronising the home product.

Merit will out, they say, but a push also helps, particularly in these days of publicity. It is here that Canadian authors might turn to the publishers. Perhaps if the latter devoted a larger share of their promotion budgets to the Canadian novel, novelists like the French-Canadian complainant would have less reason to blame the reading public. A little more patriotism among the publishers wouldn't go astray either.

The public might then respond sufficiently to give Canadian novelists the better deal I don't blame them for seeking.

Side Glances . . .

From the Press Gallery

By FRED McNEIL

THE Forestry Department deserves praise for an experiment that started two years ago and is working well.

In the Sayward Forest, north of Campbell River, there is a camp of high school boys aged 16 and 17 years, mostly from Victoria. When school ends they head for the woods and start work under Ted Whiting, field supervisor for the reforestation division. Ted, according to his colleagues, deserves much of the credit for starting the scheme.

I visited the camp, a few miles northwest of Robert's Lake, last week. The boys were collecting cones for seed from firs up to 25 feet high. One lad climbed up a tree, hung there by a safety belt, tossed down cones to a second lad, who collected and sacked them. It's hard work, climbing up and down trees, constantly stooping to pick up cones.

But the boys have been in camp now for six weeks. They're physically hard and tough, sun-bronzed and proud that they can take it.

Before cone harvesting time, they build fire protection roads, cut wood, clear brush and do other forest conservation work.

* * *

The boys are paid $3 a day plus board. Most of them leave at the end of the holiday period with a stake of $150. They consume fabulous quantities of excellent food.

I saw an example of the team spirit they develop and their willingness to do a job without being ordered.

A full day's work in the woods had left two truckloads of cones to be unloaded, measured and tallied. After supper the lads automatically went to work so the trucks would be cleared for a fresh start early next morning. The job required eight boys. But the whole crew took part, laughing and talking as they worked.

It is hard to imagine any of these boys as juvenile delinquents. They're keen, physically fit and having the feeling they're doing an important job.

The lads work four and a half days a week. There is a program of sports for idle hours and the ranger in charge arranges week-end tours of logging camps, forestry look-outs, fire suppression crews.

There is a vast amount of forest protection work in British Columbia that will pay good dividends. It is an ideal job for teen-age high school boys and offers great possibilities for expansion. There is not a boy who would not benefit from a Summer in the woods.

Equally important, the scheme provides a method of education in the conservation of the Province's most valuable resource.

The Government must soon make a decision on whether hospital insurance premiums are to be raised. A deficit of $2,500,000 was expected for this year. Although it is announced policy to make the scheme pay for itself, any deficit for this year will come out of general tax revenue.

One of the factors which has delayed a decision on next year's premiums is that the service doesn't know accurately what the position is for this year. According to the schedule, all payments for the present year should have been completed by the end of June at the latest. Actually, payments are still coming in. Officials in the service say frankly they don't know what the deficit will be this year, so it is difficult to say what it might be next year.

If the decision is to increase premiums, the service will have to back-track on payroll deductions, which are now being paid for next year.

Before the days of new-fangled notions on raising children, such a situation would have called for switching something else . . . Any employee found dead on the job either in an upright or prone position will be immediately dropped from the payroll. In future if a foreman notices any employee has made no movement for a period of two hours, it will be his duty to investigate. As it will be almost impossible to distinguish between death and the natural movement of some employees, foremen are cautioned to make careful investigation. Letters and Excerpts

Letters to the editor on any topic of genuine interest are welcome if they are brief, accurate and fair. No letter will be inserted, in whole or in part, except over the proper signature and address of the writer. Unsolicited correspondence cannot be returned.

CIVILITY IN COURT

Sir,—Would you permit me to make a few comments on the case reported in Wednesday's Colonist, where a Mr. Hugh McDonald was brought before a court for not obeying a constable's order.

It would seem to the writer that the constable might have requested the owner of the rig in front of the mail wagon to move on. The mail collector was on the King's business and should have been assisted, rather than given a ticket.

As regards the report of the court proceedings, any person brought before the court is entitled to civility from the presiding magistrate. Such expressions as "You don't understand nothing," are unworthy of the occasion. According to press reports similar things have happened in the court presided over by the same magistrate.

The writer recalls a case many years ago where a magistrate refused to give the defendant a hearing, and the case was brought to the attention of the Attorney-General, Hon. Joe Martin, and after investigation the magistrate was removed from his position.

LAND OF THE TOTEMS

Sir,—I read with interest the editorial of August 22, headed "Land of the Totems—Ancient and Modern."

During the past century your editorial page has built up a high reputation for a responsibility and fair comment in the public interest.

Your comment on the incorporation of "Totem-Land" Society was a fine example of ironic satire. From that viewpoint it was excellently well-written. The writer has probably, as yet, had no opportunity of scanning the objects of the newly formed society and of properly appraising its justification and value.

Its objects are carefully set out as follows:

To collect, put into writing and to disseminate to all who may be interested, the legends, history, customs and philosophy of the British Columbia Indians;

To inspire, encourage, promote and preserve the ancient Indian weaving, painting and sculptural arts;

To encourage and promote the use of the insignia of the Thunderbird Totem and the slogan "Totem-Land" as the symbol of the color and romantic interest of the British Columbia Indians, their singular totemology and unique wood-carving art;

To advise, encourage and support the British Columbia Indians in overcoming the obstacles that stand in the way of their attainment of responsibility and enjoyment of full citizenship . . .

The long list of responsible citizens who constitute the officers and committee of "Totem-Land" Society should be given credit for sincerity of purpose.

PEDESTRIANS GO FIRST

Sir,—It was with surprise I read the article on Take No Chances in the paper recently. I had no idea that this new ruling was in force in Victoria. I went to Vancouver recently without my car, and was amazed and delighted at the way all cars and even buses stopped at the yellow crossings with no lights. It certainly gives one a very comfortable, safe feeling. There were notices up in the streets, warning cars that pedestrians had the right of way.

To Age

Welcome, old friend! These many years
Have we lived door by door:
The fates have laid aside their shears
Perhaps for some few more.

I was indocile at any age
When better boys were taught,
But thou at length hast made me sage,
If I am sage in aught.

Little I know from other men,
Too little they from me,
But thou hast pointed well the pen
That writes these lines to thee.

Thanks for expelling Fear and Hope,
One vile, the other vain;
One's scourge, the other's telescope,
I shall not see again.

Rather what lies before my feet
My notice shall engage—
He who hath braved Youth's dizzy heat
Dreads not the frost of Age.

Footnote to History

(From The New York Herald-Tribune)

A SO-FAR undenied account of how Korea came to be divided at the 38th Parallel was given in a broadcast last week. Just before the surrender of Japan in the Summer of 1945, according to the broadcast, "several one-star generals (brigadiers) hurried into an office in the Pentagon with the statement: 'We have got to divide Korea. Where can we divide it?'"

A colonel objected that Korea was an indivisible economic unit. (It has been described as "tightly knit as a pretzel.") The generals insisted; the colonel said it couldn't be done. The generals said it had to be done by 4 p.m. So, by 4 o'clock the division was made.

A State Department official who participated in the division said it was done because of the need for specific areas in which thousands of Japanese troops could be surrendered. North of the 38th Parallel they surrendered to the Russians; south of it, to American forces.

From Files of The Daily British Colonist for August, 1863

By G. E. MORTIMORE

A SLIGHT disagreement among Cowichan pioneers was aired in The Daily British Colonist.

One S. Harris wrote to the newspaper saying that everybody was happy, but some of his neighbors disagreed. Said Mr. Harris:

"Please inform your readers that the settlers of South Cowichan have commenced to improve the trail from Victoria, and that Mr. Brannan has a scow ready at all hours to convey cattle or horses across the bay; she is capable of carrying ten head at a time, and his charges are very moderate, therefore there is no great hurry for the bridges before all the settlers return from Cariboo.

"The petition to the House of Assembly for permission to elect a member to represent us, is waiting for a few more signatures—all of us being engaged on the road—but it will be sent by next opportunity. More anon."

Next day five other settlers shot Mr. Harris' letter full of holes:

"We, the undersigned settlers of Cowichan, having come to Victoria on business, are surprised at a letter in your last issue from S. Harris, and as we are unwilling that the public should be deceived, we beg to state that the want of bridges over the river is a most serious inconvenience, that the trail cut last Fall is utterly useless without them; that Brannan's scow is but a lame accommodation to us, although it may favor Mr. Harris' John Bull Hotel more than the bridges would do.

"It is only capable of being worked when the tide and weather may happen to suit, and will not take more than five head of cattle, while the 'very moderate' charges are more than the settlers can afford to pay.

"As to the vaunted improvement in the trail from Victoria, this consists of reducing a hill leading to Mr. Harris' house, distance about three hundred yards.—Henry Marriner, W. H. Lomas, John Evans, Wm. Gregory."

"I, the undersigned, having just returned from Cowichan with stock over the trail, am enabled to confirm every word of the above statement.—J. Bradley."

Stricken Seamen Cured By Rome Radio Service

ROME, Aug. 26 (AP).—On a warm Summer night a seaman aboard the American tanker Burgan complained of severe abdominal pains. His ship was in mid-Atlantic; there was no doctor aboard.

But before the vessel reached its destination, the seaman's ailment was diagnosed as appendicitis. He was treated and cured by radio.

Relating the story during an interview, Dr. Guido Guira, Italian throat specialist, said: "The Burgan is an old patient of ours. We have many American clients."

Some months ago, Dr. Alexander Dubinsky Van Eyck, an American specialist practising in Rome and a colleague of Dr. Guido, went on the air to halt an epidemic aboard the tanker Saguaro in the South Atlantic.

A terse message from the ship's captain said: "In my crew of 42 men, 26 are suffering from a bad rash. The itch accompanying it is almost unbearable. What shall I do?"

Dr. Van Eyck spoke to the captain by radio. What had the men eaten? Had the ship just been painted? Had anyone a rash when it left port?

Finally, the captain tapped out a morse message. "A storm of butterflies came aboard before we left port."

Dr. Van Eyck, who spent 11 years in the Dutch East Indies, was familiar with tropical diseases. He promptly prescribed an old native cure. Two days later the Saguaro reported "All hands cured."

The rash, the appendicitis victim and 195 other sick and injured merchant seamen were diagnosed, treated and cured in 1949 after their skippers sent out urgent "medrad" signals.

"Medrad"—short for medical radio—is "the SOS of the sick." It is the cable call for a non-profit organization in Rome known as the International Radio Medical Centre. A "medrad" message stops all commercial wireless traffic and takes priority over all messages except the SOS.

The idea of C.I.R.M. was conceived in 1935 by Dr. Guida, who comes from an old seafaring family of Trapani, Sicily.

FREE SERVICES

Dr Guida explained his plan to 30 other medical men. All agreed to co-operate with C.I.R.M. and offer their services free of charge.

Today, as he has done for 15 years, Dr. Guida acts just as an "assignment man" does in a news room. When a message is received, he assigns the "case" to the colleague best-trained to carry out a diagnosis on the basis of the frequently sketchy symptoms provided by the ship's captain.

Navy men operate the sending and receiving station in Dr. Guida's apartment in the centre of Rome. Dr. Guida pays the big monthly electricity bill.

Prayers Said At Basilicas By Pope Pius

ROME, Aug. 26 (AP).—Pope Pius today visited three patriarchal basilicas and said quietly the prayers he has prescribed to gain the Holy Year indulgence—pardon of temporal punishment due for past sin.

Thousands cheered and wave upon wave of shouts echoed through the three basilicas—St. John Lateran, St. Mary Major and St. Paul Outside the Walls.

It was in effect a tour of triumph for the Pontiff, coming eight months after he opened the holy door of St. Peter's—the fourth basilica—to begin the 25th jubilee of the Roman Catholic Church.

An estimated 50,000 to 60,000 pilgrims and Romans packed the three basilicas. Another 60,000 to 100,000 gathered in the squares outside or stood along the route the Pontiff's limousine took from Castel Gandolfo, his Summer residence, to the three churches.

The pilgrimage took about two hours. The Pope's car, traveling at about 15 miles an hour so that he might bless the people along the way, was flanked by ten policemen on red motorcycles. Police along the curbs stood shoulder to shoulder at times to hold back the eager crowd from the automobile as it rolled up to each of the three basilicas.

Oddities

NEW YORK, Aug 26 (AP).—Enough is enough says Minnie the cat.

Minnie recently became the mother of four kittens. The family lived in a cardboard-box apartment in the press room opposite police headquarters in Brooklyn.

Returning from her daily prowl yesterday, Minnie found in her quarters not four, but nine kittens. Someone had slipped in five orphans.

Nine squealing cat-brats were beyond Minnie's capacity. She took her four little ones and moved out. The five strangers are on their own.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Reuters).—Lois was one sick lynx in the London Zoo hospital today, but she was expected to recover.

She arrived in London yesterday by sea from Canada. It was a rough passage and the captain of the ship telegraphed the London Zoo for advice on Lois's seasickness.

The prescription: "Dose with olive oil and salts." Lois survived the trip, groggy but game.

CHELMSFORD, England, Aug. 26 (Reuters).—Every girl has a right to play the trombone, says 15-year-old Margaret Kane.

The blonde student nurse says she'll fight the matter through with the Chelmsford town band committee, whose members want Margaret expelled from the band.

"If they win," she said today, "I'll have to give up the trombone. The only place I can play it is in the band. If I play in my bedroom the neighbors go crazy."

In joining the band, Margaret defied a committee edict that the band was for men only—on the ground that "women players would cause complications."

Gems Missing, Hedy Lamarr Notifies Police

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (INS).—Movie actress Hedy Lamarr told police today that her uninsured collection of gems—"valued very conservatively" at a quarter of a million dollars—had disappeared mysteriously from her plush Fifth Avenue hotel suite.

She said the missing gems, collected during the last 14 years, included a diamond necklace, an eleven-and-a-half-karat diamond ring, a three-strand pearl necklace and a single string of pearls with a diamond clasp.

The glamorous Vienna-born screen star said she first discovered the jewels missing from a suede bag Thursday night when she returned to the Sherry-Netherlands Hotel after a theatre party.

She said she usually carried the gems in a blue suede envelope in a small handbag. She said she found the bag open and empty on a dresser in her hotel bedroom.

Hedy said she assumed then that she must have left the gems at the swank Irving House in Southampton, L.I., where she is spending the Summer, so returned there last night without notifying police.

A check at the resort colony failed to locate the jewels, however, and Miss Lamarr notified the manager of the Sherry-Netherlands and later talked with the Manhattan police.

They questioned the bell-boys at the hotel and two detectives were sent to Southampton to talk with the beautiful brunette.

Her hotel suite was searched but investigators found no indication of forced entry. The bell-boys were being questioned to learn whether any person slipped into the star's rooms during the Thursday night theatre party.

Rival Paul Bunyan

California Men Use Tractors, Loop of Cable to Fell Trees

HUNGRY HORSE Mont., Aug. 26 (AP).—Two California contractors are rivaling the exploits of that legendary woodsman, Paul Bunyan, with their "highball" method of clearing timber land.

Two Diesel tractors grind through the dense forest, each paying out 1⅛-inch steel cable. Attached to the centre of the cable loop is a 4½-ton steel ball.

When up to 1,800 feet of cable has been reeled out, the machines are anchored against trees. Winches reel in the line.

The cable, held clear of stumps and other obstacles by the huge ball, crashes through the timber as fast as a man can walk.

Trees caught in the cable loop are felled as if they had been hit by a hurricane.

S. L. Wixson and John Trisdale of Redding, Cal., startled Federal officials by offering to clear a major part of the Hungry Horse Reservoir area for nearly $2,000,000 less than other bids.

HUNDRED ACRES A DAY

Wixson and Trisdale say that, under ideal conditions, two tractors pulling one ball snagged down all the trees on a 200-acre heavily-timbered area in four hours. Average daily production for two tractors and one ball has been 100 acres in eight hours.

Last year, using the cable alone, the two completed about 95 per cent of a contract to clear 7,210 acres, to be covered by water backed up by Hungry Horse Dam in the Flathead River's south fork, here in Northwestern Montana.

Work on that $1,733,880 clearing contract will be completed before December 20, 1950, the contractors promise.

This Spring the two got contracts to clear 14,725 more acres.

The contractors figured the cable would hang up on stumps and rocks. Hence the steel balls, eight feet in diameter, which keep the cable from being hung up. The cable, riding four or five feet above the ground, has more leverage when it hits a big tree. A tree four feet in diameter is uprooted easily.

Seeks Details On Gun Thefts

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Aug. 26 (CP).—Senator Tom Reid said Friday he will ask the Government regarding recent thefts of machine-guns and ammunition in Vancouver and this city recently.

"It is common knowledge that there are subversive activities by 'Stalinists' in this country today," he said.

One Bren gun and several hundred rounds of ammunition were stolen from the Armory Building here early this month. A similar theft was reported from Vancouver.

BEAVERTON, Ont., Aug. 26 (CP).—Three gunmen held up the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch here today and escaped in a stolen automobile with an estimated $10,000 in cash and an undetermined number of bonds.

The bandits were believed to have scattered nails along the highway as they fled. Within two hours after the holdup, ten motorists reported flat tires. In most cases, brand-new 2¼-inch nails were the cause.

Beaverton is 75 miles north of Toronto. Two of the bandits wore grey sacks over their heads. There were holes cut out for the eyes and mouths. The third man wore dark glasses.

Outraged Yugoslav Film Critics Unite To Blast Government-Backed Movies

BELGRADE, Aug. 26 (Reuters).—Yugoslavia's infant film industry, one of the projects of Marshal Tito's five-year economic plan, has come under strong fire from Belgrade movie audiences and critics.

The ten full-length feature films so far produced are generally considered disappointing.

The latest outburst of criticism followed release of "The Lake." Like eight of the other films produced "The Lake" is frankly propagandist. It deals with the construction of a hydro-electric power station under the five-year plan.

CRITICS OUTSPOKEN

Five Belgrade newspapers including Borba, mouthpiece of the Yugoslav Communist party, have together published 30 full columns of criticism against "The Lake."

Nikola Petrovich, Federal minister in charge of electrification, has sent a letter to a Belgrade weekly journal blasting the film for falsely giving the impression of a high proportion of saboteurs and spies among Yugoslav engineers and for committing technical blunders.

Omladina, organ of the Communist-led People's Youth, said Yugoslav moviegoers had been keenly interested in the progress of the new film industry and had shown great patience.

"But to continue counting on patience and hoping that the public will understand the difficulties and failures and even make them get used to them would be dangerous and wrong," the paper said.

CLASS STRUGGLE

The film, built around the construction of a hydro-electric power station, depicts the "class struggle": "progressive elements" who are ready to see their village flooded and turned into a lake for the sake of the greater good of the country, while "reactionary elements" take active steps to prevent it.

The "reactionaries" — left-overs from prewar Yugoslavia — include the village priest, the merchant, the "kulak" or rich peasant who opposes collectivization, and an engineer. They try to sabotage the power station.

Zachary woke up one evening rather suddenly just at twilight, with no pain in his head and a very clear mind. He went shakily downstairs to the doctor's study and sat there waiting in the chair facing the windows.

He heard the gig drive up, and then the doctor's firm footfall in the hall. With his heart beating like a sledge hammer, he stood up and bowed. "Hey, lad! And what made you get up?"

"I was able, Sir," said Zachary.

"Good. Now, I'll go and change and have a wash and then we'll eat. After the meal we'll talk."

Tom had put four lighted candles on the round mahogany table in the paneled dining parlor and cooked an unusually appetizing meal.

After dinner they went back to the study, where Tom had kindled a fire of applewood and pine cones in the basket grate, and pulled up the chairs to the fragrant blaze. But Zachary did not sit relaxed in his comfortable chair, he sat stiffly, his hands clasped between his knees, nerving himself to say something. Then he said it.

"Thank you, Sir, for your goodness. I am quite well now. I must not encroach any longer upon your hospitality."

"Where were you thinking of going, boy?" asked the doctor. "Have you a home?"

"No, Sir. But I am perfectly capable of finding employment for myself. I found it before."

There was a touch of defiance in the tone that made the doctor smile, though he liked it. "Yes, you did. At the mill. But I doubt if that was exactly suitable employment for a fellow of your type. I have a suggestion to make, Zachary. There is a spare room in this bachelor establishment. I like the company of boys. So does Tom. Stay here until we find employment more suited to you than working a hopper. You might look on me as a father for as long as you have any use for the commodity."

So he had heard aright in the cottage. Zachary flushed scarlet to the roots of his hair. His throat swelled and choked him. He clasped and unclasped his hands and could not look at the doctor. Yet he must look at him.

"No need to thank me, boy," the doctor said easily. "If your need was great, so was mine, and I've no doubt we'll shake down together very comfortably. You can tell me what you like about yourself when you like, or not at all, just as it pleases you."

"I'd like to tell you everything now, Sir," said Zachary. "I would rather there was nothing you did not know."

"Very well then," said the doctor, and he leaned back in his chair.

Stumbling at first, then with growing confidence, Zachary told his story. He told the bare facts, neither exaggerating the cruelty of others nor his own suffering, making no excuses for himself. The story was done and the doctor sighed a little, the anxiety of the deep love of fatherhood already heavy upon him.

Zachary's anxiety, as he waited for the doctor to speak, was of a different sort. The old man's silence had told him exactly what the doctor thought of his act of desertion. What would he do if told he must go back to the navy? His mind balked.

"Is there anything that you would especially like to do, Zachary?" asked the doctor gently.

Zachary relaxed a little. "Yes, Sir. I'd like to be a shepherd at Weekaborough Farm."

"But I understand, Zachary, that your services have already been somewhat violently rejected by Farmer Sprigg?"

Zachary grinned. His relief that the doctor made not the slightest suggestion of his returning to the navy was overwhelming. "Yes, Sir. But I was dressed like a scarecrow then."

"Very well, lad. Tomorrow we'll drive to town and fit you out in a manner likely to impress Father Sprigg, and then you can try your luck again. And now as your medical adviser I suggest bed—though as your father, I'd prefer to keep you here till midnight."

For a little while now there had been a bit of disagreeableness going on at Weekaborough Farm, and a few days later it came to a climax. It concerned the musical obstinacy of Jack Crocker, the ploughboy, one of whose duties it was to sing counter-tenor to Sol's bass in the beautiful chant which animated the Weekaborough oxen when they pulled the plough. Jack could not sing the chant correctly, and what was worse, he would not try.

There had been a week of wind and rain and then a good drying wind, and now the half-acre field on the slope of Taffety Hill was in exactly the right condition to be harrowed. The beautiful oxen, Moses and Abraham, were harnessed to the equally beautiful plough, and the little party of two oxen, one old man, and one young boy set out for Taffety Hill, watched with some misgiving by Mother Sprigg and Madge, for there was that in Jack's wickedly gleaming black eyes and Sol's grimly set old mouth that seemed to presage trouble.

Zachary, meanwhile, was coming up the hill from the village most suitably attired in breeches, leather gaiters, and a rough freeze coat. He reached the top of the hill and the boundary of Father Sprigg's land.

There was a flock of gulls wheeling just down the hill to his left, the wind catching their strange voices so that their crying soared now loud, now soft, above the chanting that mingled with the faint bell-like jingling of harness.

He listened spellbound for a moment, until a false note followed by a howl of fury upon the other side of the hedge, brought him suddenly to earth.

A field of red earth was being harrowed, but the team of oxen had come to a standstill while the ploughman, an ancient with a bent old body like a brittle tree, belabored the hind quarters of a small boy. The young wretch deserved all he was getting, and Zachary was sorry when with a twist the scoundrel wrenched himself free, and raced off down the hill. The old man turned and laid his hands once more upon the plough. The oxen moved forward again, turning downhill, and the old man's voice, very frail, yet so sure and sensitive in pitch and tone, rose lonely and serene in the immemorial chant.

Zachary listened, awed and silent again; it was still lovely but it lacked the tenor notes. He tried them softly under his breath, at first tentatively, then more surely. Singing, he pulled off his coat and walked to meet the team. Still singing, he swung in beside Sol and bent his weight to the plough. Sol, after one glance at the boy beside him, accepted him as he accepted everything, calmly and without astonishment, and rested himself in this blessed comradeship of a tuneful kindred spirit. The plough swung around again. Zachary had lost all sense of place or time.

The plough had stopped. Old Sol was chuckling delightedly, enjoying the dumbfounded astonishment of a tall stout man leaning over the gate.

Zachary, utterly stunned by the sudden descent to earth, rubbed his hand across his eyes, then blinked at a picture he had memorized with loving care—a little figure in a red cloak standing behind a gate, a pointed chin propped on top of it, and down below a furry countenance thrust engagingly through the lower bars—Stella and Hodge.

He gave a cry of delight and strode towards them, and like a flash Stella had scrambled to the top of the gate, fallen down upon the other side, jumped up again, and flung herself into his outstretched arms. He picked her up, not kissing her, not even wanting to, loving the feel of her in his arms, warm and thin and palpitating like a bird.

Father Sprigg, still upon the wrong side of the gate exploded abruptly.

"What the devil!" he demanded. "And who may you be—you—you—ugh! you twily young scoundrel! You dare touch my girl—you—foreigner!" He advanced upon Zachary, his big nobbly stick raised, once more roaring like a bull.

Zachary came up courageously to Father Sprigg and bowed to him. The nobbly stick dropped, and so did the farmer's jaw.

"I ask your pardon, Sir," said Zachary humbly. "I am staying in the village with Dr. Crane. Your ploughman was having trouble with his boy, who ran away. I stayed and helped him."

"Sings counter-tenor like he'd been born to the plough, Sir," exulted Sol.

"Let him bide, Father!" pleaded Stella. "It wasn't his fault about me. I just jumped on him, like I do on you. He's my friend."

"An' for why are you so set on ploughing my field?" demanded Father Sprigg of Zachary.

"I want to work at Weekaborough Farm, Sir," said Zachary.

"I'm already suited. I've the boy Jack Crocker," snapped Father Sprigg.

"Bolted to Plymouth, by the look of 'im," growled old Sol.

Disney Turns to Wildlife Sagas As Solution to Double Features

THE ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

By ARNIE MYERS

It's no news when Hollywood hires scores of high-priced actors for a movie that turns out to be a stinker. But when a studio turns out smash hits using actors who don't draw a cent of pay, that's news.

And that's exactly what the Walt Disney studio is doing these days. The actors, in this case, are animals—not Donald Duck and Pluto, but real, live, wild animals.

The studio is sending screenward one of the most unusual series of pictures in years, pictures which have been hailed by critics as the most entertaining of their type ever filmed.

They are the True Life Adventure series, the first of which, "Seal Island," won an Academy Award last year. The newest in the series is "Beaver Valley," a half-hour look at the private life of Canada's national beast.

GREW FROM PEEVE

Strangely enough, the True Life Adventure pix grew out of Disney's pet peeve—double bills in which one of his prize features, like "Cinderella," is paired with a Western, a whodunit or something equally incongruous.

Disney considers that such second features must be boring, if not nauseating, to the type of audience attracted by his bill-toppers. So he devised the True Life series to correct the situation.

No human being appears in the movies. They are devoted to animals, birds, fish and insects in their natural habitat, and are filmed in lifelike color.

EFFORTLESS ENTERTAINMENT

It is Disney's idea to cram enough entertainment into 30 minutes of running time to make the movies acceptable as second features to movie patrons, without causing any wear and tear on the customers' emotions.

None of the footage, Disney declares, is staged. His cameramen get their unusual, often incredible, shots by the exercise of limitless patience.

"Beaver Valley," for instance, kept Photographers Al and Elma Wilmotte in Montana and Minnesota for nine months. They did most of their work at night, when beavers are most active.

THIRD IN MAKING

Now in production is a third in the series, called "Nature's Half Acre." This will pry into the doings of the birds and bees, the animals and insects which might be found in any half acre where Nature has been unsullied by man. Disney also has a crew in Alaska shooting Nature at its rawest.

Because the films take from six months to a year to complete, Disney is coy about setting release dates. The Alaska film should be ready sometime next year, and the studio hopes to turn out at least one or two a year.

"Beaver Valley" is now on exhibition in the United States after being previewed in Hollywood to the accompaniment of huzzahs from the critics. If it does nothing else, it should at least show just what keeps the busy beaver busy.

NO SOUR DISCORDS

In all the wild pandemonium of a Spike Jones "musical" arrangement, not so much as a single pistol shot or siren scream is ad libbed. And there's a reason.

"The discords gotta be harmonious," says Spike, who brings his Musical Depreciation Revue of 1951 to the Memorial Arena, September 5. "You let things get out of hand and what have you got? Sour discords!"

There's no place for unplanned sourness in any Spike Jones' production. The madcap maestro makes it clear he doesn't use just any old auto horn or sleigh bell he happens to pick up. Everything is tuned to a specific key so he can get the precise—and often nerve-shattering—effect he wants.

PISTOL PROBLEM

One thing that worries Spike is that he's never found a way to tune a pistol cartridge. They just go "Bang!" in a completely unidentifiable key.

Spike sometimes has trouble with enthusiastic band members who think an extra bang or a few beeps would add something to an arrangement. He discourages such self-expression with a seltzer bottle with which he is a deadly shot.

Jones' unique arrangements have led to the development of a brand-new system of musical notation. His arrangers use a set of custom-built rubber stamps to print pictures of cowbells, auto horns and other noisemakers directly onto the score. These musical hieroglyphics take up less space and read more easily than written instructions.

AFRAID TO LOOK

One featured member of Spike's troupe, Eddie Metcalfe, has never seen the show, and he's beginning to get curious.

"Everyone says it's very funny," says Metcalfe wistfully, "but I wouldn't know. I don't dare look. I don't even dare listen."

Metcalfe is the velvet-voice baritone who glides blissfully through such Jones' numbers as "That Old Black Magic," "Laura" and "My Old Flame," completely oblivious to the cacophony of sirens, screams, shots, doorbells and falling debris, and the antics of giants, midgets and headless bodies on the stage behind him.

"When Spike first hired me," Metcalfe recalls, "he warned me: Don't ever look behind you. Once you've seen it, you're through. The mental picture of that riot will break you up every time you start a number.'"

Obedient Eddie hasn't looked yet, and Spike is proud of him.

"If there was an earthquake and the whole building came tumbling down on us," he says, "I'm sure Eddie would go right on singing until he was buried in the debris. He'd think it was part of the act."

Jones hasn't yet found a way to use an earthquake in his numbers, but he's working on it. Meanwhile, his productions are chaotic enough that, brags his press agent, Hollywood psychiatrists are hanging out signs reading: "Two Couches — No Waiting."

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables the tide rises or falls continuously during intervening times between the high and low waters as given. 0.0 foot must be subtracted from the heights in this table to conform with the datum of soundings on the charts of the locality.

Chinese Team Wins Plaudits

The Victoria Chinese Girls' Drill Team with its highly decorative costumes and skilled precision marching drew many favorable comments from the spectators during the Pacific National Exhibition parade in Vancouver.

The girls were the only Victoria team participating in the parade.

Besides performing during the parade, the drill team also gave exhibitions at the open air theatre in the P.N.E. grounds during the afternoon and again in downtown Vancouver in the evening.

The railway strike almost forced the girls to cancel their trip to the Exhibition and only after considerable trouble were they able to make the journey by plane. They returned by air Thursday.

NEW DELHI, India (CP)—Newly-designed coins will be issued in India August 15, third anniversary of Indian Independence. The coins will be faced with an impression of the Asoka Pillar (a Buddhist monument), with two ears of corn, a bull or a horse on the reverse.

Dominion Ready to Train Key Civil Defence Men

The Dominion Government has offered to train key personnel for civil defence in Canada, Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said yesterday on his return from Ottawa.

Mr. Wismer attended a conference of civil defence officials from the provinces. With him from British Columbia were R. A. Pennington, deputy provincial secretary and head of civil defence in the province, Percy Richards, executive assistant to the Premier, and Dr. G. F. Amyot, deputy minister of health.

Idea of the conference, said Mr. Wismer, was to set up a uniform framework setting out the respective responsibilities of the Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments.

A basis was laid down, he said, for the formation of nuclear committees across Canada which could be rapidly expanded as needed. Each level of Government would be responsible for certain phases of civil defence.

Don't Hesitate to Describe Your Pain

By DR. J. B. WARREN

When you consult a physician about your symptoms, don't hesitate to tell him "all" about your pain. Don't try to be hero and belittle your pain if you want help. If pain is sharp, dull, cramp-like, or seems to move about, tell this to your physician. For instance, a pain that comes on only when you move a part is usually due to injury, whereas a pain that comes on only when you are resting is due to infection—teeth, tonsils, etc. A pain that shifts about the abdomen is usually gas, whereas a pain that starts in the pit of the stomach and gradually goes down to the lower right side of the abdomen and stays there is likely appendicitis.

New Barge Will Carry 12 Boxcars

—Colonist Photo

Pictured immediately prior to its launching at Yarrows Ltd. yesterday afternoon is 182-foot railway car barge built for F. M. Yorke & Son Ltd., of Vancouver. Massive barge is equipped with three sets of tracks, and will be able to handle 12 railway cars. Craft was christened by Mrs. E W. Izard, wife of shipyard's general manager.

Expects Progress in Autumn

Wismer Returns Hopeful From Constitution Talks

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer returned from Ottawa yesterday hopeful that progress will be made in Autumn conferences of provincial premiers with the Federal Government on amending Canada's constitution.

Mr. Wismer was attending a meeting of provincial attorneys-general to outline the framework of discussions for the plenary meeting to be held in Quebec City.

He said: "In my opinion we have reached a position where if the various provinces co-operate, as I feel they will, we can find methods of amending the constitution which will allow us to carry out progressive reforms that are essential to Canadian progress."

Mail Dates Set For Warships Visiting Europe

Arrangements have been made with the Post Office Department, Ottawa, to forward mail to personnel serving in the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Micmac and Huron, which left Halifax Wednesday on a three-month training cruise to European waters, it was announced yesterday by Naval Headquarters.

Following the latest dates for the dispatches of mail from Montreal to connect with the ships at the various ports of call:

Port	Airmail	Surface Mail
Londonderry	Sept. 15	Sept. 7
Rosyth	Sept. 20	Sept. 7
Oslo	Sept. 27	Sept. 15
Gotenborg	Sept 30	Sept. 15

DO YOU HATE GOING THROUGH 'CHANGE of LIFE'?

So many women between the ages of 38 and 52 have good reason to hate 'change of life'—the time when fertility ebbs away—when embarrassing symptoms of this nature may betray your age!

If this functional period makes you suffer from hot flushes or makes you feel so weak, nervous, restless, hard to live and work with—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. Women by the thousands have reported gratifying benefits. No other medicine of this type for women has such a long record of success.

New Insect Pest Discovered in Victoria District

A new and troublesome pest which can cause widespread damage to cane fruits has been discovered here, it was learned yesterday from the Dominion Entomological Laboratory.

Called the "Bramble leafhopper," the bug is a native of Europe but has now appeared near Victoria and as far north as Cowichan Bay.

The specie thrives, laboratory officials say, on blackberries, loganberries and raspberries, destroying the vines by sucking juices from leaves and branches. It is considered a major pest against these crops in Europe.

METHOD OF CONTROL

A method of control has been worked out by Harry Andison, Dominion entomologist, with the assistance of Norman Tonks and William Randall. The three have worked for a year to discover a suitable insecticide which might control the leafhopper.

Mr. Andison said that the leafhopper can be controlled with DDT, either as a 3 per cent dust or as a spray of 50 per cent wetable powder at the rate of 1½ pounds to 100 gallons of water.

TWO APPLICATIONS

An application during the first two weeks of May or when the fruiting arms are six to eight inches long, has proved satisfactory. A second application during the late Autumn, after harvest, is advisable, Mr. Andison said.

The adult leafhopper is a greenish-yellow, wedge-shaped sucking insect about one-eighth of an inch long which moves in all directions upon leaves when disturbed. The pest can also fly.

CLOSE PARKING AREAS

HALIFAX, (CP).—Two favorite parking places here have been closed by Police Chief Verdun Mitchell. They are the Grand Parade, in front of city hall, and the Commons, a large park and playground in the heart of the city.

Malaya supplies one-third of the world's natural rubber and one-half the world's tin.

LICENSED SANITONE CLEANER
AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF LAUNDERING MEMBER
MEMBER NICD NATIONAL Institute OF CLEANING AND DYEING
MEMBER CANADIAN RESEARCH INSTITUTE OF LAUNDERERS AND CLEANERS TO SERVE YOU BETTER THROUGH SCIENCE
SHOULD THESE SEALS MEAN ANYTHING TO ME?

If you are a user of laundry or dry cleaning service, these seals are of vital concern to you. They are your only sure guarantee of expert service and professional care for your clothes and household fabrics. Here's why:

The Sanitone Dry Cleaning seal is the registered trade mark of a special, patented process that actually gets out more dirt from any fabric that can be dry cleaned. The American Institute of Laundering, The Canadian Research Institute of Launderers and Cleaners, and the National Institute of Dyers and Cleaners are national associations dedicated to better laundering and cleaning methods and to a high level of trade ethics.

Through its membership in these associations, New Method is furnished up-to-the-minute bulletins and scientific data on the latest laundering and cleaning methods.

We know well in advance of new fabrics that come on the market. We are informed of their characteristics and can apply correct methods to ensure safe laundering or cleaning.

More important, several times a year we are sent test pieces which we are required to subject to our regular laundry and cleaning process. These pieces are then returned to the government laboratories at Ottawa where they are rigidly tested for soil removal, whiteness retention, tensile strength loss, etc.

Any deviation from the high standards insisted upon by these associations is quickly brought to our attention and corrective measures taken.

You can thus readily see that, by sending your clothes to New Method, you are purchasing not only the best available service but the protection offered by up-to-date research and knowledge.

SANITONE DRY CLEANING

Evolved after years of patient research by one of the largest chemical corporations in the United States, the Sanitone process marks a revolutionary stage in the development of dry cleaning. Ordinary dry cleaning solvent removes only a portion of the soil. The Sanitone process—protected by world-wide patents and licensed only to carefully selected cleaners—removes ALL the dirt that can possibly be taken out without risk of damage to the fabric. And because ordinary cleaning methods remove natural oils which contribute to the "feel" and draping quality of new clothes, a special ingredient is added to Sanitone to restore the "like new" finish. Sanitone dry cleaning gets out MORE dirt and revitalizes your garments. Because of the high reputation of this process all over the North American continent only plants which conform to the most exacting standards of cleanliness and thoroughness are licensed to use the Sanitone process. Sanitone inspectors enforce these standards through regular inspections. Since 1935 New Method have been the exclusive users of the Sanitone process in the Victoria area.

Holds Atomic Attack Unlikely for Canada

TORONTO, Aug. 27 (CP).—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said Saturday night that there are not many targets in Canada which appear important enough to warrant atomic attack by an aggressor.

But Canada is not immune from attack, he warned in a speech at the national reunion of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service.

He cited Russia as the potential aggressor and said:

"We must assume that some atomic bombs would be used and we must also assume that they might strike at important and vital Canadian targets.

PLANES—WEAPONS

"We know the Russians have aircraft of the B-29 type capable of delivering atomic or conventional bombs and we believe that they have atomic weapons . . .

"Having regard to other urgent and important objectives, there would not appear to be many targets in Canada which would be sufficiently important to warrant an atomic bomb unless they have considerably more than most people believe."

Mr Claxton said such an attack would have one and possibly two obvious objectives.

The first would be to strike at some vital point such as the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The second would be to panic the country into putting a disproportionate amount of effort into civil defence.

SHORT OF TIME

If war should come, Mr. Claxton said, "we are going to be short of a good many things and time is one of them."

"All the services must be capable of rapid expansion and this is not any nucleus theory. This is just plain common sense However large the force-in-being may be, we shall have to expand our forces . . ."

Ballet Troupe To Model U.K. Clothing

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Reuters). — Male members of the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company will help promote Britain's export of clothing when they open a tour of Canada and the United States next month.

They will wear specially-designed shoes, hats and suits that British makers want to sell in North America. In addition, they will carry neatly-rolled umbrellas in an effort to spread an old London custom to New York and Montreal.

Female members of the company, who wore all-British clothes during last year's successful American tour, will do so again this year.

Former M.P., Cabinet Man, Casgrain Dies

MONTREAL, Aug 26 (CP) — Mr Justice Pierre Casgrain, former Secretary of State for Canada in the 1940 Mackenzie King Government, died in his home here today. He was 64.

He had complained of feeling ill after a walk yesterday and died shortly after.

Judge Casgrain was a graduate of St. Mary's College and Laval University here and was admitted to the bar in 1910. Shortly latter becoming a junior partner in the Montreal law firm of McGibbon, Casgrain, Mitchell, McDougall and Stairs, he was elected as Liberal member of Parliament for Charlevoix-Saguenay.

He served as Liberal party whip for many years and was re-elected to office in 1921, 1925, 1930 and 1935 and 1940. He was appointed speaker of the House of Commons in 1935 and Secretary of State in 1940.

In 1941, Judge Casgrain was appointed a judge of the Superior Court in Montreal.

He is survived by his widow, the former Therese Forget, and four children, Rudolphe, Paul, Helene and Renee.

Not All Canadian Trains Stilled by Rail Walkout

By The Canadian Press

Despite the strike, there are still whistles to be heard, freights to be hopped.

They're few and far between but about a dozen railroad companies in Canada are virtually unaffected by the walkout.

There's the Huntsville and Lake of Bays Navigation Company Railway, a 2¼-mile single track in Ontario's Muskoka district, still busy with its handful of passengers and freight. And the two-mile Mattagami Line owned by the Abitibi Power and Paper Company in Northern Ontario.

U.S. LINES

Also operating in Ontario are the Algoma Central, a 250-mile line between Sault Ste. Marie and Hearst; the Essex Terminal, which links Windsor industries with the larger railways, and sections of the New York Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio.

N.Y.C. has a 250-mile track across Southwestern Ontario between Windsor and Fort Erie; C. & O. runs between Windsor and St Thomas. The N.Y.C. still is running also between Valleyfield, Que., and New York and from Ottawa to Russell, Ont., 22 miles south of the capital. On that short run, however, passenger service has been suspended. The rest of a usual N.Y.C. service between Cornwall, Ont., and Ottawa is not running during the strike.

The American lines report big increases in freight traffic but no marked boost in Canadian passenger business.

The 97-mile Greater Winnipeg Water District Railway is in operation between Winnipeg and Waugh, on the Manitoba-Ontario border, with three mixed trains a week.

COAST LINKS

The Pacific Great Eastern, serving points along the 348 miles between Squamish and Quesnel, B.C., is affected only in that cargo is cut off between Vancouver and Squamish, its southern terminus. It runs passenger coaches on way freights.

The B.C. Electric has trains in operation between Vancouver and Chilliwack, 65 miles in the Interior. The 150-mile Great Northern between Seattle, Wash., and Vancouver, is maintaining service on its 40 miles of track north of the border.

Nova Scotia has two railways still operating—the 118-mile Sydney and Louisburg, owned by the Dominion Steel Company, and the 15-mile Maritime Coal, Railway and Power Company line.

PEACH FESTIVAL

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP). — New stables will be constructed at Queen's Park to accommodate trotting horses scheduled for the Penticton Peach Festival in August. The sulky races will be a new addition to the rodeo, parades and beauty contest usually seen.

GOOD POSTURE

Good posture not only looks better, but is important to health, as poor posture can damage vital organs.

New First Family

Clarence A. Wallace, well-known West Coast shipping magnate, is to be the next Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia. The official announcement of the appointment was made late yesterday afternoon by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Since the first report two weeks ago that Mr Wallace would be the new Lieutenant-Governor, much interest has been shown in the family which will next occupy Government House.

The Wallaces whose home, "Devonia," is in Vancouver are widely known for their hospitality and gracious entertaining.

Miss Jean Markland Bride Of Mr. Herbert E. Tucker

White lace and bouffant nylon net styled the wedding gown worn last evening by Jean Kathleen Markland for her wedding at St. John's Church to Mr Herbert Earl Tucker Canon George Biddle heard the vows repeated by the daughter of Mr and Mrs E G Markland, 2036 Townley Street and the son of Mr and Mrs S W Tucker, 3081 Albany Street

White gladioli and white carnations decorated the church for the ceremony and Mr F. Chubb played "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring" during the signing of the register

A tiny Peter Pan collar featured the lace bodice of the bride's gown which was fastened to the waist with self-covered buttons and attached to a nylon net skirt en train. Her elbow-length veil fell from a lace cap trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried a white Prayer book topped with a white orchid and showered with stephanotis.

Matron of honor Mrs L C Johnson wore white nylon marquisette over yellow taffeta with an off-the-shoulder neckline and finished with two flounces at the hem. She carried a fan bouquet of yellow marguerites and wore matching flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids Miss Norma Balfour and Mrs. A. S Paradice were similarly styled white organdy dresses over pastel taffeta, Miss Balfour in pink and Mrs. Paradice in blue, with matching sashes They carried fan bouquets of contrasting carnations and wore matching halo headdresses. Flower girl Sharon Ball wore floor-length blue organdy over taffeta and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and carnations with matching flowers in her hair.

Mr N D Daggatt was best man and Mr L C Johnson and Mr A S Paradice were ushers

The reception was held at the Knights of Pythias hall where guests were received by the bridal party assisted by Mrs Markland in Queen's blue crepe, and Mrs Tucker in a dove grey ensemble with pink accessories Pink carnations decorated the table which was centred by a three-tiered cake encircled with pink illusion sprinkled with white heather and flanked by white candles Canon Biddle proposed the toast to the bride and Alderman F. G. Mulliner gave the toast to the attendants

Leaving on a honeymoon to Portland and the Oregon coast, the bride changed into a three-piece suit in grey flannel with white hat and accessories in black and white. Her corsage was of white orchids. Mr. and Mrs Tucker will make their home in Victoria.

Doreen Laird Is Bride At St. Aidan's United

White gladioli decorated St. Aidan's United Church Saturday evening, when the marriage of Lorna Doreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Laird, 1669 Pembroke Street, to Stanley George Hawkes, son of Mrs. R Hawkes, 1667 Forrester Street, and the late Mr Hawkes, was solemnized by Rev. T G Griffiths at a double-ring ceremony

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Griffiths.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in white slipper satin fashioned with sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and gathered skirt. A beaded tiara held her floor length veil of illusion net. A pearl necklace was her only ornament. To complete her costume the bride carried a round bouquet of red roses, white carnations and white heather.

Miss Sigrid Johnson, bridesmaid, was gowned in full-skirted pink taffeta fashioned with bustle-back, with matching bandeau and long mitts, and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli. Miss Marilyn Saunders, cousin of the bride, junior bridesmaid, wore a blue taffeta frock with matching bandeau and mitts, and carried a round bouquet of gladioli tips to tone

Mr. Gordon Hawkes was best man for his brother, and ushers were Mr Donald Laird, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jim Timms

The reception was held at Hampton Hall where the bridal party with Mrs. Laird and Mrs. Hawkes stood before the fireplace flanked with baskets of late Summer flowers to receive guests The lace covered table decorated with pink carnations was centred with the three-tiered cake The toast was given by Mr F Druce. The honeymoon will be spent on the Mainland the bride going away in a forest green crepe dress with taupe-colored coat, chocolate brown accessories and a corsage of rosebuds

Mr and Mrs Hawkes will make their home in Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dewdney sign the register following their recent marriage at the Church of Our Lord. Mrs. Dewdney is the former Margaret Bracken.

Lantzville Garden Party Marks Golden Wedding Day

LANTZVILLE, Aug. 26.—Hearty congratulations from many friends and relatives were received by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Doumont, old-time residents of this district, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary recently. Celebrations took the form of a garden party at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doumont of Lantzville. Sons, Andrew of Parksville, and August of Lantzville, were also present with their wives and families. Andrew, the eldest son, expressed the appreciation of the family and the toast was proposed by Mr. Leo LePas of Nanaimo. Many incidents of the old days were recalled by Mr. LePas in his brief address.

Mr. and Mrs. Doumont were married August 16, 1900, at the Old Wallace Street Church in Nanaimo, Mrs. Doumont being the former Cora Gueletta of Northfield. Following their marriage they lived for some years at South Wellington, later moving to Lantzville where they operated a large chicken farm. Mr. Doumont retired a few years ago and they still live at the old farm home.

Originally from Nova Scotia, Mr. Doumont worked in the mines there at an early age before moving West with his parents and worked in mines at Wellington, Extension and South Wellington in the early days. They have six grandchildren residing at Lantzville and Parksville.

The party sat down to a table centred with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake flanked by tall vases of gladioli and zinnias. Among those serving were Mrs. Edith Doumont, Parksville, Mrs. Celia Doumont and Mrs. Jack Doumont, Lantzville, and Mrs. Frank Doumont, Ladysmith. Many lovely gifts were received by the guests of honor.

Musical entertainment during the evening included selections on the piano accordion by Mr. Eugene Lothier, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Doumont, who was accompanied by his daughter, Dorothy, at the piano.

At the recent meeting of the Women of the Moose, Victoria Chapter, No. 25, two new co-workers, Mrs. Barbara Adair and Miss Margaret Hooper, were admitted into the defending circle. Senior regent Amy Hopley presided over the short business meeting which preceded a social convened by alumni chairman Marion Kirkwood. Next sewing bee will be held on Wednesday at the Home Cafe, 707 Pandora Avenue, with homemaking chairman Thelma Shaw in charge. All co-workers welcome. Any members wishing to assist at the D.V.A. Hospital are asked to contact social service chairman Flo Benzie, G 4547. Next meeting of the chapter will be on September 14. Long gowns for officers, committee chairmen and escorts.

Rowland Phare only son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Phare, 3625 W. 15th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C. The wedding will take place at Mount Pleasant Baptist Church in Vancouver, September 15 at 8 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Simpson of Vancouver (formerly of Victoria) announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Maxine Crispin, to Hector Melville Norris, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Norris of Vancouver. The wedding will take place on September 23 at 8 o'clock in St. Helen's Anglican Church, Vancouver, Rev. Whinfield Robinson officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kurtz, 767 Cadder Avenue, Kelowna, announce the engagement of their daughter, Erana, to Raymond George Heard, son of Mrs. J. C. Van Nes, of Victoria, the marriage to take place at First United Church, Kelowna, September 20, at 7 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Richards, 1361 Lyall Street, Esquimalt, B.C., announce the engagement of their only daughter, Eileen Marie (Babs), to Mr. Donald A. Reader, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Reader, of Port Angeles, Wash. Wedding will take place early September.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Adkins, of 927 Dale Street, wish to announce the engagement of their third daughter, Eileen Charlotte, to Mr. Peter Young, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Young, of Sidmouth, B.C. The wedding will take place at home on Saturday, September 16 at 3 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Frank Hoffman officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Guy, 807 Oliver Street, wish to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Mavis, to Stanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wiseman, 1900 Newton Road. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride-elect's parents on the evening of September 23, 1950; Rev. J. Hood will officiate.

Announcements to appear under this heading will be accepted at The Colonist Advertising Department. Minimum charge $1.50 for 15 lines and 10c for each additional line.

MRS. LILLIAN SWEENEY

By EILEEN LEAROYD

To know Mrs. Lillian Sweeney is to be acquainted with one of the few people in this province who think an earwig is beautiful.

But she may be right, for she has spent hours examining them through a microscope, and according to her they are "quite beautiful and of a lovely amber color."

Mrs. Sweeney, who was for 11 years staff artist in the Provincial Museum, has created a large-scale model (20 times life size) of the much maligned earwig, along with models of the house fly, the mosquito and the black-widow spider.

She retired from her Government post three years ago.

Among Mrs. Sweeney's other creations are the seven sharks in the museum which she carved from red cedar. She has also painted hundreds of types of fish for the museum and cast many in wax. She did the plasticine background for the cases of seals. She moulded in wax 75 mushroom exhibits including the elf cup, the parasol mushroom, the fly agaric, the destroying angel (which is a nice name for deadly poison) and the common puffball. Mrs. Sweeney also modeled in plasticine, three of the mastodons on exhibit in the museum, and numerous other exhibits like the Indian hands holding weapons of various periods.

ALSO A PAINTER

Not content with modeling and carving, Mrs. Sweeney is also a painter. The two canvases of dogwood and wild rhododendron which hang in the entrance lobby of the Provincial Library are her work. They were commissioned originally by the Society for Preservation of Native Plants in British Columbia.

The former Prince of Wales was sent an example of Lillian Sweeney's work which was said to hang amongst his collection of trophies. When he went fishing Upland in 1919 he caught a salmon. A cast of the fish was made and brought to Mrs. Sweeney to paint and mount, and later this was sent to the Prince in England.

The former museum staff artist received much recognition for her brilliant art recordings of life in Indian villages of the past. These were painted for the use of British Columbia school teachers. Scenes are water-color panoramas done against a background of mountains and forests.

Her canvases have not all been scientific reproductions, however. Two years ago she held an art exhibition in Prince Robert House, and last year she held another. Most of her work shows landscape as the subject.

Mrs. Sweeney illustrated a book called "The Tale of a Belgian Hare" which her sister, Frances Ebbs-Canavar, wrote in 1914, and has done a number of magazine covers like the one she did of an Indian boy for magazine Alaskan-Yukon.

Lillian Clarke was born in Winnipeg and began her artistic career at a very early age. Before she was six she had made sketches of all sorts of animals and objects.

When she was nine she was sent to the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Albany, N.Y., where she came under the influence of Mme M Gleason of the Boston Art School, and of Frederick Hardegg, noted Hungarian portrait and miniature painter.

When still a child the family moved to Victoria. The Parliament Buildings had just been completed but the Empress Hotel was still undreamed of. The present site was then mud flats where the Indians came for clams.

In 1906, Lillian Clarke studied at the Mark Hopkins Art School in San Francisco and in 1921 she went east to study in Chicago for a year.

She attended art classes in Victoria given by Miss Sophie Pemberton (now Mrs. Dean-Drummond) and the late Mrs. Bamphylde Daniells sought her as a charter member of the Island Arts and Crafts Society.

In 1936 Mrs. Sweeney became staff artist to the Museum. No less an authority than the Smithsonian Institute has commended her work, particularly for "the way in which she fluted the gills of the waxed mushrooms, so difficult to achieve."

Since retiring from the museum, Mrs. Sweeney has carved many plaques and medallions of wild flowers, but her most outstanding work since retirement is the carved birds which are so brilliantly executed that a taxidermist a few feet away would swear they were feathered. The pileated woodpecker, Western tanager, kingfisher, nut hatch, parrot, budgie, flicker, Alaskan grosbeak, shrike, robin, and varied thrush, are among the winged creatures she has created from balsa wood and colored with oil paint.

Mrs. Sweeney is a woman of great charm and spontaneity, besides being a creative artist of remarkable talent.

Furthermore, if she said frogs could fly and earwigs were beautiful there would be no alternative but to believe her.

C.W.L. Honors Mrs. M. E. O'Neil

Members of St. Andrew's Cathedral subdivision, Catholic Women's League, met in the Parish Hall Tuesday evening for a farewell party in honor of Mrs M. E O'Neil who leaves shortly to make her home in Vancouver. Mrs. O'Neil has been an active member of the organization for many years and has held a number of executive posts.

Invited guests were Rev. D. Johnston, Mrs. B. O'Neil, Miss Irene O'Neil and Miss E O'Neil.

Games were played during the evening and refreshments were served by Miss D. Kenny assisted by Mrs. C. M. Mulcahy, Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. W. C. Martin and Mrs. S. Hunter.

Flag-decked lawns overlooking the water formed the setting for a successful garden party held recently at the home of Mrs. E E. Anderson, 914 Selkirk Avenue, by Primrose Lodge No. 32, Daughters of England. Mrs. J. Joyce, worshipful president, was general convener of the affair.

HONOR FREDA WEBB

Mrs. C. W Kirchin was hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home, 3079 Earl Grey Street, recently, in honor of Miss Freda Webb, September bride-elect. BABY'S UPSET STOMACH
QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. G. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote restful comfort."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and her stomach became quite upset. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—and quieted down."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents.

Mark First Anniversary

LADYSMITH, Aug 26 — The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 2101, observed their first anniversary Thursday evening, August 24, in the Eagles' Hall. A large birthday cake, decorated with three candles, was the highspot of the evening. Candles honored past madam presidents, Mrs. Ruth Radford and Mrs. Betty Johnson; and a large one for the charter members.

Madam president, Mrs. Lily Simpson, participated in the lighting ceremony. The birthday cake was cut by auxiliary mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Armond. Entertainment was arranged by Mrs. B. Johnson, and Mrs. Pat Maki; supper committee included Mrs. James Galloway, Mrs. Laverna Scott, and Miss Phyllis Chadwick.

The auxiliary was inaugurated August 25, 1949, with a membership of 79, and the charter was presented in October, by Mrs. Alice Norrish, then madam president of Nanaimo Auxiliary No. 15. The auxiliary has enjoyed a successful year, with nearly 100 membership at present.

During the business part of the evening, plans to promote a drill team were advanced with the appointment of Mrs. Ethel Hamilton as drill captain. A dance is being arranged for September 29, with Mrs. Lily Simpson, Mrs. Doreen Rickerby and Mrs. Betty Johnson, committee in charge. It is planned to start whist during the Fall and with a farewell gift, Mr. and Mrs. Winter.

Mrs. Sam Alton was presented Alton and family are planning to move to Kelowna, B.C.

Vancouver Rites Of Interest Here

A wedding of interest on Vancouver Island and the Mainland took place recently in the chapel of Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, when Daphne Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert Speer, Duncan and Wickaninnish Lodge, Long Beach, V.I., became the bride of Michael Hugh Eayrs, son of Mrs. E. W. MacDonald of Vancouver and the late Mr. MacDonald. Rev. Dean Cecil Swanson officiated.

Miss Suzanne Seymour of Maple Bay and Miss Joan Hodson of West Vancouver, both fellow students of the bride at the University of British Columbia, were bridesmaids. Dr. John Kovach of Vancouver was best man, and Mr. Beverley Justice and Mr Tony Wainman Wood, both of Duncan, escorted the guests to their places.

Dr. Kingsley Terry of Victoria proposed the bridal toast at the reception held at the North Shore home of Mrs. C. Westwall, the bride's godmother.

22 Furnished Suites, New Royal Anne Mansions

Fully Soundproof Rooms Feature of City's Latest Modern Apartment Block

Designed on distinctly modern lines, the recently-completed Royal Anne Mansions provide Victoria with its most up-to-date and luxurious apartments.

Containing 22 one and two-bedroom apartments, the building is located on Quadra Street and Burdett Avenue, amid landscaped grounds containing lawns, rockeries and broad convenient driveways. Each apartment has an individual garage.

The spacious entrance and wide carpeted corridors throughout the building provide an air of luxury. Tall floor-to-ceiling windows provide abundant light for the double stairways.

The fully soundproof suites have been finished in pleasing pastel shades. Each suite contains a large airy living-room featuring a smart vitrolite fireplace with large over-mantel mirror and book shelves. A spacious dinette adjoins the living-room.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

All the smart, modern kitchens have a tiled sink, de luxe electric range, electric refrigerator, electric clock, chimes and abundant cupboard space. Floors in main rooms are hardwood, and all rooms are provided with Venetian blinds.

The ground floor contains a fully equipped laundry with all facilities. Each apartment holder has a large individual storage space. The furnace-room contains an incinerator into which garbage-shoots from all floors connect.

F. W. Nicolls is the architect and George Wheaton the builder.

John L. Harris Apartment Owner

John Lewis Harris, owner and proprietor of the Royal Anne Mansions, has been prominent in business circles of Victoria since his arrival here in 1912.

Mr. Harris is best known as a confectioner and cafe proprietor. For many years he and his sons owned and operated Scott's Cafe in Vancouver. The Penguin Cafe and the Norgrove Apartments on Park Boulevard in Victoria were also Harris enterprises.

In Vernon Mr. Harris built a block containing six stores and the Capitol Theatre which is under lease to Famous Players Corp. of Canada

Home Sought For Locomotive 111 Years Old

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 26 (UP).—Her sturdy wood and iron chipped and scarred by age and souvenir hunters, Nova Scotia's first steam locomotive lies deserted in a corner of a suburban garage.

The 111-year-old engine was presented by Canadian National Railways to Nova Scotia last year and now the Government doesn't know what to do with it.

The locomotive, The Sampson, was closely connected with the town of Stellarton, where it made its first run. The Province has suggested the town provide a museum to house it.

THREE DRIVING WHEELS

The locomotive is about 18 feet long, with a small platform on the rear for the engineer and fireman. It has three small driving wheels.

The Sampson was one of three locomotives brought to Nova Scotia from England in 1839 to haul coal from the mines at Stellarton to the loading grounds at the mouth of the East River.

The railway from Stellarton was completed in 1839 and The Sampson made its first run September 19. The train crew inevitably faced an uncomfortable run, exposed to the elements on the cabless locomotive.

THROUGH STACK

The engine was stoked directly through the smoke stack. It was no easy task to maintain 35 pounds pressure while the little engine pounded along the rails at 18 miles an hour. During wet weather the fireman stood on the front of the engine and threw sand on the rails to give the wheels traction.

The railway carried passengers for a short while, but after some were killed in an accident, the cargoes were restricted to freight.

The Sampson worked on the line for 15 years, then became the property of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Later it was returned to Nova Scotia.

Paper Plants Face Closing

MONTREAL, Aug 26 (CP) — As American newspapers started to cut down their size in the face of dwindling newsprint supply, Canadian pulp and paper industry spokesmen have said shutdowns in mills can be expected to start next week.

The shutdowns, the result of Canada's country-wide rail strike, are expected to spread as the strike continues.

Spokesmen said the mills will be forced to close as storage facilities and supplies run out. Most mills have kept open so far with temporary storage space and trucks to bring in vital supplies and haul away some of the newsprint produced.

AMUSEMENT TAX

ESTEVAN, Sask., (CP).—This town will enter the amusement tax field next year. Town council has decided to impose a 10 per cent tax on amusements, effective January 1, 1951. All professional amusements will be liable.

USEFUL PET

WESTCLIFFE, Kent, England (CP).—When motorist Bill Teff parks his automobile, he leaves his pet white cockatoo behind to frighten off strangers.

Barbara Stanwyck Happiest When She Works Hardest

—HEARD IN HOLLYWOOD—

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26 — I thought as I looked at Barbara Stanwyck with her soft grey hair and her chic tailored dress that she might have been some social queen spending an afternoon chatting over the teacups.

There is an air of calmness about Barbara that is very restful. Looking at her you would never guess all the pent-up energy in that slender, seemingly frail figure. Barbara actually is a human dynamo and she is never actually happy unless she is working and working hard.

When she announced she was off for Europe to spend two and a half months, I just looked at her.

"I don't believe it," I said, "unless, of course, you are so lonely for Robert Taylor you can't stay away from him another minute."

"Of course I am lonely for Bob," said Mrs. Robert Taylor. "When you have been married, and happily, for eleven years, you miss seeing his face and hearing him talk, even if some of the time you wish to heavens he would not litter up the background with fishing tackle and airplane paraphernalia."

"Are you going straight to Rome?" I asked her.

TO TAKE VACATION

"No," said Barbara. "I have made five pictures in eight months, so I am going to take a little vacation before I go to Rome. Bob tells me it's so hot that both he and Deborah Kerr have lost pounds. So, I am looking forward to hearing the violins play at The Monseigneur in Paris, swimming at Cap d'Antibe, and visiting some friends in London. Then I'll pay Taylor a visit. He's so busy with 'Quo Vadis' he won't have much time for me, and you know I am not very good at being idle."

Amusements

ON THE SCREEN

Atlas—"Lust for Gold," at 3:41, 5:53, 9:35, plus "Miss Grant Takes Richmond."

Capitol—"The Secret Fury," at 2:04, 4:46, 7:28, 10:10, plus "The Golden Twenties."

Dominion—"Cure for Love" at 2:57, 6:25, 9:56, plus "Night Beat" at 1:19, 4:45, 8:16.

Oak Bay—"Snowbound."

Odean—"Kind Hearts and Coronets," at 1:00, 3:05, 5:10, 7:15, 9:23; last complete show at 9:00 p.m.

Plaza—"Bob and Sally."

Royal—"Annie Get Your Gun," in Technicolor, at 1:00, 3:05, 5:10, 7:15, 9:23.

This brought a laugh from both of us. I've never known anyone like Barbara when it comes to loving her work. Her favorite reading is a new script, her favorite diversion, looking at a picture—and she doesn't care who knows it.

SKEPTICAL

So, when the Queen, as her press agent calls her, nonchalantly talks of having the longest vacation of her life, I get a little skeptical. Knowing her, I don't believe she will sit and fold her hands for even two weeks, much less two months. But she could use a little rest.

Barbara never plays milk-and-water heroines. Her ladies on the screen have mayhem on their minds, a gun in their hand, and an interest in high-class murder. That's enough to tire even a less strenuous girl than Mrs. Taylor.

Just before she left for Europe I had invited her to be a guest on my radio show. She couldn't talk about anything but the Walter Huston memorial scholarship award. She was proud she had been chosen to make the award to a Greek boy and a Greek girl in Huston's name.

She was so fond of Walter, who had played her father in "The Furies," his last screen role before he died. The thinks "The Furies" is his best picture.

"Only," she says, "any picture in which Walter Huston played belonged to him. He was that kind of an actor—the best."

LITTLE MAKE-UP

There is something very fresh looking about Barbara. She wears little make-up—only lipstick—and she says she'll die before she touches up her grey hair, which is always so newly shampooed and well groomed.

She is one of the most direct persons I have ever known. She believes in dealing straight from the shoulder.

"All people should love their jobs," she says, "or else they should go out and get a job they can love."

"Nothing ever tickled me so much in a balcony..."

Take My Word For It

By Frank Colby

PRONUNCIATION CLINIC

Time and again this column has emphasized the folly of picking up new pronunciations without first making sure that they do not violate established usage. Blindly accepting someone's unusual pronunciation, regardless of the someone's importance, will lead to inevitable embarrassment.

For example, a teacher writes: "Recently an eminent professor lectured at our school at a teachers' meeting. He repeatedly pronounced the word 'educative' as 'eh-JOO-kuh-tiv.' The second-syllable accent was new to me, but I didn't question so learned a doctor. So I foolishly began saying 'eh-JOO-kuh-tiv,' and even taught the pronunciation to my English class. You can imagine my extreme distress when my husband's ridicule sent me to the dictionaries of our school library where I learned that I had been using and spreading an entirely erroneous pronunciation! Never again will I be guilty of so silly an act."

I know of countless such instances. The secretary of a large advertising association has said, as long as I have known him, "pew-plicity" for "publicity." A network commentator invariably says "HAIR-oh-ick" for "heroic." A man high in industrial circles makes a plea for more "corporation between management and labor." The mayor of a large Midwestern city appeals on the radio for better "muni-SIP-al" planning.

Such mistakes, like the professorial "eh-JOO-kuh-tiv," are not the result of ignorance, but of a sort of tone-deafness to one's own pronouncing peccadilloes, or of accepting as correct someone else's speech blunders.

Here is a good tip for all speakers: Before copying anyone's pronunciation of any word, go to a late-edition, recognized dictionary and look up the word for yourself. But be sure that you clearly understand the dictionary's method of showing pronunciations. You'll find example words at the top or bottom of each page.

The old adage applies especially to speakers. Be sure you're right, than go ahead.

A defensive lesson well worth learning revolves around the heart suit in the following deal:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ 9 3
♥ A 10 6
♦ K Q 9 8 4
♣ 7 5 3

WEST
♠ Q 10 8 7 4
♥ Q 9 2
♦ 2

EAST
♠ K J 6 5
♥ J 5 4 3
♦ 7
♣ Q 10 8 4

SOUTH
♠ A 2
♥ K 8 7
♦ A J 10 6 5 3
♣ A K

To save space, let's merely say that South reaches a contract of six diamonds. West leads a low spade; South wins, draws trumps, cashes his clubs and, after going to the board with a trump, ruffs away dummy's last club. To reduce the final position for easy consumption, let's also say that South (needlessly) cashes two more trumps, leaving this five-card end position:

♠ 9
♥ A 10 6
♦ Q

WEST
♠ Q 10
♥ Q 9 2

EAST
♠ J 6
♥ J 5 4

♠ 2
♥ K 8 7
♦ J

Now, in keeping with his plan, South simply exits with his spade.

Will the slam contract be made? The answer lies solely with the defenders. If they protect themselves to the best of their opportunities, the contract will go down, but if they make the tiniest slip, declarer can sail home.

Obviously, either West or East can win this present spade trick. It does not matter which one wins, but—and here is the point—it does matter a great deal what each one leads after winning! A heart must be returned by either West or East, since a spade return permits a ruff and discard, but if West has taken the trick, he must lay down the heart queen, whereas if East has won the trick, he must not lead his heart honor. The mechanics of the play here is a little complicated, but it will repay readers to lay out the cards and see for themselves why West must lead the queen, or East a low heart.

BARBLESS HOOKS

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man. (CP)—Guides here advocate the removal of barbs from fish hooks and both Canadian and American tourists seem to be enthusiastic about the idea. Main reason is to simplify the return of undersized fish without undue damage. Catches are not affected greatly.

Uncle Wiggily Story

By Howard Garis

AT THE CASTLE

Bunty would have been very happy, riding in the boat of Puss in Boots, across Frog Pond, toward the castle of the Marquis, except for one thing. Down in her heart Bunty was thinking of Priscilla, her wonderful, magical doll.

Bunty had left Priscilla on Uncle Wiggily's houseboat when the orphan rabbit hopped away early in the morning to go look for Mitten Kitten. Buster had told Bunty about Mitten Kitten, who was playing in the grass when Buster was shooting firecrackers. Puss in Boots had given Buster the firecrackers. Puss came to Uncle Wiggily's island to shoot firecrackers because the Marquis of Carabas wouldn't let anyone shoot firecrackers in his castle.

"Well," said Bunty to herself, as Puss in Boots rowed the boat, "Well, I found Mitten Kitten, but I'm not sure I can take her to visit me on Uncle Wiggily's boat. Puss in Boots only said he would see about it. I wonder if I had better ask him again?"

Puss was rowing hard at the oars. The boat was rather heavy now, for besides Puss, there was in it Bunty, the bicycle with the punctured tire and Mitten Kitten. Of course the little pussy was so small she didn't weigh much.

"I think," said Bunty to herself as the boat glided through the water of Frog Pond, toward the mainland and the castle, "I think I will wait until I get to the castle. Then I will ask the mother of Mitten Kitten to let her visit me on Uncle Wiggily's houseboat. Yes, that's what I'll do."

Bunty watched Puss in Boots rowing the boat. She watched Mitten Kitten still trying to catch her tail, but not having very good luck.

Bunty and Mitten Kitten were sitting on the stern, or back, seat of the rowboat. Puss in Boots was sitting on the middle seat, pulling away at the oars. The bicycle with the flat tire was up in the bow, or front, part of the boat.

"Mew! Mew!" suddenly exclaimed Mitten Kitten.

"What is the matter?" asked Bunty.

"Did you see me?" said Mitten Kitten. "I almost caught my tail that time!"

"No, I didn't see you," answered Bunty.

"Watch me! I'll try it again," purred the little pussy. She stood up in the stern seat. She whirled around, making a grab for her tail with her mouth. And then, all of a sudden, the wind blew and jiggled the boat. There was a splash in the water and Mitten Kitten was no longer to be seen.

"She fell overboard! Mitten Kitten fell overboard when she tried to catch her tail!" shouted Bunty.

"I'll save her!" purred the big black cat. Quickly he took off one of his boots. He scooped the boot into Frog Pond like a net. He scooped Mitten Kitten out of the water in his boot. Then he emptied the water out of his boot and with it poor, wet Mitten Kitten.

"Mew! Mew! Mew!"

"Mew! Mew! Mew!" cried Mitten Kitten sadly.

"You'll be all right in a little while, my dear," said Mr. Puss kindly. He shook Mitten Kitten to get the water out of her fur. Then he put her on the stern seat where the sun was warm.

In a little while the little pussy was dry and all right again. Mr. Boots rowed on and on. Then he mewed:

"Here we are at the castle of the Marquis of Carabas."

Bunty saw a beautiful castle on the shore of Frog Pond. She was very excited. Then Puss in Boots said: "You hide here in the boat, Bunty. I am not sure the Marquis likes rabbits."

Bunty felt sad. I'll tell you more about her tomorrow, if the goldfish will give the canary bird a pair of roller skates to ride around the cage to get dry after its bath.

Behind the Mike

—by F. F. B.

What goes on behind the mikes at CKDA? That's a question many of our listeners have no doubt asked themselves. This column, we hope, will be the answer to those questions. In this new week-end radio column you are going to read all the latest news about CKDA personalities and programs. We hope you will enjoy this informative feature and will write us your comments.

Two new voices have been heard on CKDA recently. On the EMPIRE MUSIC HALL, broadcast 9:05 to 9:30 each morning, RAY NICHOLS made his debut. Ray has been in radio for seven years, and comes to Victoria from North Battleford, where he was with CJAB. Ray will soon become a familiar voice to CKDA listeners, as he is featured on the 7, 7:30, 10 and 11 a.m. newscasts, as well as Vogue Furniture's SPORTSCAST at 6:10.

The other new voice hails from New Westminster. Ferdy Bagin is heard every afternoon on the MUSICAL ROUNDUP, from 5:05 to 5:58. Ferdy has been in radio for over seven years, mostly behind the scenes in production and music. He's calling for your requests, birthday and wedding anniversary greetings on his MUSICAL ROUNDUP.

CLUETIME is a feature that was welcomed by all those who have been trying to puzzle out the identity of CKDA'S FAMOUS CANADIAN, heard at 6:30 each evening, some of the clues offered so far have been: Born in Coberg, Ontario; christened LEILA VON KOERBER, and was Marthy in ANNA CHRISTIE. So far $270.00 has been given away for answers to the Advertiser Question . . . but no one has been able to unmask the FAMOUS CANADIAN.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON fans will be happy to hear that RONALD COLEMAN is presenting a dramatized version of THE SUICIDE CLUB on FAVORITE STORY Monday night at 8:30. This program is dramatic entertainment for the whole family . . . at its best.

This week's chuckle is provided us by TOM O'NEILL, who is well known as the barker on the SHOP AND SWAP program (2:05-2:30 p.m.). Tom opens the program with the pounding of a gavel, and his now famous auctioneer's call. One day last week, the head of the gavel came loose and plunged wildly into the air, leaving Tom tapping away with the handle. Fortunately no one was in the way of the descending missile, but if you heard a faint snickering on the air . . . no wonder!

Next week, in this same space, you'll be hearing about some spanking new radio shows that will provide you with many hours of entertainment in the weeks to come.

Prairie Oil News

By C. O. NICKLE
Special to The Colonist

Another $191,471 was added to the Alberta Government's treasury during the week-end, when it accepted bids on 5,370 acres of Crown Reserve oil and gas rights on 30 quarter-section parcels and one full section of wildcat lands in the province.

The Government's biggest item at the sale, which was held on August 24, was eight Redwater quarters and five Leduc parcels which brought in $8,370,926 in cash bonuses. Cumulative revenue from this last sale, including the prices paid for the proven oil lands, semi-proven and unproven tracts, was boosted to $8,561,097 when the results of the wildcat sales were announced.

CASH BONUSES

The Alberta Government has received a total of $55,586,538 in cash bonuses from the sale of Crown Reserve oil and gas leases since the beginning of 1946, according to data compiled by The Daily Oil Bulletin. Of that total the Redwater area alone has brought in $49,254,695, while the Leduc-Woodbend area sales showed a revenue of over $2,500,000.

The first eight months of this year brings the Government's take from "C.R." sales to $32,852,541, compared with $15,568,556 during the full year of 1949, and $3,164,441 during the year 1948.

Since the beginning of the current fiscal year which started April 1 and has seven months to go, the Alberta Government treasury has received $23,730,365 in cash bonuses from sale of Crown Reserve oil and gas rights. The full fiscal year ending March 31, 1950, brought in $22,879,736 in bonuses from Crown Reserve sales, while that of 1949 brought $6,955,437, and 1948 fiscal year, $20,000.

WILDCAT SALES

The wildcat "C.R." land sales on August 24 ranged from $1,643 to a high of $24,160 per quarter-section. Highest single bid accepted was made by the Crown Trust Co. for C.R. tract 414, a quarter-section in the Halfway Lake-Clyde area, bid in for undisclosed interests. Shell Oil Co. put out a total of $42,223 in cash bonuses for lease on two quarter-sections in that same vicinity, C.R. parcels 418 and 415.

One of the hotter quarter-sections purchased at the sale is in the New Norway area, about 1¼ miles west-northwest of Socony Vacuum Exploration Co.'s recent Flint No. 1 Devonian oil discovery well. That parcel, No. 406, was purchased by Socony for $18,001 in cash bonus. The British American Oil Co. Ltd. obtained three legal subdivisions in the Stony Plain area, C.R. 417, for $6,101. Pacific Petroleums Limited was the successful bidder on two quarter-sections in the Huxley area, about 28 miles southwest of the Stettler oil field, and paid $8,101 per quarter.

Other successful bidders on various tracts spread throughout the province include: Globe Oil Co. Limited; Amerada Petroleum Corporation; Canadian Gulf Oil Co.; Great Plains Development Co. of Canada Limited; Canadian Superior Oil of California Limited; Leduc West Oil Co. Ltd.; New British Dominion Oil Co. Ltd.; and Royal Trust Co. (for undisclosed interests).

GOOD NEWS

Western Canada's oil industry was presented with good news this week when The California-Standard Company clicked with a Devonian reef oil discovery at its Acheson wildcat north of the Leduc-Woodbend field. Socony-Vacuum Exploration Company made an important Devonian oil discovery at its Flint wildcat about 35½ miles southeast of Leduc-Woodbend, and extension successes were registered at the Campbell basal Cretaceous sand field and the Joseph Lake Viking sand field.

Unwelcome news, however, was beginning on August 22 of a nation-wide railway strike which will hit the oil industry in much the same way it is disrupting all other phases of the Canadian economy.

The Acheson discovery was made in top of D3 zone with initial drillstem test of interval 4,962 to 4,973 feet bringing a flow of 36.5 degrees A.P.I. gravity crude oil at rate of 702 barrels daily. The Cal-Standard well is nearly four miles north-northwest and considerably higher on D3 than the Imperial Stony Plain discovery well, which recently found a thin section of oil-bearing D3.

Stony Plain, after perforating one foot at top of D3, flowed at rate exceeding 100 barrels daily this week, and is being placed on pump to determine potentialities. If Acheson has tapped the same reef—a reasonable possibility—a new large oilfield may be in the making a few miles west of Edmonton. The Acheson well is deepening and testing at intervals in D3, to determine thickness of pay.

SOCONY DISCOVERY

The Socony discovery, made at Socony-Flint No. 1 wildcat, in the New Norway area, about 12 miles southwest of Camrose, ran its initial drillstem test from 4,500 to 4,514 feet, and gave a flow of around 34 degrees A.P.I. gravity crude at a rate of 700 barrels daily. The Devonian horizon in which the discovery has been made is not yet determined. Coring and testing is now continuing at Flint No. 1, with current depth 4,520 feet.

Meanwhile the railway strike has forced shutdown of hundreds of oil-wells at Redwater, Leduc and other central Alberta fields, by ending means of transport from field to refinery. Leduc is operating in part, delivering oil by pipeline to the Imperial Edmonton refinery. Turner Valley field, delivering by pipeline to Calgary refineries, is not affected.

DELIVERY HALTED

The rail strike has halted the normal delivery of casing, cement and other materials vital to drilling operations. As a result, as many as one-third of the 125 rigs currently active in the West may be forced to suspend operations on completion of present wells over the next month. Should the strike be of long duration, the oil development and production industry may be temporarily, but effectively, paralyzed.

Meanwhile, to the limit of pipeline and truck transport facilities (and ability of refineries to make deliveries), production operations will continue. Development and exploration will also continue, so long as needed materials can be secured and delivered by means other than rail.

The "creeping paralysis" of Canada's economy being created by the rail strike will, it is hoped, be ended by government, management and union compromise in not too long a period.

When the strike is over, the normal high tempo of oil industry activities will be resumed. In the interim, developments such as the Acheson and Flint discoveries will help to make the long-term future brighter.

NEW COMPLETIONS

Twenty-three more Alberta wells received their answer during the past week, 20 of which were completed as oil wells, one gas well, and two failures. Total completions since the first of this year now stands at: 443 oil wells, 25 gas wells, and 120 dry holes.

The prolific Redwater field brought thirteen oil well completions during the week. Five of the new producers were drilled by Imperial Oil, four by the Pacific Petroleums Group, three by Western Leaseholds, and one by the Seaboard-Honolulu-Barnsdall team.

At Leduc, Imperial placed another four oil wells on production and Okalta Oils started another producer on flow. Farrel Oils, Alberta independent, failed to find production at its exploratory test four miles west of Leduc, and abandoned the venture.

The lone Stettler completion this week was placed on production by Canadian Gulf Oil Company, while Excelsior Refineries completed another Lloydminster oil success.

A group of Calgary independents and individuals placed the High Crest-Long Island-Campbell No. 1 gas well on production. That well, located about two miles southeast of Campbell oil production, is rated as a substantial natural gas producer from the lower Cretaceous horizon.

The other failure this week was drilled by Aberdeen Oils Limited of Edmonton, as an east extension effort in the Excelsior area

Strikes Curtail Steel Output

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27 (AP).—Token strikes on several small railroads last week cost the steel industry about 180,000 tons of ingot production, Steel magazine said today.

National steelmaking plummeted ten points to 90 per cent of rated capacity, the metal-working weekly reported. This was the lowest rate since last March when the coal miners' strike crippled the industry.

Meanwhile, civilian goods manufacturers are "playing all the corners" to build up steel inventories, Steel said. "Consumer pressure never was greater."

"While military requirements are expected to take no more than four per cent of the nation's 100,000,000-ton production potential, steel buyers anticipate acute supply shortages in the various products."

43 YEARS' RAILROADING

WINNIPEG (CP).—E. S. Reeves recently retired after 43 years of railroading. He joined the Canadian Northern Railway in 1907 as a freight carpenter. He was made assistant foreman of the passenger car shop in 1911 and in 1923 was made freight car shop foreman, a position he held until his retirement.

Ss. Nootka, Coastal Fleet Workhorse, Thought Sold to South America Firm

Ss. NOOTKA

Within a week or ten days the C.P.R. is expected to announce the sale of the veteran coastal freighter Nootka, often referred to as the "workhorse" of the company's coastal fleet.

A deal involving the sale of the 2,069-ton freighter has been under way for some time, and may be completed this week. No details have been announced regarding the purchaser or the price paid, but it is believed the ship has been sold to South American interests. A new crew for the freighter is scheduled to arrive here some time this week.

Before leaving this coast, the Nootka is to proceed to Vancouver for a load of lumber.

The old ship has been jointly operated over the past several years by the C.P.R. and Frank Waterhouse Co. Until her "retirement" some time ago, the ship was operated between Vancouver, Woodfibre and Port Alice.

Nootka has served 23 years with the C.P.R. coastal service. Starting her career originally as the Empress of Port McNicoll on the Great Lakes, the ship was launched at Port Arthur in 1919. Later she operated on the East Coast of Canada as the Canadian Adventurer, before coming to this coast.

U.S. Business Upsurge Hit by Labor, But Increasing Stock Costs Forecast

By THEODORE KOSLOW

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (INS).—The business upsurge in the United States has been slowed by labor troubles in the week just past.

Immediate repercussions were felt in the basic automobile and steel industries where production fell off sharply. However, the certainty that the Government will intervene promptly to end the spreading labor disputes before the situation gets out of hand was expected to bring about a turn for the better in the near future.

Federal seizure of the nation's railroads to avert a halt in operations as a result of the scheduled strike of trainmen and conductors was viewed as a sample of the stiffening Government attitude toward labor strife in this critical period.

MILD RELAPSE

Meantime, the stock market has finally suffered a mild relapse after five successive weeks of advance. The loss for the week was relatively small. The Dow-Jones industrial averages were down $1.13 a share; the rails were off 96 cents; and the utilities were down 43 cents.

The nation's automobile industry suffered the most damaging blow during the week as a result of strikes at Chrysler plants involving 20,000 workers, and at Packard Motors, where 8,000 workers were affected.

Automobile News placed production this past week at 172,396 vehicles, made up of 141,293 passenger cars and 31,103 trucks. This was the lowest total in three months and represented a drop of 11,638 units from revised figures for the preceding week when 152,263 passenger cars and 21,771 trucks, for a total of 184,034 vehicles, came off the assembly lines.

STEEL INDUSTRY

Steel industry operations were lowered nine and one-half points this past week to 90 and six-tenths per cent of capacity, as a result of walk-outs at key railroad terminals. This production rate was expected to turn out 1,747,400 tons of steel, as against 1,930,800 tons the week previous.

It was the lowest output for any week since last March when strikes in the coal industry handicapped the makers of steel.

Department store sales around the country continued their trend toward normalcy after the "scare" buying which followed the outbreak of fighting in Korea. Nationwide sales in the week ended August 18 were up 12 per cent over a year ago, as against a gain of 26 per cent the week before, and a maximum rise of 48 per cent at the height of the buying spree in July.

Freight traffic on the nation's railroads in the week ended August 19, was the highest for any similar period since November, 1948, for the second week in a row. Total car cars, or 16.4 per cent greater than loadings of 851,025 cars were 115,810 in the same week last year.

POWER PRODUCTION

Electric power production in the week ended August 18 set a new high record for the fifth consecutive week. Production of 6,360,830,000 kilowatt hours was 14.2 per cent greater than a year ago, as compared with a gain of 13.1 per cent over 1949 the week before.

Business failures showed a declining trend in the week ended August 17. Dun & Bradstreet placed casualties in this period at 186, as against 194 the preceding week and 193 the same week last year.

Wall Street analysts attributed the relative stability of the stock market this past week in the face of the rash of labor troubles to a belief that no new aggressive Russian moves are in prospect.

Thus, they argued, armament expenditures for the Korean fighting would provide a strong stimulus to America's already booming economy, and at the same time, would not be great enough to shut off the production of peacetime goods such as took place during the World War.

Recognizing the inevitability of higher taxes, these observers pointed out that no matter how high taxes may go, it was almost certain that the value of the dollar will decline during the years immediately ahead.

As a result, it was their contention that the long trend of stock prices was definitely upward.

Formosa Threat Starts New Wall Street Jitters

By LESLIE GOULD
I.N.S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (INS).—The stock market has had a renewed case of war jitters—but very mild in comparison to that of two months ago.

The selling came when stocks had recovered to within what the market letter writers call the "38th Parallel"—the level from which the list broke on the North Korean sweep over the 38th parallel.

The selling started on the Pacific Coast, which is more sensitive to developments in the Pacific, and was on the Chinese Communists, announced threat to "liberate" Formosa.

TREASURY BATTLES

While the United States Treasury, faced with the need to sell billions of bonds to finance the war is battling to keep money cheap, there is a general firming of interest rates.

The failure of the Administration to cut its non-defence spending is not helping the treasury. Unless the buying power of the dollar is maintained, many feel there is no reason to buy bonds except on patriotic grounds. Nor is there any reason to save money.

The United States is headed for a terrific inflation, unless the Government practises economy.

Food prices now are at the highest point in two years, and this is due chiefly to the Agriculture Department's farm support program and Government holding off the market vast stores of essential foods.

The following table shows the week's range and the net change from a week ago of the Dow Jones' stock, bond and commodity futures indices.

	High	Low	Close	Net Change

U.S. SHIPBUILDING

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26 (AP).—American shipbuilders on the Great Lakes anticipate their busiest Winter since early in the World War.

Construction has begun on two car ferries and at least four new freighters will soon be started.

Car Pioneer Dies at Home

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 26 (INS).—Ransom E. Olds, founder of two auto firms and the last of the automotive industry's pioneers, died at his Lansing, Mich., home today.

The 86-year-old auto magnate had been in gradually failing health for some years but was not confined to bed until July 26 when he was stricken at his Lake Charlevoix, Mich., Summer home.

Olds made his first automobile, a three-wheeled, steam-propelled vehicle, in 1891. His first gasoline buggy was built in 1894.

He was the first inventor in this country to inject gasoline directly into a motor cylinder.

His most famous car was the curved-dash Olds runabout that made the first journey from San Francisco to New York. It was this Olds that inspired the popular song, "In My Merry Oldsmobile."

Olds established Detroit's first automobile factory and was producing as many as 5,000 cars a year when the late Henry Ford was still struggling to get started in business. He pioneered in volume production and his "Olds" works in Detroit was turning out 4,000 of the 14,800 automobiles in the United States in 1903.

Grains Turn Firmer In Winnipeg Trading

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26 (CP). — All grains were firmer in trading today on Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Trading was dull.

Moderate shipper demand in oats and barley included shipping interests. Some American accounts entered into oats. Rye was mostly a local trade and it moved up in sympathy with the other grains.

Main factor affecting trade was the rail strike and the uncertainty of grain shipments.

Class 2 wheat, for export to countries outside the International Wheat Agreement, was unchanged. No export business was reported today.

Hospital Costs For Americans Show Increase

CHICAGO, Aug. 26 (U.P.)—One out of every eight Americans was a hospital patient last year, according to the American Hospital Association.

In its annual survey of 5,000 hospitals, the association found that there were about 18,000,000 patients in 1949.

The cost of caring for a single patient in a general hospital, the association reported, averaged $14.33 a day. The figure compared with $13.09 in 1948 and $11.09 in 1947.

CAME CLOSER

The income of the nation's general hospitals as a whole came closer to meeting costs of care, however, than in 1948, the association said. Yet the income per patient in all hospitals was $2.50 per day less than it cost to care for them, the survey showed.

Patients in short term non-profit hospitals paid $136,126,000 less than the hospitals' expenses, the association said. The deficit amounted to $1.56 per patient for each day's care.

Money to cover the deficit came from endowments, contributions and Government payments.

Hospital expenditures were up $300,000,000 over 1948, reaching a new high of $3,000,000,000, the survey showed.

Canadian Companies Drop Quietly Because of Railway Strike Condition

By FRANK KAPLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock prices this week suffered their first setbacks in six weeks. Five successive weeks of advance followed the sharp market break when fighting started in Korea were brought to halt.

Labor troubles worried traders. The rail strike in Canada stalled markets and threat of a strike in the United States left Wall Street wary.

Selling was not heavy. Key issues, leaders during the five weeks of advance to new high price ground, were hardest hit.

CANADIAN COMPANIES

Canadian companies specially vulnerable during the rail tie-up sagged quietly. The market axiom of "never sell on strike news" held sway for a short time following the beginning of the strike but traders gradually unloaded as the week progressed.

Paper stocks encountered considerable selling and steels and refining oils weakened. Early in the week Canadian industrial markets climbed to new peak levels in continuing previous gains. However, two days of decline wiped out these mild gains and the lists slipped into plus territory.

INDEX DECLINES

In Toronto the exchange's index of representative industrials yesterday showed a decline of 3.23 from the previous Friday.

Otherwise the Toronto market brightened. Gold stocks came into their own following two weeks of dull, narrow dealings for a gain of 4.73 on the index. Base metals gained 2.47 despite selling late in the week and Western oils rose .79 in irregular trade.

Papers paced the Montreal market into lower ground. Changes on the averages were: banks off .22; utilities up .4; industrials off 3.7; combined off 2.4; papers off 8.87; golds off 1.27.

ACTIVITY SLOWS

Activity slowed considerably from recent weeks. Industrial volume was 293,962, as against 337,000 shares the previous week and mines, 955,217 as against 1,367,869 shares.

New York was held in check Monday and attempts to extend a Tuesday rally failed. Prices pushed slightly higher Wednesday but danger of a rail strike left traders wary Thursday. A sudden rush of morning selling yesterday pushed leaders sharply lower for the worst drop in six weeks. The Associated Press 60-stock average finished the five days trading at 76.4, a loss of .7 from the previous Friday.

Grain markets moved in a narrow path. In Chicago, September wheat and oats eased slightly while soybeans gained. In Winnipeg, October oats, rye, flax and barley gained.

Metal Supply Shortages Spur Gray-Market Deals

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP).—Prices of several metals climbed higher last week as supplies became harder to find and buying pressure continued strong.

Two copper sellers advanced refined copper prices two cents a pound. All suppliers boosted lead one cent a pound.

Premium-price or "grey-market" deals in metals were becoming widespread. Platinum and quicksilver, for example, were reported selling so far above the established market prices quoted by major suppliers that those quotations were considered wholly nominal.

ALL COPPER SOLD

Nearly all the refined copper available for delivery this month and next has been either sold or earmarked for regular customers. Many customers are paying substantial premiums to obtain metal from secondary sources.

Orders on copper producers books call for August delivery of about 108,000 tons, and nearly 50,000 so far for September.

Demand for lead continued strong as ever at the new price of 14 cents a pound established last Monday.

Zinc continued tight with the voracious demand far from satisfied.

TIN FLUCTUATES

Tin continued to fluctuate sharply, reflecting the movements of the Singapore and London markets, and finished the week with a net gain of three cents a pound at $1.05, New York.

Major no-ferrous metals prices:

Copper—22.50-24.50 cents a pound, Connecticut Valley. Foreign, 22.50 cents, New York.

Lead—14 cents a pound, New York; 13.80 cents, St. Louis. Foreign, 13.75 cents, nominal, Gulf of Mexico ports.

Zinc—15 cents a pound, East St. Louis; 15.72 cents, New York. Foreign, 17 cents, nominal, Gulf of Mexico ports.

Nickel—48 cents a pound, electrolytic cathodes, Port Colborne, Ont.; 51.22 cents, New York.

Silver—72.75 cents an ounce, New York; 63.5 pence, London.

Tin—$1.05 a pound, New York

First Crude Oil For Pipeline Starts Flowing

EDMONTON, Aug. 26 (CP).—First Alberta crude oil is flowing today in part of the 1,127-mile interprovincial pipeline which eventually will carry the fuel to the Great Lakes at Superior, Wis.

The oil entered the system yesterday as the first pump went into operation at the Redwater pumping station, boosting the oil along a 30-mile line to storage tanks at the Edmonton pumping station. The 16-inch line was completed earlier this week.

SIX TANKS

Pipeline officials said plans call for filling the six 140,000-barrel tanks at Edmonton by late October, to have the crude ready to flow into the pipeline to Regina when that section is finished.

The span between Edmonton and Regina is almost eight-tenths completed and is further advanced at this stage than the other two spans between Regina and Gretna, Man., and between Gretna and Superior, Wisconsin.

The oil movement is expected to bring some restoration of oil production at Redwater. Wells were shut down when the railway strike cut off tank-car shipments, main outlet for the field's oil.

NOT CALCULATED

The new line can handle 100,000 barrels a day under maximum pressure, but only one pump is yet in operation and the rate of flow has not been calculated.

About 40,000 barrels of oil will be needed to fill the Redwater-Edmonton line. This is about one and one-half days' output at present rate.

The golden fleece got its name from the fact the ancients trapped gold dust floating down the river by submerging a sheep fleece in the water and catching the dust.

Drilling Started By Great Plains

Great Plains Development Company of Canada Limited has staked its first exploratory well and will get drilling under way at once. A second exploratory well will be announced soon.

Over the next few weeks will come other announcements of Great Plains exploratory projects.

With sponsorship of a group of leading investment houses of Canada and the United States, $10,000,000 was raised for Great Plains Development in April from the sale of notes and capital stock in the two nations. That sum was raised with the low underwriting discount and sales commission of 4.5 per cent despite the fact the company had not a single acre of land or a barrel of oil reserve or cubic foot of gas reserve.

The company's first drill test will be at Smoky Lake, around 60 miles northeast of Edmonton, and some 25 miles east of the Redwater oilfield. Great Plains will drill the well under an agreement with the Seaboard Oil Company of Delaware group, for a 50 per cent interest in the well and a substantial portion of two adjoining reservations.

Canada's Biggest Talent Search Gets Under Way Next Month

THIS WEEK'S RADIO

Canada's biggest talent search gets under way next month.

From September to June, in C.B.C. studios from coast to coast, more than 700 men, women and children will get a chance to prove what they can do before a microphone. If you're a regular C.B.C. listener, you'll eventually hear about 70 of them.

One of the busiest audition centres for announcers is the C.B.C.'s Vancouver studio, where 150 to 300 voices will be tested. A typical audition will go like this

The candidate is called for his audition, and his qualifications are listed. If he's interested in drama, C.B.C. provides a supporting actor or actress, if he's a vocal artist, an accompanist is found.

UNSEEN

From the auditioning studio the candidate's voice is piped to another room where a panel of three judges rates his ability according to a point system. The judges, all professional artists, don't see the applicant or know his name.

The applicant's voice is graded under personality, tonal quality, showmanship and emotional appeal for a maximum possible score of 80

A score between 70 and 80 means the applicant is ready for broadcast work; from 60 to 69 indicates he shows promise but needs more training. Under 60, he's out.

If the applicant hits between 70 and 80 he's placed on a call list, and told he'll be notified when he can be fitted into a program. A 60 to 69 grade gets him another audition in six months.

CONSTANT NEED

C.B.C.'s top dramatic shows, like Stage 50, are constantly in need of new talent, but it must be of professional quality.

C.B.C. develops talent not by teaching radio arts, but by providing a paid outlet for Canadian artists. Producers will, however, groom new talent if the artist shows unusual promise.

Hundreds of adults turn up for auditions, but surprisingly few children apply. Youngsters are needed for shows like Cuckoo-Clockhouse and Doorway in Fairyland.

John Dunlop, supervisor of children's programs, says otherwise talented tots often score low marks in audition because they orate instead of talking naturally into the mike.

BIGGER THINGS

Youthful Hugh Curtis' teen-age show Spotlight on Youth, heard over CJVI, may be the beginning of bigger things.

Hugh is playing with the idea of building a Winter season variety show to replace Spotlight, which ends its first season September 21.

The Summertime talent show has turned the spotlight on Spotlight's originators. Hugh and his production crew have been asked to stage a half-hour variety show four times a day for a two-day service club carnival next month

C.B.S. STRIKES BACK

Striking back in the network talent war, C.B.S. last week plucked Harold (The Great Gildersleeve) out of the N.B.C. lineup and signed him to a seven-year radio and TV contract.

A new Peary show called Honest Harold will be written into Columbia's Autumn schedule, and a television series is in the planning stage

The Great Gildersleeve show will be retained by N.B.C. It is due back on the air next week with Willard Waterman in the title spot

Also making news last week with network contracts were Billy Rose, Ginny Simms, Chico Marx and Jack Kirkwood

Impressario Rose signed a long term contract to provide a weekly half-hour dramatic series, Billy Rose's Playbill. Scripts will be based on original short stories appearing in his syndicated "Pitching Horseshoes" column

Ginny Simms comes out of retirement today to open the doors of her Song Shop on A.B.C. The American net also announced a breezy musical-comedy series, 'The Sugar Bowl, starring Chico Marx on its TV Channel 7

Kirkwood inked a five-year contract with Don Lee Broadcasting System for a daily half-hour comedy package worth $500,000. The show debuts October 16

BENNY RETURNS

Comic Jack Benny and wife Mary Livingstone are back in Hollywood from a two month European holiday. Highlights of the trip for Jack were dinner with Prince Bernhardt of The Netherlands and a chat with Pope Pius XII.

Hitch-Hiking Trip From Bermuda Low-Cost Vacation for Visitor Here

Railway strikes don't bother one visitor to Victoria.

He arrived in the city last night after walking and hitch-hiking from Bermuda.

Stocky, 23-year-old Keith Bower is living in keeping with his job as a physical education teacher at Hamilton's Saltus Grammar School in Bermuda.

He left there June 29, spent a few days in New York and then set out for the wide open spaces.

COST $100

Forty-three days and 14 states and provinces later, he arrived here—at a cost of $100.

Keith left his native Chester, England, one year ago, to take the three-year job as physical education instructor at Hamilton.

Anxious to see as much of the country as he could, he collected $170, a 50-pound pack, a couple of pairs of shoes and then set off.

Both Keith and the shoes have held out admirably.

He has needed only one re-sole job for his jaunt and has been greeted with friendliness everywhere.

"Everyone has been very friendly and anxious to help me," he said.

On the back of his pack are the words. "British Student Touring U.S.A."

Keith figures that the wording has helped him get many of his lifts.

TRAVELS IN SHORTS

He travels in Bermuda shorts and a striped T-shirt.

Camping out overnight, he has been able to cook many of his meals, but at times has resorted to nearby restaurants. He has visited a few national parks on the way, and on one occasion, became a bit over-friendly with a bear

"I threw the bear some food into the branch of a tree

"He climbed up and stayed there for a couple of hours—unfortunately, he was perched right above my pup-tent.

"I had some uneasy moments," said Keith

His cross-country route has taken him through New York State, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, across from Port Angeles to Victoria.

KEITH BOWER

A side-trip took him into Tiajuana, Mexico.

While in Victoria, he will stay with Fred Billett, 408 Dallas Road Mr. Billett is a relative of Keith's family.

OFF AGAIN TUESDAY

On Tuesday, it's back to the road again.

Keith is scheduled to return to his teacher's role at the 200-student school by September 18. He has a plane reservation from New York City.

Next year he plans a jaunt to the West Indies and, possibly, South America.

He thinks he'll add a bit of luxury to the journey next year a bicycle.

Plan Educational Campaign On Rights of Pedestrians

AN "educational campaign" in which emphasis will be placed on responsibilities of motorists, may soon be launched in Victoria under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce Tourist Bureau.

Many drivers in this city are apparently not aware of the rights of pedestrians while they are within pedestrian lanes, said Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the tourist group. He said in practically all other cities he had visited, motorists came to a stop when approaching an occupied pedestrian lane . . "but certainly not so in Victoria"

He wondered what had happened to the Greater Victoria Traffic Safety Council, "which got off to a great start, then died about as suddenly."

Aussie Win Starts New Net Dynasty

Bromwich, Sedgman Blast Schroeder, Mulloy In Doubles to End U.S. Davis Cup Mastery

By CHARLES EINSTEIN

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug 26 (INS).—A new dynasty of tennis supremacy—one that may endure for years—exploded into being at Forest Hills today in the hands of a stellar Australian pair who wrecked America in the doubles and won the Davis Cup hands down.

That magnificent golden-maned hero, Jack Bromwich, played like an octopus in a swivel chair, and his forceful young partner, Frank Sedgman, buried Ted Schroeder and Gardnar Mulloy, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

With that extended but forlorn result vanished America's last hope of retaining the cup it won from the Aussies in 1946 and had defended it with ease since.

The United States lost two straight-set singles verdicts to Sedgman and the 21-year-old Ken McGregor yesterday, and thus needed victory not only in today's doubles, but in tomorrow's two remaining singles—which now become meaningless—to hold onto the garish silver mug.

FORESEES SWEEP

There now loomed, indeed, the baleful possibility that the crack 22-year-old Sedgman will take Schroeder tomorrow, and that McGregor, Schroeder's upset conqueror of yesterday, will belt Tom Brown, Jr. This would give the Aussies a clean five-match sweep of the 1950 challenge round.

The story of today's deciding doubles, played before 11,000 hope-against-hope fans in the sun-broiled concrete horseshoe at the West Side Tennis Club, was not so much a question of individual talent as it was a matter of association.

Bromwich and Sedgman played doubles as doubles should be played, Sedgman galloping youthfully from net to baseline as the play suggested while Bromwich roamed the forecourt in deadly majesty.

DOUBLES OR TRIPLES?

As for the Americans, there were too many occasions when, instead of playing doubles they played triples—each man facing not only the two Australians, but his own partner as well.

Time and again, Schroeder and the gangling Mulloy would find themselves trapped at hand-shake distance in one restricted area leaving much of the court exposed.

When, aware of this faux pas, the Americans studiously attended to separate sides of the court, the canny Bromwich and the fleet Sedgman split them down the middle with rocketing ground shots.

BROMWICH THE MASTER

If there was an individual star, it undoubtedly was Bromwich, master of the tactical volley and strategic move. It was his wily work, more than anything else, that established the key points where Australia broke through the harder-hitting Americans.

But it was quite a match, nonetheless. The American pair played on sheer force to win the opening set 6-4 after losing the first three games.

Then the steadying pressure of Bromwich asserted itself, and Schroeder and Mulloy found themselves no match for his intrigues. The Aussies ran the second and third sets, 6-4, 6-2.

AMERICANS RALLY

Frantic play by the Americans salvaged the fourth set. Leading 5-4, with all games having gone on service, they stood down 40-0 on Sedgman's serve in the 12th game only to break through for five straight points, two of them gorgeous smashes from the racquet of Mulloy, to win the set 6-4.

But Mulloy, just as resolute though not so accurate as Schroeder, proved the United States' undoing in the final set.

The Miami, Fla., veteran lost his service on the third game, hitting the net twice with backhand tries after the point score score stood at 30-30. That did it. Games went with service to the final dramatic close out.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

The minute a young baseball player signs a contract with the New York Yankees' organization, his education as a Yankee begins. He is never permitted to forget that being a Yankee is the ultimate goal of his career, that being a Yankee is something special in the baseball world and that he has to be something special if he hopes to be one of baseball's elite—the 25 players who wear the Yankee uniform each season.

Well, there must be something to being a Yankee. Like them or not, you have to admit they are baseball's class club, a club with a tradition and pride so far unattained by any other major league club with the possible exception of the St. Louis Cardinals. Now, with only the remains of a once-great club left, the Yankees are getting a lot of mileage out of that tradition and pride.

The Yankees had no licence to win last season but win they did even though their big three, Joe DiMaggio, Tom Henrich and Yogi Berra, were in the line-up together for only 18 games and scores of other injuries kept Manager Casey Stengel in a dither putting nine healthy players on the field.

Things have been even worse this season. Henrich is playing only occasionally while the ancient Johnny Mize fills in at first base. DiMaggio, apparently at the end of a great career, was only recently benched for weak hitting, and Joe Page is just another pitcher. The remnants of the remnants are almost no more but every time you look at the American League standings, the Yankees are pressing the leaders.

The Tigers have shaken them off half a dozen times this season—but only temporarily. They lose too many games to the trailers and barely escape in others but, somehow, they manage to stick close to the top. Compare them with the contenders position for position and they don't rate. Talk about the pennant race, and you talk about Tigers, Indians and Red Sox. But in the background, and always close, are the Yankees.

There's more to baseball than what goes on out on the diamond and that's what makes the Yankees great. Always feared and often hated, they are always a credit to the game. You might feel that they shouldn't win so often but if you're fair, you will admire them for the effort they give it.

Victoria Girl Marries Tacoma Baseball Star

Dick Greco, slugging Tacoma outfielder, was star in more ways than one as Tigers took double-header from Victoria Athletics at Tiger Park last Thursday. Married to Miss Evelyn Moore, of 735 Wilson Street, Victoria, in pre-game ceremony at pitcher's mound, Greco is shown crossing home plate with his bride after walking through archway of bats formed by Tiger teammates and members of the Athletics. Greco made quick change into baseball uniform and played leading role in A's double defeat. His eighth-inning homer gave Tigers 2-1 win in opener and he scored tie-breaking run in 5-3 victory in nightcap.

Tacoma Tigers faltered last night and Yakima Bears moved into a one-percentage point lead in the torrid Western International pennant race by edging Victoria Athletics, 5-4, at Yakima.

The Tigers fell into the runner-up spot as Rookie Bob Bruenner snapped an eight-game Tacoma victory skein by hurling Vancouver Capilanos to a six-hit, 6-2 triumph at Tacoma. The victory also halted a Capilano losing streak which had reached nine in a row.

EIGHTH IN ROW

Yakima's victory was its eighth in a row and the setback was the fourth straight for the A's on the road. Yakima President Dewey Soriano came to the rescue of Bob Bradford in the ninth and fanned Lou Novikoff with the tying and winning runs on third and second to preserve the triumph.

Before walking the first two men in the ninth, Bradford had contributed three hits himself, batted in the first two Bear runs and kept the A's away from the plate except in the fifth. In that inning, a hit batter, two singles and Novikoff's double accounted for three runs.

The A's and Bears wind up their Yakima series today with a twin bill. Manager Marty Krug will have to decide between Ron Smith, John Marshall, Aldon Wilkie and Jim Propst for his starters. The first two worked Thursday while Propst and Wilkie each saw a little action Friday before being knocked out.

From Yakima, the A's go to Vancouver for three games with the Caps and then return home Thursday to finish the season. The Caps, Tigers and Bears visit for four-game series in that order.

Tri-City Braves lengthened their third-place margin over Wenatchee by handing the Bears their eighth straight setback, 11-8. Relief pitcher Bob Michelson, who came in with the Braves trailing 8-6 in the seventh, doubled home the tying and winning runs in the midst of a five-run Tri-City rally in the eighth.

Home runs by Glen Stettar and Joe Rossi sparked Spokane Indians as they made a move towards vacating the cellar by downing the seventh-place Salem Senators, 7-2.

Upsets Open Season

Riders Swamp Stamps; Bombers Whip Eskimos

From Canadian Press Reports

Two stunning upsets marked the opening of the Western Inter-Provincial Football Conference yesterday with the underdog Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers racking up the Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos, respectively.

Riders swamped the favored Stamps, 26-12, at Regina while Bombers came from behind to top the rebuilt Eskimos, 18-7, in a night game at Winnipeg.

In winning their first game from Calgary in three seasons of play, Riders marched to a touchdown the first time they got possession of the ball and built up an early 10-1 lead over the demoralized Calgarians.

Stamps fought back in the third quarter to narrow the gap to 18-12, but couldn't keep it up and the winners made it safe with a converted touchdown in the final quarter.

CANADIANS SHINE

Two Canadians stole the spotlight in a game between two clubs who imported the best U.S. talent they could find. Home-brew Ken Charlton led the Riders' attack with two touchdowns while Royal Copeland, the expensive Calgary acquisition from Toronto, went over for both the losers' major scores.

Al Bodine and Tony Hungle accounted for the other two Rider touchdowns. Jack Hartman made all conversion attempts good. A rouge, followed a fumble behind the Calgary goal line, was the 25th point. Vern Graham converted one Calgary touchdown and kicked a single for the other point.

Tom Casey and Indian Jack Jacobs, two former U.S. stars, powered the Winnipeg attack. Casey, acquired from Hamilton, scored both Bomber touchdowns while Jacobs scored eight points on a placement, three singles and two conversions.

FIVE BANISHED

Morris Bailey went over in the first quarter for Edmonton's only major score and Coach Annis Stukus converted to give his club a 6-0 lead. A deadline kick by Ken Moore in the last quarter finished the Eskimo scoring after Bombers had rolled to an 18-6 lead. Five players, three of them Bombers, were kicked out of the game for fighting and rough play.

Next game, today: Five C's vs. Cowichan, Beacon Hill.

Deadly bowling by Ted Parkins paced Oak Bay to an easy triumph over Incogs in a Victoria and District League match at University School yesterday. The victory moved Bays into fifth place in the league standings.

Parkins claimed eight wickets, including a hat-trick, for all 12 runs as Incogs were disposed of for only 32 runs. Oak Bay replied with 81 with Parkins supplying a useful 14. Jack Sparks topped the batters with 18 and Hobday added 12. Godfrey Wenman took five Oak Bay wickets for 15 runs.

First place will be at stake today when Five C's and Cowichan meet at Beacon Hill at 2:15 p.m. Victory for the Churchmen will practically assure them of the league championship.

Trial Run Gives Slo-mo-shun Place in Race

DETROIT, Aug 26 (INS).—Slo-mo-shun's 96.72 m.p.h. trial run on the Detroit River today won the "world's fastest boat" a place on the three-boat U.S. team to defend the Harmsworth Trophy next week-end.

The three entries will defend the trophy against challenging Miss Canada IV in Detroit next Friday and Saturday.

The 28-foot Seattle, Wash., entry—holder of the world record for the mile at 160.323 m.p.h. and the winner of the Gold Cup last month—was the only boat to make a qualifying run today.

Among the others expected to try out for the team are Guy Lombardo's Tempo VI, Horace Dodge's My Sweetie, Jack Schafer's two Such Crusts, Al Fallon's Miss Great Lakes and the Dossin brothers' new Miss Pepsi.

The Esquimalt football team will hold a practice at Bullen Park today at 11 a.m. All last year's players and any others interested in trying out for the team are asked to attend.

Jokers, Bays Set to Resume Series Battle

With their best-of-five series for the city senior "B" lacrosse title deadlocked at one game each, Jokers and Foul Bay resume their rivalry at Memorial Arena tomorrow night in a game scheduled to start at 8.30.

Winners of the series opener by a 8-4 score, the Jokers were no match for the driving Foul Bay squad in the second game and dropped a 10-6 decision on the outdoor playing surface of Stevenson Park.

Manager Roy Woolsey, dissatisfied with the loose-checking performance by his Blackshirts in their losing performance, has called a stiff workout for his veteran aggregation this morning and predicts a return to form and a Joker victory tomorrow.

Confidence also reigns in the Foul Bay camp where officials believe their younger boxla artists have found the answer to their opponents' defence and will earn the right to represent Victoria in the quest for provincial lacrosse laurels.

Nanaimo Wins

NANAIMO, Aug 26 (CP).—Nanaimo Native Sons tonight won the third and deciding game of the Pacific Coast Senior "B" lacrosse finals by drubbing New Westminster, 18-6. Nanaimo now takes on Richmond, who received a bye into the playoffs, the winner to meet the best squad from the Interior.

Howie Turner, Ottawa Rough Rider backfielder, is out of action indefinitely due to injuries suffered in practice.

Ferrier Blasts Par To Cop Large Lead

Six-Under-Par 66 Leaves San Franciscan Four Strokes Up on Leonard After 54 Holes

MONTREAL, Aug. 26 (AP).—Jim Ferrier of San Francisco took an apparent stranglehold on the Canadian open golf championship today with a 54-hole score of 201 and a lead of four strokes at the three-quarter mark.

Ferrier's three par-wrecking rounds of 68-67-66, over the par-72 Royal Montreal Course left him a hot favorite to win his first Canadian open title and cart home the Seagram cup. He finished second last year behind Dutch Harrison of Little Rock.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, yesterday's leader, was Ferrier's closest threat with 205. Leonard shot a 71 today.

Leonard couldn't get under par on his first nine today and his shakiness on the outward trip ruined his chances of holding the leadership he set up through 36 holes.

Leonard was out in 37, one over par, but Big Jim made it in 32. Leonard recovered coming home, finishing with a 34 for a third round 71, one under par.

FOUR BIRDIES

Ferrier shot four birdies on the first nine and took a bogey debit only at the par-four fifth where he hooked his tee shot into trees.

He bogeyed the 10th but he ran down birdie putts, one a 20-footer, at the 12th, 15th and 17th.

At the 17th he put his second shot in a trap but exploded out three feet from the cup and got down for his birdie three.

He missed a six-foot putt at the 18th that would have given him another birdie and a 65 for the day.

PAR NOT ENOUGH

Starting his third round Leonard shot eight straight pars, but they weren't good enough against Ferrier's steady sub-par golf.

Then at the ninth Leonard drove into a trap, hit a tree in exploding out and took a bogey five.

He bogeyed the 10th, got his first birdie at the 11th but again went over par with a four at the 180-yard 12th. He got back in stride again at the 13th with his second birdie, went par for the next three and birdied the last two long holes with a pair of fours.

Six strokes off the pace was Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., with 207. Another stroke back was Doug Ford of Briarcliffe, N.Y., with 208.

SNEAD FAR BACK

Sam Snead, top money winner among the Americans and the pre-tourney favorite, shot a par 72 and was far back with 214. Snead made a bid to catch the leaders with a 34 on the first nine holes, but slipped to a two-over-par 38 on the home nine.

Leonard at 205 had a wide margin on any other Canadian. The nearest was Nick Weslock, who makes his home in Detroit but is an amateur golfer from the Essex Club of Windsor, Ont.

Nick working on 139 starting today, shot par 72, his worst round of the three, and had 211 for 54 holes along with Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass.

One stroke better was Marty Furgol of New York Mills, N.Y., whose 68 today left him sole possessor of 210, nine strokes away from Ferrier.

The field, cut last night to 100 lows and ties, undergoes a further cut for tomorrow's final 18 holes with the 60 lows and tied. To qualify, 224 or better is needed.

Top City Golfers Enter B.C. Amateur Golf Meet

After a slow start, entries in the British Columbia Amateur Golf Championship tournament are coming in at an increased rate to assure a good field for the four-day event which will open with a 36-hole qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club on Friday.

According to information received yesterday from R. S. Dyer, secretary of the Oak Bay Club, Victoria entrants now total 17, of which Victoria Golf Club has contributed six, Uplands nine and Colwood two. Several other local low-handicap divoters are expected to join the usual late rush of entries.

NONE FROM GORGE

No entries have been received from the Gorge Vale Golf Club, which boasts such low-handicap stars as Bob Fleming, Vic Lowe, the club champion, John Merriman and Jack Clark. Still missing from the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club are the established stars Harold Lineham, Vic Painter and Bill McColl.

Representing the host club will be Jim Squire, George Bigelow, George Straith, Jr., and juniors John Bigelow, Lynn Thow and Bruce Hughes. From Uplands will come Bob Morrison, city champion; Eric Hibberson, the Vancouver Island Open and club titleholder; Frank Scroggs, Jack Skellern, L. R. Ferris, C. J. Duncan, W. Higgins, Joe Barlow and Paul Phillips.

Entered from Colwood are John Potts and Scott Ker while Gordon Whan will represent the Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

McBEATH ENTERED

Heading the small, but impressive, Mainland contingent is Bill Mawhinney, the brilliant Canadian amateur titlist. Percy Clogg, the defending champion, is again on the starter's list along with another Vancouverite, Haines Fay, and Bellingham's Dave McBeath, who was runner-up for the Washington State crown this year.

Seven or eight shotmakers are expected to enter from Nanaimo and at least two from Powell River as well as several additional Vancouver golfers.

Following Friday's qualifying round, 32 players will start match play on Saturday, with 18-hole matches in both the morning and afternoon. Two more 18-hole matches face the survivors on Sunday. The final on Monday will be contested over the 36-hole route, which means that the finalists in the rugged test will be called on to play 144 holes in four days of golfing.

Running concurrently with the qualifying round Friday will be a team competition for possession of the Hamber Trophy. The winner of the trophy will be decided on the gross scores of four selected men from each club competing.

Von Nida Cops Aussie Crown

ADELAIDE, Australia, Aug. 26 (Reuters).—Norman von Nida today won the Australian Open golf title with an aggregate of 286 strokes. He finished one stroke ahead of 21-year-old Peter Thomson, who broke the course record with a challenging last round of 66.

Von Nida had rounds of 71, 71, 71 and 73. Thomson, eight strokes behind Von Nida at the start of the last round, was out in a brilliant 30, but he just failed to bring off a surprise victory.

Victoria Pair Wins Buttons

John Bigelow and Tom McIlveen of the Victoria Golf Club squeezed through to a 1-up victory over Terry Burns and Tommy Harris at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club yesterday to gain possession of the city junior golf buttons from the Colwood pair.

McIlveen and Bigelow won the final hole of the match to notch their triumph. The winners recorded a best ball of 74 to the former button-holders' 76.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 26 (AP).—Ed (Porky) Oliver, defending champion of the Esmeralda Open golf tournament, paced the 79-man field with an eight-under-par 64 on the first 18 holes of the 72-hole $2,500 tourney today.

Harold West of Portland was second with 69. Bud Ward came home with a par 72.

Dizzy Becomes the People's Choice at 35

NEW YORK, N.Y.

In the thirty-fifth year of his life and his twelfth season as a Tiger pitcher, Paul Howard Trout, now affectionately known as "Ole Dis," finds himself the baseball idol of Detroit, the man of the day and hour, the People's Choice at Briggs Stadium. They are celebrating Trout Day in Detroit on Labor Day and the bespectacled righthander will be presented with a new automobile and other gifts.

They didn't always love him like that. There were years when the customers would not even have given Trout a wiping rag for his car.

All that has been forgotten and the one-time Trout booers are now members in good standing of the Trout Marching and Chowder Club.

When Ole Dis won only three games while losing six last year, it looked like the end of his major league career. There were frequent stories of proposed trades in which his name was involved. It is true that the club did try to trade him, but, fortunately for the Tigers, the deal fell through.

Manager Red Rolfe used Trout as a relief pitcher last season and the veteran objected to the role. A story out of Miami last January quoted Ole Dis as announcing that Detroit could either use him as a starting pitcher or trade him. He was no relief pitcher and his 3-6 record proved it. The reason he failed as a relief pitcher was that his curve ball was not good enough. Relief pitchers must have good hooks to get along "I'm through with the bullpen," declared Trout.

He did not know that the club was trying to trade him (he had mentioned preference for the Yankees or Red Sox) and was geting nowhere with the Yankees and Red Sox or any other club. So Trout started his twelfth season as a Tiger pitcher—in the bullpen.

That is where he lingered and it was not until May 5 that he scored. Working as a relief pitcher against Washington, he got credit for a Tiger victory.

Proves He Can Win as Starter

Twenty-three days later, with the starting pitchers ailing from one thing or another, Trout started against St. Louis. He went 11 innings and won, 2 to 1.

Since then he has continued as a winning starter, giving new life and spirit to a club that looked ready to fade, setting an example for his mates.

His popularity is not based upon his remarkable comeback this year, but something that has developed gradually. Old Dis is one of the most generous of men. He never refuses a plea for help. Much of his time is spent doing favors for others. He goes miles out of his way to do good turns. He is a leader in all charity drives and he contributes a great deal to make them succeed. He is always one of the first to volunteer in any worthy cause.

Old Dis first reported to the Tigers in Spring practice in 1937, after Detroit purchased him from Indianapolis.

At first he was not effective as a pitcher, but was highly entertaining as an individual. When not pitching, it was his habit to sit in the grandstand and amuse the spectators with rare tales.

When Trout reported, he was asked how he came to acquire the nickname Dizzy, and he explained:

"It ain't because I got as much stuff as Dizzy Dean, but on account of my talking as much as him. Anyway, everybody says I do. So just call me Dizzy, or just plain Dis."

He Tries on Old Stories, Finds They Fit

We recalled his original explanation of how he came to be nicknamed Dizzy a few days ago when we read an interview with Trout. A Detroit sports writer asked how he got the name and Trout said:

"I got it the day I ran under an awning out in left field when it started to rain. When they revived me, I discovered the awning was just an ad painted on the brick fence. I've been 'Dizzy' ever since."

Showing that Ole Dis retains the habit of adopting stories and applying them to himself. That awning story is something like 15 years old and was originally told on Babe Herman.

Trout has never succeeded in completely curbing his temper. It still flares at times. On one occasion he tried to sock Del Baker when Baker was manager of the Tigers. He challenged Hank Greenberg when a ground ball skipped through Greenberg's hands while Ole Dis was pitching. He landed a punch on Hal Newhouser, his pal for years. In 1944, Newhouser and Trout formed the best one-two pitching punch in baseball. Between them they won 56 games (Newhouser 29, Trout 27), Trout pitching 353 innings, Newhouser 312. In the voting for most valuable player, Newhouser finished first with 236 points and Trout was second with 232.

Ole Dis has had his ups and downs and everybody in Detroit seems happy that he is up again. They are pulling even stronger for him today than they did in 1944, when he and Newhouser missed winning the pennant for the Tigers by a single game.

Dot Kielty Captures Title In Second Major Triumph

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26 (AP).—Dot Kielty of Los Angeles won the Canadian women's open golf championship today for her second major golf title in three weeks.

Miss Kielty bested the defending champion—Grace De Moss of Corvallis, Ore.—3 and 4 in a scheduled 36-hole final over the St. Charles Golf Club course. The Los Angeles star three weeks ago won the Tam o'Shanter—billed as the world championship amateur tournament.

The victory resulted from a steady climb from the 23rd hole on. Miss Kielty went two up on that hole, was three up on the 25th, went ahead one more on the 27th and finally gained the concession on the 32nd.

semi-finals, Miss De Moss had been

On the basis of play to Friday's favored to retain the title she won last year at Vancouver. She defeated Mrs. Eddie Bush of Hammond, Ind.—4 and 3 in one 18-hole semi, while Miss Kielty had a three-and-one victory over Babs Davies of Vancouver, only Canadian to advance past the quarter-finals.

Relay Re-Run At Brussels Won by Russia

BRUSSELS, Aug. 26 (INS).—Russia won the re-run of the disputed 400-metre relay semi-final today at the European track and field championships.

The Russians fared even better than they had originally in the race that nearly caused them to walk out on the meet two days ago. They objected to re-running the race then, but improved their second-place finish when they nosed out Iceland in 41.7 seconds.

The heat was ordered repeated when Britain protested its disqualification due to a technicality. The British finished third today.

Czecho-Slovakia's Emil Zatopek set his second European Games record when he won the 5,000-metre event in 14 minutes, three seconds.

Holland's Fanny Blankers-Koen won the 80-metre hurdles in 11.1 seconds.

Closing date for entries in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association, Sept. 15, 1950, for the 1950-51 season. For further information contact J. Allen, G 3706, Secretary.

Six Soccer Clubs Retain No Loss, No Tie Records

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Reuters).—A half-dozen soccer teams kept their unbeaten, untied records intact today as the English League season ended its first week.

The six were Coventry City, Blackburn Rovers, Manchester City, Nottingham Forest, New Brighton and Lincoln City. All have won three games.

Rochdale slipped out of the charmed circle by playing to a 1-1 draw against Stockport.

No unbeaten teams remained in the First Division, where Charlton Athletic and Middlesbrough shared the lead with five points each.

Middlebrough whipped Chelsea 3-0 while Charlton drew 0-0 at Blackpool.

Arsenal and Tottenham Hotspur tied 2-2 in a game that drew a capacity 60,000 fans to Highbury Stadium.

Coventry, Blackburn and Manchester were bunched on top the Second Division with six points each.

The Rovers beat Luton Town 1-0 and Coventry edged Preston North End by the same margin while Manchester City thumped Bury 5-1.

In the Southern half of the Third Division Nottingham Forest was alone in the lead with six points after defeating Norwich 4-2.

New Brighton and Lincoln City shared the Northern section lead. New Brighton nosed out Hartlepools United 1-0 and Lincoln City beat Shrewsbury Town 2-1.

In Scotland play continued for the League Cup, annual curtain-raiser to the season proper. Highlights were a 6-1 drubbing Rangers handed Morton and a cloudburst at Dundee that halted a match against Hibernian after 70 minutes.

The visitors were leading 2-0 when the game was abandoned and dripping spectators headed for the exits.

McKay Heads Marksmen At Heals Range

Shooting consistently at the 200, 500 and 600-yard ranges, W. B. McKey of the Garrison Rifle Club paced marksmen in the weekly shoot at Heals Range yesterday.

McKay scored 32's at the 200 and 500-yard ranges and wound up with a 33 at the 600-yard mound for a total of 97 out of a possible 105.

Fred Billcock of the 75th (B.C.) H.A.A. Regiment scored 33's at the shorter ranges, but faltered to a 29 at the 600-yard distance to finish two points back.

Other scores follow

75th Regiment—Lieut.-Col. F. Moore, 34-34-26—94; H. Crosine, 31-31-30—92; C. Hobson, 30-30-33—91; G. O. Sherwin, 27-32-32—91; Sid Rabey, 30-31-30—91

Alberni Canal Yields Angler Heavy Catch

Hartley Brown of Port Alberni Friday recorded the finest one-day catch of the Alberni Canal angling season when he weighed in five tyee salmon. The fish, all taken in the early morning hours, weighed 26¼, 32½, 29¼ and 28¼ pounds.

However, none of the fish was large enough to qualify for a prize in this week's Port Alberni Tyee Club fishing contest. Harold Turner's 85¼-pounder, caught Wednesday, appears the likely winner of the weekly competition, which closes Sunday evening.

C. H. Brown is currently in second place with a 42½-pound tyee that he landed yesterday morning.

Golf--- Here's How

By SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

Here's the way you should swing a No. 3 or 4 iron. Notice the ball is positioned slightly forward of centre. You need no divot with the straight faced clubs No. 1, 2, 3, 4. The more lofted the iron, the more open the stance should be and the closer the heels should be together. And, of course, the more lofted the iron, the shorter the club shaft, so that you should stand nearer to the ball. The shorter the shaft the more perpendicular you should make the swing and the shorter is the backswing. If the highly lofted irons Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8 are correctly swung you inevitably take some divot because the clubhead does not reach the low point in the arc of the swing until just after clubhead meets the ball.

Cooper Declared Winner In Rain-Shortened Race

With the R.C.M.P. in possession of their "slick" tires and with rain threatening all evening, local big-car drivers piloted their machines remarkably well on stock tires and almost completed their program before a smaller-than-average crowd at Langford Speedway last night.

Rain finally began to fall steadily during the main event and the slippery condition of the track caused Starter Bob Wensley to halt the feature race when 18 of the 30 scheduled laps had been completed. Dave Cooper, who was breezing along with a comfortable three-quarters of a lap lead, copped the event with Brownie Brown second and Vern Bruce in third place.

Cooper emerged as the big winner of the night, by throttling his No. 8 car to two firsts, two seconds and a third. One of his wins was scored in the five-lap backward race in which the contestants drove their machines in the reverse direction of the track.

LIST CHAMPIONSHIPS

Manager Bruce Passmore announced that stock-car racing will return to the speedway next Saturday night and the Canadian big-car racing championships will be held at the Langford layout on September 4.

Results follow:

Helmet dash: 1, Eddie Kostenuk; 2, Jack Spaulding; 3, Dave Cooper. First heat: 1, Brownie Brown; 2, Johnny Murray; 3, Corky Thomas. Second heat: 1, Kostenuk; 2, Cooper; 3, Spaulding Third heat: 1, Brown; 2, Thomas; 3, Fred Rudd. Fourth heat: 1, Spaulding; 2, Cooper; 3, Vern Bruce. Backward race: 1, Cooper; 2, Brown; 3, Thomas. Main event: 1, Cooper; 2, Brown; 3, Bruce.

Southern Loop To Hear Fate At Vancouver

SEATTLE, Aug. 26 (AP).—Directors of the Pacific Coast Hockey League plan to decide Thursday at a meeting in Vancouver if a southern division will operate this year in California

Adoption of a schedule and selection of officials also will be on the agenda.

The league head office here said today it was reported that "new interests are ready to operate in San Diego and that Fresno and San Bernardino are prepared to play."

If Los Angeles agrees to operate with a four-team southern division, said the office statement, "it is more likely that the division will continue to play."

The directors also will discuss the need for a spare goalkeeper for northern division teams.

Reporter Bought $205.60 for Dollar When Eternal Reward Won Derby

(The race was worth $109,210 and the horse was a 102-1 shot. But that didn't keep him from winning. Flash back with International News Service to the day Eternal Reward won the American Derby of 1946.)

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (INS).—The boys were sitting in the press box at Washington Park in Chicago that afternoon of August 26, 1946, waiting for the running of the $109,210 American Derby, the season-ending classic for three-year-olds.

The door opened and one of their colleagues came in. He looked thunderstruck.

"I made an awful mistake," he said, "I went down to bet Number Ten and I asked for Number Eleven instead. What am I going to do with this ticket?"

Number Eleven was up on the odds board at 99 to 1. That's as high as the numbers run on a tote board

"Here," one of the newsmen said, "I'll buy the ticket from you for a dollar. That way you only lose a buck. Is it a deal?"

"You're darn right it is," the first reporter said, and forked over the ticket.

UNFORGETTABLE

Nobody who was there that day will ever forget it. Number 11—a colt named Eternal Reward—won the American Derby at actual odds of 102-to-1. To the man who'd paid a dollar for the "losing" ticket—and to every other bettor among the 36,000 crowd who had Eternal Reward to win—he paid $205.60.

If you bet him for place, you got a mere $70.20. If you bet him for show, you came back with a miserable $20. If you bet him $6 across the board, you won $295.80, and if you bet $10 to win, as at least one person did, all Eternal Reward paid back was $1,028.

CLASSY FIELD

There were some great campaigners in the 12-horse field for the American Derby that day. Many of them, like Spy Song, With Pleasure and Athenia were familiar Kentucky Derby names.

Louis B. Mayer's tremendous California flash Honeymoon was in the field. So was The Dude, winner of the Arlington classic—the race where triple-crown winner Assault ran dead last.

When they started the mile-and-a-quarter run from the automatic gate in front of the bright green grandstand, Bobby Campbell, aboard Eternal Reward, had his mount out of the gate tenth in the field of twelve.

All eyes were up front, where Spy Song and The Dude were fighting it out.

Then it was Dixiana's swift Spy Song, all by himself in the back stretch. The announcer ran off the names of the following horses. He didn't mention Eternal Reward. Eternal Reward wasn't up there.

THE STRETCH RUN

And then, as they came into the long, long home stretch, Spy Song began to veer, as was his custom. Through the daylight came Hal Price Headley's Pellicle and The Dude, fighting for the lead.

It was going to be one of them.

Oh, no, it wasn't. Up from absolutely nowhere, out in the middle of the track and smashing between horses came Number 11—Eternal Reward. His withers dripped sweat as the clever Campbell went to the bat.

It sounds fantastic, but the other horses seemed to be standing still. In those last few strides Eternal Reward, fifth entering the stretch, moved to a point where he won the race by two and a half lengths!

Today, Eternal Reward has been retired to his first season as a stud horse, at White Owl Farm in Lexington, Ky.

The fee is $500 per live foal.

And it might just be worth it.

O.C. Cricket

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Reuters). — Surrey made a good start to its vital county cricket championship match against Lancashire at the Oval today.

Lancashire, which needed only to take four points from a drawn game to make sure of the championship, dropped its England left-arm bowler, Bob Berry, in favor of a 19-year-old amateur fast medium bowler, T Dickenson.

Close-of-play scores in matches today:

At Lords—Middlesex, 236 for four; West Indies to bat.
At Taunton—Worcestershire, 148 for nine; Somerset to bat.
At Swansea—Warwickshire, 88 for two; Glamorgan to bat.
At Southend—Essex, 179; Derbyshire, 144 for three.
At Oval—Lancashire, 221; Surrey, 31 for one.
At Portsmouth—Yorkshire, 306 for four; Hampshire to bat.
At Dover—Nottinghamshire, 187; Kent, 100 for one.
At Leicester—Leicestershire, 198 for four; Sussex to bat.
At Northampton—Northamptonshire, 193 for three; Gloucestershire to bat.

Compete at Shawnigan Next Week-End

Lin Ivey of Seattle, shown relaxing in his Poison Ivey in which he won Pacific Coast "F" class hydroplane championship, will be one of many top American drivers competing in Western Canada Outboard Championships at Shawnigan Lake next week-end. First two-day meet to be held on Vancouver Island, regatta has attracted 40 Canadian and American entries with boats which attain speeds in excess of 65 miles per hour and generate horsepower up to 70. First and second heats will be run Sunday and third and four heats on Monday.

Army to Free Cricket Player

LONDON, Aug 26 (Reuters).—The British Army today got into the fight to salvage Britain's cricket repatation, shattered recently by victorious Australian and West Indies teams.

It decided to release 19-year-old Brian Close, a draftee, because England will need him this Winter to do test match battle against Australia

The Yorkshire bowler and batsman is the youngest cricketer ever picked to visit Australia for the England-Australia encounters.

Committee Raising Fund For Wally Smith Benefit

Friends of Wally Smith, one of Victoria's best-known sports figures, are rallying to the aid of the popular softball and basketball mentor.

Smith has been ill for several months and a long convalescence is in prospect. A committee, headed by Frank Ireland, has been set up to raise a benefit fund to offset hospital and incidental expenses. Other members of the committee are Ernie Fields, Vern Davidson, Sid Knott, Wynn Elford and Gordie Hartley.

The committee has completed arrangements with Business-Manager Reg Patterson of the Victoria Athletics to hold a night for Smith at the game on Friday between the A's and Vancouver Capilanos. The committee will sell tickets to the game and all proceeds above a set figure of admissions will be turned over to the Smith Fund.

ASK VANCOUVER AID

Visiting W.I.L. clubs are entitled to 40 per cent of the net gate but Patterson hopes to complete arrangements with Vancouver boss Bob Brown to accept 1,200 admissions as the figure on which his cut is based. If Brown fails to approve the 1,200 figure, Patterson hopes that at least the average crowd of 1,500 will be acceptable.

A number of prizes to be presented to fans have been donated by city merchants.

Friday was the only date available for the night but the committee feels that it will not be held in opposition to the Inter-City Lacrosse League play-off between Indians and Shamrocks at Memorial Arena as the boxla game is an assured sellout in any event.

Detroit Tigers retained their slim margin in the American League pennant race yesterday while Philadelphia Phils lost ground to the onrushing Brooklyn Dodgers in the National Individual stars were Bob Lemon of Cleveland Indians, who became the first 20-game winner in the majors, and Roy Campanella of Brooklyn, who drove in six runs with three homers.

ROY CAMPANELLA

The Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox, 8-6, to snap an 11-game Boston win skein. An error by Johnny Pesky opened the floodgates and the Tigers scored four unearned runs in the ninth to break a 4-4 deadlock. Boston charged back in the bottom half of the inning, scoring twice and loading the bases before Hal Newhouser came in to force Vern Stephens to pop out to end the game.

BERRA SHOWS SPEED

New York Yankees edged St. Louis Browns, 3-2, to remain a game and a half off the pace Yogi Berra, batting star of the recent series against Detroit, scored the winning run from second base as Hank Bauer beat out an infield single to deep short in the ninth.

Lemon scored his 20th win in a relief role as Cleveland edged Philadelphia Athletics, 6-4, to remain in a virtual tie with the Yanks. Lemon, fifth Indian hurler, was judged the most effective by the official scorekeeper. He came in with one out in the eighth and a runner on third and retired the side. He yielded a single to open the ninth and struck out the next three batters to preserve the Indians' one-run margin.

PIRATES BLAST PHILS

Pittsburgh scored all its runs in three big innings as the Pirates shattered a five-game Philadelphia winning streak by trouncing the National League leaders, 14-4. The loss also snapped a seven-game win streak for Philly Pitcher Robin Roberts, who was tagged for his sixth setback against 17 victories. Wally Westlake's three-run homer in the third started the Pirate assault.

Campanella paced the Dodgers to a 7-5 triumph over Cincinnati before a slim crowd of 6,269. He hit for the circuit in the second, fourth and eighth innings, each time with Gil Hodges aboard. The Dodger victory, coupled with Philadelphia's loss, moved the Brooks within four games of the pace-setters

The Dodger victory was costly, however. Outfielder Jim Russell suffered a leg injury in a fall in the sixth inning and Erv Palica, winning pitcher, sustained a bruised foot when Lloyd Merriman stepped on it as Palica was covering first.

Vern (No-Hit) Bickford had little trouble raking up his 16th victory as Walker Cooper paced the third-place Boston Braves to a 12-4 victory over Chicago Cubs by walloping a grand-slam homer and three other hits.

New York Giants moved to within a game of the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals by blanking the Redbirds, 3-0, as Sal Maglie posted his 12th victory and his seventh in a row

Five Win Ladder Rungs As Cowichan Derby Ends

Cowichan Bay presented a busy scene yesterday morning as anglers made a last attempt to catch one of the bay's big spring salmon and qualify for a run on the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's second annual "Ladder Derby."

Five of them made it, knocking off as many anglers who had hoped that their catches would win them a chance to fish for the $200, winner-take-all prize in the special fish-off on Saturday, September 9. Earning their chances yesterday were Ed Ricketts, Cowichan Bay, who topped the day's catches with a 32-pound, 12-ounce fish; John Menzies, Cobble Hill; Earl Beresford, Vancouver, and Joe Chadwick and E. Lavers, Duncan

38-POUNDER TOPS

Dennis Gaunt took the top rung with a salmon weighing three ounces over 38 pounds, while Doug Peden, who caught his fish after several unlucky trips, managed to catch the 50th rung with the 24 12-pounder he boated Friday morning. Fourteen of the 50 fish went 30 pounds or over while all but two topped 25 pounds.

Most of the lucky anglers are from Cowichan Bay, Duncan and Cobble Hill. Qualifying Victoria anglers included in addition to Peden are P. Curtis, Mrs. Pat Hallberg, J. Spencer, Pat Frumento and Jim Tang

Two Americans, Mrs. Bill Culliton, Seattle, and H. Johnston, Arcadia, Calif., and two Vancouver men, J. Keirs and Earl Beresford, were among the qualifiers, which included six fair-sex anglers.

Qualifiers in order and the weights of their fish follow:

1—Denis Gaunt, Cowichan Bay, 38 3
2—Jeff Mereen, Cowichan Bay, 33 13½.
3—T. Kilpatrick, Duncan, 33 10½.
4—F. W. Costin, Duncan, 34 8½
5—Ed Ricketts, Cowichan Bay, 32 12.

Sailor Catches Record Spring

An Esquimalt naval man, C.P.O. Malcolm Pearse, Friday reeled in a 54-pound tyee salmon at Comox Bay to record the biggest catch of the season in that area. The Royston side of the bay yielded a 43-pounder to 15-year-old Harold Banks of Cumberland.

With the Comox waters harboring one of the biggest tyee runs of recent years, catches between 40 and 50 pounds have been commonplace during the past two weeks.

Urzetta Wins on 39th

Jinx Follows Stranahan In U.S. Amateur Tourney

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug 26 (INS).—Slamming Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N.Y., outlasted husky Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., tonight to win the national amateur golf title 1 up on the 39th hole of the final match at Minneapolis.

Urzetta, a 24-year-old former basketball star at St. Bonaventure in New York, held Stranahan even after 36 holes of play and was even-Stephen with the muscular British amateur champion on the first two extra holes.

He got into trouble on the 39th, pushing his tee shot into a bunker. He came out into another across the fairway just short of the green but rallied to par the hole while Stranahan had a bogie six.

Stranahan, after going out of bounds on the fatal 39th, hit his second down the middle and his third short. He chipped 16 feet short of the pin and then missed the putt by 7 inches.

LONGEST YET

It was the longest final match in the 50-year history of the tournament.

The result was heart-breaking for Stranahan, who was trying for the first "little slam" since the days of Bobby Jones and Lawson Little

The Toledo strong boy fought the poised Urzetta all the way. The biggest margin the powerful New Yorker held was 3 up, an edge he kept for two holes after he won the 22nd with a par.

Stranahan came back to even the match at the 27th-hole mark, with a par on the 25th and a birdie on the 27th.

Urzetta then went 1 up again on the 28th when he dropped a 15-foot birdie putt. Stranahan evened that up on the 33rd hole with a birdie four, while Urzetta had bunker trouble and settled for a par.

TENSION CLIMBS

Then came the pressure holes. The tension mounted until it finally broke on the 38th hole. Here Urzetta rammed in a 2½-foot putt after Stranahan missed a 20-footer by seven inches.

For Stranahan, it was a sad finish. He has tried to win the tournament six times and has failed on each occasion.

For Urzetta, it was his third try. Last year when the tournament was held in his home town of Rochester he went to the fifth round before he was eliminated.

Tennis Continues At Camosun Club

Doris Fielder scored an exciting straight set victory over Betty Carson and Jean Grant won from Gladys Rowbottom in a hard-fought three-set battle as play continued in advanced rounds of the Camosun Tennis Club championships at the Kingston Street courts yesterday.

Today's draw follows:

2 p.m.—Jim Bowes and Sid Gaunt vs. Stan Rowbottom and Greg Harvey.

3 p.m. — Tom Wilson and Toad Garnet vs. Norm Dixon and Will Browne-Cave.

4 p.m.—Mary Wall and Andy Anderson vs. Margaret Heap and Stan Rowbottom.

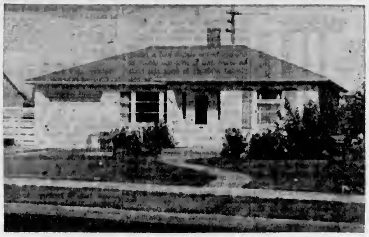
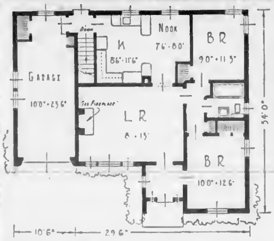
OIL SALES

Revenue from sales of oil and gas in Alberta for the first five months of 1950 averaged $195,843 daily, up from daily average of $143,735 in the same period in 1949.





HOUSE No. 621

Eric Jones has been responsible for a number of interesting Canadian house designs, and the bungalow shown here is a splendid example. The exterior is particularly pleasing to the eye. House, with garage contains about 22,300 cubic feet. Vestibule and living-room floors are covered with grey broadloom. Fireplace mantel stretches full width of living-room, surmounted by a panel of black, cardinal pattern wallpaper. Built-in bookshelves and china cupboards flank the fireplace beneath the mantel. Hearth is of wine-colored tile.

Complains Tools Stolen From Car

Theft of tools valued at $300 from his car while parked Friday night on a Johnson Street parking lot was reported to city police by G. W. Clark, The Ranch, Cordova Bay.

Clark said the car had been broken into between 8 30 and 11 p.m.

Missing in addition to the tools were two blankets, a traveling bag containing personal effects, a jack and other articles.

NOTHING TO IT

EDMONTON (CP).—An Edmonton woman found a novel way of repairing her radio. She threw it out the window. A neighbor picked it up, took it home and plugged it in. The radio worked like a charm. He phoned police about his discovery and they returned the radio to its original owner.

The Kitchen Makes the Home

SPACE FOR FOOD PREPARATION

The kitchen is primarily a workshop, in use much of the day, every day, and it is one of the most dangerous areas in the house. Although falls are responsible for the greatest number of accidents in the kitchen, the use of fire and the presence of gas and hot liquids are hazardous. Many accidents are the result of methods of food preparation such as deep fat frying or the use of sharp knives. Adequate, well-organized work and storage spaces will considerably reduce accidents, which may be anticipated in crowded space, and fatigue will be reduced if activities can be carried out easily and comfortably.

Housekeeping is relativley simple in a family of one or two persons, but the average homemaker spends nearly 40 work hours a week in a home without children. With the first baby the load shoots up 50 per cent. Common complaints of homemakers and their desires for changes refer mainly to poor planning of work surfaces and storage spaces, and the inadequate size of the kitchen as a whole, rather than to any need for additional gadgets. Quite properly, more attention has been given to minimizing drudgery in the kitchen than in any other area of the house. Studies of steps and motions made, and resultant rearrangements of equipment and changes in dimensions can make kitchen work less tiring and time consuming.

Experts have proved that 72 inches is the maximum height reached without difficulty and a span of 48 inches can be encompassed. A work space 48 inches across and 44 inches up and down permits a worker to function without bending over, stooping, squatting, climbing or reaching excessively. Shelves too close to the floor, or higher than 72 inches, do not fit these maximum work curves. Shelf space should be concentrated in a horizontal zone about one foot off the floor to a little over eye level. Higher shelves involve climbing on stools or chairs, which introduces a fall hazard, and lifting strains may occur if shelves are too low.

Equipment and storage spaces should be arranged to promote ease and efficiency in the successive operations which follow the general pattern of removal from storage—food preparation — food service — dishwashing — return to storage, keeping in mind the three classic work centres: one for food preparation, close to the refrigerator; a second for serving dishes, hot pots and pans, adjacent to the stove; and a third for dishwashing, near the sink; with all materials, utensils and articles needed at each centre within reach. A stool or chairs is necessary and space for an additional chair is advisable. There should be ample circulation space for two persons to work without stumbling over each other.

The storage problem is particularly acute in the kitchen area, with much equipment and many supplies in relatively constant use making most of the storage space "live." The most important storage provision is that for preservation of fresh foods. The refrigerator should be large enough to contain a week's supply of perishable foods, if marketing is done weekly. It must hold two days' supply of milk and, in Summer, bottles of cold drinks. Minimum sizes, recommended are five cubic feet for two to three persons, six cubic feet for four to five persons and eight cubic feet for six to eight persons.

Most kitchen storage space is now designed in the form of built-in cabinets, shelves and cupboards, which may be combined structurally with the sink, drainboard and refrigerator. Standardization of equipment has made the problem largely one of choosing and assembling. If adequate storage facilities are not provided as part of the regular kitchen equipment, space should be allowed for free-standing units. Where a utility room adjoins the kitchen, it may be used for storage of some supplies, although space for articles used recurrently should be close at hand.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE WORD "FOYER" AND "FOCUS"

The reader who asks for the origin of foyer—"Is it a French word?"—brings up a very interesting subject.

"Foyer," a common term today to denote the little entrance chamber to an apartment, the lobby, does come into English through the French—from the Latin source, "focarium." And "focarium" is "fireplace." So the foyer started as the location of the fireplace.

What is perhaps especially interesting about this item is that it leads us to the word focus; here too we go back to the hearth. This is a direct derivation, "focus" being straight Latin for "fireplace" or "hearth." It echoes remote times when the fire was the centre of home life, in the sense that now the focus of anything is its central point.

Travelers to countries where homes are still dependent for warmth chiefly upon the fire on the hearth may point out that the "remote" times of the fire's importance in daily living are still with us. What is in the mind of this researcher, however, in employing the word "remote," is a world where people lived in huts with the fire in the centre of the "room" and an opening in the roof to let the smoke out! Then the fireplace or focus was indeed the centre of the home.

4 CARD OF THANKS

It is with sincere gratitude we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends for the beautiful floral tributes and words of condolence during the passing of our dear wife and mother. — E. Atkin and family.

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received from my many friends in the sad bereavement in the loss of my beloved husband, Aron Iverson. I especially wish to thank Rev. Peckham, O.D., members of the Lake Fire Hall, Saanich Police, Dr. Peterson, Hafer Bros., and the staff of McCall Bros.—Mrs. Gerda Iverson.

I wish to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and relatives who were so exceptionally kind to me during my recent very sad bereavement in the passing of my dearly beloved wife, also for the many beautiful floral tributes and letters and cards received. —Arthur E. Mallett.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement and also for the beautiful floral offerings. Special thanks to Dr. J. G. Patterson, Rev. George Biddle and J. P. O'Neil. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roberts, Raymond and Ernest Rivers.

5 IN MEMORIAM

If you are one who desires to obtain a home of real de luxe quality and one who appreciates a home that is immaculate and decorated with taste, a place where the owner will relate to a few days, then you should see this 7-year-built low bungalow with all commodious rooms. There are 3 bedrooms, a large square living-room and guest-size dining-room, and a streamlined kitchen grouping the functions of preparation to economize effort. The rooms are built around impressive and convenient halls. There is automatic heat and the home is insulated. The stucco exterior is complemented by a charming garden both front and rear. Near a lovely beach, good shopping centre, golf course, bus lines and the best schools. If this description meets your requirement and you want a better home then let us arrange an appointment to view. Please do not request the address. This home is to be sold in a dignified manner by appointment.

OAK BAY YOU CAN HAVE THE BEST

Yes and why not enjoy your 60 years, it's a short time at the best when you compare it with the age of the hills. $16,700 the price of a most gracious and charmingly situated low bungalow in the Mt. Joy and Central Ave. area. There is a sound-proofed, fully self-contained apartment with private entrance that complies with restrictions, and it should return $60.04 monthly that is 6% on $12,000, plus a grand home and the present owner does not see the renter except once a month. Don't be satisfied with less than you can afford.

EXCHANGES

If your present home is too small perhaps an exchange would be to your advantage. In the Shelbourne-Cedar Hill district we have a 14-year-old cedar shake home in immaculate condition throughout, living-room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bathroom down, two fine bedrooms up. Full basement, garage and furnace, on two large lots.
Value $7500

Too large for present owner who will exchange for three-bedroom bungalow on smaller lot in Fairfield or any good district.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

Exchange or sell on terms. Elderly bachelor has a brand new ranch style bungalow in Lakehill, approx. 1,300 sq. ft. floor area. Five lovely spacious rooms, through hall plan, utility room and attached garage, built on a $1,000 lot. Can be purchased on terms or owner will accept small Fairfield bungalow as part payment. Valued for quick business at only $8400

Is this your opportunity?

A MAGAZINE PICTURE IN ACTUALITY

This is a very pretty 5-room shake ranch-styled, hot-water-heated doll's house built with strength and brightly decorated to make your darkest days more cheerful. The expensive engineered hot-water system will keep you toasting on the coldest days and if you are getting older there are no steps to impede your movements. The attached garage with easy-tilt doors broadens the appearance in a charming manner. All this is set off by flowers and lawns and other delightful modern homes. Situated on high ground in [illegible] Heights near the golf course, originally priced at $9,500 it is reduced by the anxious-to-travel owner to a low price with clear title of $8400

LAKE HILL

With four bedrooms are not often to be found in the High Quadra district. We are able to offer a modern home, Tudor style, immaculate throughout and definitely better class property. The ground floor, large living-room, guest-size dining-room, modern kitchen wired for range, master bedroom and Pembroke bathroom is on the through hall plan. Upstairs, three lovely bedrooms, plenty of closets and washroom with toilet and basin. The basement contains laundry room, built-in garage with entrance from spacious drive; and very efficient Oil-O-Matic air-conditioning unit. Two lots give a frontage of 104 ft. and we have been offered $1,000 for 70 ft. of that frontage. This means this outstanding residence can be purchased with 64 ft. frontage for the price $11,950

Appraised mortgage value, $7,000

Dog Pays Visit Every Tuesday

Humans who don't keep their appointments are common but a dog which never misses one, is indeed an oddity.

"Devil," a Doberman Pinscher owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Parker of 2644 Wark Street keeps a regular weekly appointment with a young friend.

Each Tuesday at 10 a.m. Devil arrives at the home of Mrs. Joseph Beesley, 1147 Pandora Avenue. He comes to see Tommy, Mrs. Beesley's five-year-old son.

According to Mrs. Beesley, Tommy found the dog once after it had strayed away from its home.

Supply of Beer In Some Pubs Said Limited

Vancouver Island beer parlors which have been serving only Vancouver beer will probably be out of luck if the present railway strike continues.

On the other hand beer parlors which serve beer from the Island breweries will not face a shortage.

Attempts to obtain beer from the Island brewers have been made by the parlors which sell Capilano beer, but these moves probably will be halted by the strikers.

The striking unions are reported to have made it understood that beer from the Island breweries is only to be sold to regular customers.

Two hotels in the Victoria area which serve only Capilano beer are the Gorge Hotel and the Six Mile House.

The Six Mile House reports that it has enough draught and bottled beer to last about two weeks. The manager of the Gorge Hotel said he had enough draught on hand to last until Tuesday or Wednesday and a sufficient supply of bottled beer.

It was reported that the situation further up the Island is more critical. Most of the Nanaimo beer parlors are said to be supplied by Vancouver.

Youth Injured In Collision

As the result of a collision Friday with the rear of a slowly moving car at the corner of Oscar Street and Linden Avenue, police report that Barry Turner, 15, sustained a broken knee cap and facial cuts.

The driver of the car involved offered assistance but the cyclist said he felt all right.

A hospital check yesterday, however, revealed that he was suffering from a knee fracture and a cut face which required four stitches.

Fails to Stop Theft Suspects

J. Victor Wilson, of 630 Foul Bay Road, reported to police last night that his car had been stolen from a local service station parking lot.

Later in the evening, Mr. Wilson said he saw some youths driving his car on Douglas Street. He made an attempt to stop them but they got away.

ANSCOMB TO OFFICIATE

COURTENAY.—Leader of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative party, Hon. Herbert Anscomb, will be in Courtenay next Tuesday to turn the first sod for the projected $375,000 Provincial Government building in this city.

Mr. Anscomb will be guest at a civic dinner in his honor at the Native Sons' Hall Tuesday noon and after the sod-turning ceremony he and Mrs. Anscomb will be guests at a tea planned by the Comox District Progressive Conservative Association.

Final specifications for the Government building will be completed August 31, according to a statement made by H. J. Welch, Comox M.L.A., in a recent address here.

Tenders for construction of the building will be called early in September.

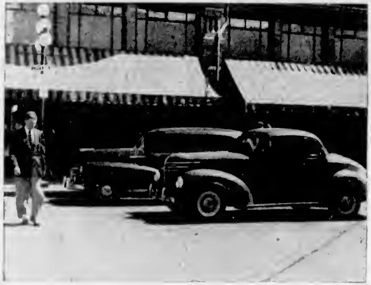
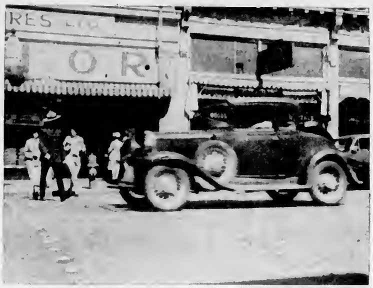
This Driver Stopped...



Courteous driver of above car stopped to allow pedestrian right of way at intersection of Broad and View Streets yesterday. New city by-laws to insure safety of pedestrians makes it mandatory for drivers approaching pedestrian lane without automatic stoplights to stop if people have started to cross street on their side of traffic. One driver didn't bother to obey new laws. Sounding horn, he drove through cross-walk but alert constable took his number.

...This One Didn't



Police are keeping their eyes peeled for this type of driver. Ignoring new by-law, he drove through cross-walk zone as pedestrians started from curb to cross street. Picture was taken across from Harris Bicycle Shop on Fort Street. Hour-long observation at city street corners yesterday disclosed that most pedestrians are unaware of their rights in cross-walk zones. Most drivers are obeying new rule and stop at crossings.

Youths Conquer Mount Waddington

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 26 (CP).—Eight bearded California youths have returned here after conquering British Columbia's highest mountain peak.

They are the third group in history to climb Mount Waddington, a 13,260-foot peak 176 miles north.

The youths, all associated with the University of California and Sierra Club of California, are Oscar Cook and Ray de Saussure of San Francisco; Bill Dunmire, San Lorenzo, Bill Long, Richmond; Dick Houston, Vallejo, and James Wilson, Phil Bettler and Allen Steck, all of Berkeley.

The group was the first in history to climb the northeast face of Mount Waddington. They split into two groups after making camp just below the snow line. One party made a return trip from there to the peak in 17 hours. The other group took 24 hours.

The climbers placed a plastic container, with a scroll listing their names and the date, at the peak—a narrow ridge wide enough for only one man at a time.

One member of the party said, "we searched all over for cairns left by other parties, but I guess the snow would have buried them."

The first ascent of the peak was in 1936. A second party made the trip in 1942.

Provocative Declaration Repudiated by President

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (INS).—President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson today repudiated Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews' startling proposal that the United States start an aggressive war in order to win eventual world peace.

Reaction from Congress, which alone under the constitution has power to declare war, was one of repugnance.

The uncleared remark of Matthews before a huge Boston audience last night which stirred up an immediate international furor was:

"To have peace we should be willing, and declare an intention to pay any price, even the price of instituting a war to compel co-operation for peace."

PERSONAL OPINION

Matthews said his speech was "purely an expression of personal opinion . . . not intended to be interpreted as an official statement of the Administration."

The Navy Secretary said President Truman had no prior knowledge of his address, "and I don't believe the President knew I visited Boston."

When Matthews' statement hit the newspapers and radio waves, Secretary Acheson consulted at once with President Truman.

Thereafter, a State Department spokesman declared formally:

"The statement of Secretary Matthews to the effect that the United States should be willing to start a war to achieve lasting peace does not represent the policy of the United States. The United States Government does not favor starting a war of any sort.

"The speech was not cleared by the Department of State."

White House spokesmen said it had not been cleared there either, and referred to the State Department Declaration as the official pronouncement of United States policy.

Further, the Defence Department declared the provocative speech had not been "cleared by anyone."

PREPARED OWN SPEECH

In answers to three specific questions, the Defence Department declared "Matthews' speech represents his own personal thinking and not that of the Department of Defence or the Administration." It was added the Secretary prepared the speech himself.

Washington observers felt that Matthews' head would fall as a result of his unauthorized Boston speech.

The situation somewhat paralleled that of 1946 when Secretary of State James F. Byrnes forced the resignation of Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Commerce.

While Byrnes was battling diplomatically with the Russians in Paris over Nazi satellite peace treaties, Wallace shocked the Truman Administration by proposing that the United States and Russia set up separate zones of influence. Byrnes, by trans-Atlantic phone, made it an immediate issue, and Wallace's resignation was requested by the White House.

Wallace then set up his own Progressive political party and ran an extremely poor third for the presidency in 1948. Just recently, Wallace resigned from the Progressive Party, finally convinced it was Communist-dominated.

Churchill Hits Indecision On Armed Aid in Korea

LONDON, Aug. 26 (INS).—Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill charged Britain's Labor Government today with indecision and delay in sending ground troops to Korea and for shipping strategic materials to Russia.

In a bitter radio address, the British statesman also charged that Russian inspectors are permitted inside British factories where secret production is underway.

"ANOTHER MONTH"

Churchill referred to the United Nations request of June 27 that troops be sent to fight the Communist invasion of Korea and declared:

"It took the Socialist Government a month to make up their minds whether or not to send an expeditionary force to comply with this request from the United Nations . . .

"Another month passed since the decision to send a small force from here was announced and more than a third month will pass before it can embark for a six-week voyage."

(Editor's Note: Two battalions of British troops sailed Friday from Hongkong for service in Korea. British naval units have been in action since early in the war.)

The former Prime Minister also entered into the current controversy on the shipment of strategic goods to Russia either direct from Britain or by the transfer of goods originally shipped from America to Britain.

He said:

"Surely orders should be given now to stop exports by any firm of machine tools, Diesel engines and the like to Soviet Russia.

(Ronald Janes, chairman of Britain's Board of Trade, disclosed to International News Service Friday that Britain has shipped $38,000,000 worth of machinery and other strategic goods to Russia in the past six months on orders placed two years ago.)

Collieries Engineer Dies in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Aug. 26 (CP)—Frank Swaford, 75, retired consulting mechanical and electrical engineer, died here Thursday. From 1911 to 1916 he was chief engineer for Canadian Collieries in Victoria. He was a former president of the Association of Professional Engineers.

Officers Recall Mobilization

Marking the 11th anniversary of their mobilization in 1939, former officers of the original 5th B.C. Coast Regiment, R.C.A., the 75th H.A.A. Regiment, R.C.A., and the 6th A.A. G.O.R., R.C.A., held a reunion dinner last night at Bay Street Armoury.

Planned originally as a welcome party for guest of honor Lt.-Col. J. H. McIntosh, the party developed into an anniversary reunion only after it was later discovered that his visit coincided with the 11th anniversary of the 1939 mobilization date.

Some of the senior officers who were guests included Brigadier J. P. Preston, M.C.; Lt.-Col. V. McKenna, M.C.; Lt.-Col. M. Aubrey Kent, E.D.; Lt.-Col. W. H. J. Lambert, now of New Westminster; Lt.-Col. T. B. Monk, E.D., and Lt.-Col. C. A. Watson, E.D.

The occasion brought together many of the former officers and N.C.O.'s of the three units who had not seen one another since the early days of the World War.

Lake Freighters Still Delivering

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 26 (CP).—Freighters continued today to discharge cargoes at the Lakehead although none can be delivered because of the rail strike.

Railways officials have a tough problem finding storage space for incoming cargoes. Eighty-six boxcars of marine freight was moved from the C.N.R. freight sheds here yesterday, but a while later the sheds were filled again with new cargo from lake freighters.

For the first time in 20 years the old C.N.R. shed at Fort William was put into use yesterday when the steamship Martian discharged its cargo there.

Blinded Veteran Travels Alone Across Continent

People who have lost their sight will never cease to amaze their more fortunate fellows with the manner in which they can care for themselves.

Another of the more startling feats by these so-called "helpless" individuals was performed recently by John Conway of Toronto. He traveled across Canada alone.

Mr. Conway, 27, was blinded early in the war during the blitz in England.

LEFT TORONTO

He left Toronto August 11 and set out for the west coast. He detoured through the United States, visiting Detroit and Chicago. The latter part of the trip was through the Canadian Rockies.

Mr. Conway is able to see colors faintly through one eye and the early morning sunrise over Lake Louise was a lovely sight he reported.

On the return trip he will travel through the United States, going as far south as San Francisco. He expects to arrive back in Toronto in about two weeks.

Mr. Conway is employed by the Department of Veterans' Affairs in Toronto as a physiotherapist. He learned this profession after his accident.

ALL-MUSICAL PROGRAM

Youth for Christ will sponsor another of its all-musical programs today at 3 p.m. in the Central Baptist Church. Judy Spain, eight-year-old colored singer from Los Angeles, will be the guest soloist.

Seamen Request Rights

VANCOUVER, Aug. 26 (CP)—The Canadian Merchant Navy Veterans' Association has sent to Prime Minister St. Laurent a request that merchant seamen serving in war zones be included in the Veterans' Charter.

The veterans wish benefits for injuries due to war and rehabilitation credits for merchant seamen similar to those accorded recruits of Canada's special brigade.

A. J. Heide, national secretary of the association, said 200 Canadian seamen are serving in the Korean zone, without benefits accorded to regular fighting forces.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland has a population of about 321,171.

BRAVO SIDNEY

"That's all," sed the man in charge of loading the cars on the ferry-boat, about to leave Sidney, V.I., for Anacortes, U.S. "Sorry, mister, but we couldn't squeeze another car on board even if you had rubber mudguards." It was 20 minutes past 6, a half-hour late as the ship backed out, & headed for the San Juan Islands. It was P.M., which also stood for all the Post Mortems in the 40 cars left stranded on the wharf, & away up past the shops in the city centre. The passengers in the cars on the wharf mostly just sat, & gazed at the ferry busily turning about, altho one driver got out, walked over to the railing, looked down in the clear water at a jellyfish, & and then came back, & gave his left front tire a bit of a kick. While he was doing this, his wife had twisted the rear-view mirror, & was busy potting on her lips again. A little way back two other drivers had got out of their cars, and both were resting with their elbows on the guard-rail. One had his long visor cap tilted back on his head, the other his thumb in his braces. Somewhere a child accidentally blew the horn. A lone seagull dipped & screeched overhead. A kingfisher, mad because he missed, took up his post again, on top of a leaning pile. Soon, little groups formed, & others started walking back up the dock. Of course, most of the nearby residents and storekeepers knew what was going on, but . . . UNLIKE . . . the sorry occupants of the 40 cars, those kindly souls in Sidney . . . KNEW . . . what THEY were going to do. A lady that runs a candy shop, approached an older model sedan which was in the line-up, directly in front of her store. "My now . . . what a sweet baby," she said, "funny snull, my married daughter left their crib in our back bedroom . . . & and if you two wouldn't mind sleeping on the davenport?? "Well . . . that's very kind of you," replied the husband & wife, "but ah . . . er . . . what do you charge?" "Charge?" sed the candy lady, "now isn't that just like me . . . guess I didn't ask you aright . . . 'cause we never charge . . . come now . . . the wee thing's gone to sleep?" All up & down the long line, other residents and merchants were unhesitatingly introducing themselves, & people were getting out of their cars, opening up trunks, & rummaging for suit cases. "Yes . . . I'm afraid the auto-courts were filled long ago" . . . "you just couldn't possibly sleep all night in your car, especially with the children" . . . "don't be silly, you won't be putting us out at all" . . . "I'm always telling Molly, our guest room is the best part of our home" . . . "It's not far, we just live up the road a piece" . . . "here, let me help you with your grips" . . . "I've just been dying to have someone sample my new loganberry jam" . . . "Oh, John can sleep in his shorts . . . he won't mind" . . . "you couldn't get a seat in the restaurant, eh?? Well, come on along with me, I haven't had my dinner either . . . hope you like salmon?" . . . "yes, a lot of us Prairie folk live here." And while all these people were meeting one another, the Sidney Rotary Club were proving they weren't just a bunch of the boys who met for lunch once a week, 'cause they were frantically working behind the scenes, & soon had the Veterans' Hall opened up, and then made arrangements for all those who hadn't been invited to homes, to be the very welcome guests of Rotary, in the hall. Beds & bedding were rounded up, and not ONE of the occupants of all those cars had a care in the world that nite, all safely tucked in bed by big-hearted Mr. and Mrs. Sidney, of Vancouver Island, British Columbia. How about laying your paper aside a moment, ah? . . . and what do you say . . . let's give all Sidney . . . A GREAT BIG HAND.

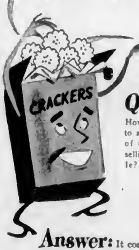
Bet You Don't Know This About Advertising



Quiz No. 6

How much does it cost to advertise a 10c box of Canada's biggest-selling crackers? Is it 1c? 2c? 3c?

Answer: It costs less than 1/10¢. And that's only half the story. Advertising lowers your cost two ways:

Cuts the selling costs. And by helping make mass production possible, lowers the production costs, too.

So advertising saves you many times that 1/10c per box.

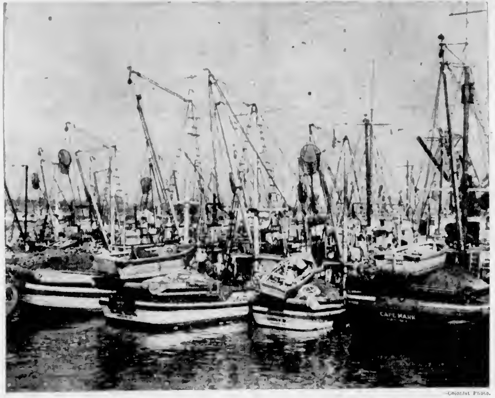
Fishing Ban Brings Scores of Boats to Victoria Harbor



—Colonist Photo.

More than 100 large British Columbia seiners and about 50 packers were tied up at scattered points along the city's extensive waterfront throughout yesterday, as fishermen abided by regulation forbidding commercial fishing from midnight Friday to midnight yesterday in Strait of Juan de Fuca area. They are awaiting heavy run of sockeye in strait expected to reach peak this week. Small section of massed vessels is pictured above, at one of many packed docksites of Inner Harbor.

More Than 100 Seiners, 40 Packers on Visit To Victoria During Brief "No Fishing" Period

—MARINE AND TRAVEL NEWS—

By RAY WORMALD

Seiners, seiners everywhere, and not a fish being caught.

Such a refrain could have applied to the city's waterfront yesterday as more than 100 large British Columbia seining vessels, and approximately 40 packers, massed in the area as a result of fishery regulations aimed at conservation.

During early hours of this morning the vessels gradually left the port, and headed into the Strait of Juan de Fuca where the great Adams River run of sockeye is expected momentarily.

Gordon Barrie, local Federal Fisheries Department representative, explained that the 48-hour closed period for commercial fishing in the Strait of Juan de Fuca has been split into two 24-hour periods. These "no fishing" periods are from midnight Friday to midnight Saturday, and from midnight Monday to midnight Tuesday. This particular fishing area is the only one on the coast where the "2-24" plan is followed.

SOCKEYE RUN BRIEF

The sockeye run is a fast one, Mr Barrie explained, and if the entire 48-hour closed period was marked in the strait, there would be the possibility of practically the entire main run being missed by the fishermen. The sockeye run is heading for Adams River—many miles from the mouth of the Fraser.

It is expected the run will reach its peak sometime this week. Practically all of the salmon caught will be transferred soon after being landed to a packer, then whisked over to canneries in the Vancouver and New Westminster areas.

TAKE ON SUPPLIES

At Victoria yesterday the fishing vessels' skippers and crews were taking on a variety of supplies. At some docks along the Inner Harbor shoreline the boats were tied up 13 and 14 abreast. The congestion created a major headache for harbor master Capt. R. Newell, who said such a large number of craft in the area was not favorable for normal navigation. Absence of C.P.R. ships in the harbor, however, eased the situation.

There were other seiners and packers tied up in large numbers at Sooke, Port Renfrew and other shelters of the Lower West Coast.

Many Victorians journeyed to the Inner Harbor to see the unusual sight—one they might wait a long time to see again.

SPORTS CRAFT STOLEN

Theft of a new 16-foot sports fishing craft from Mill Bay Friday evening is being investigated by police.

L. A. Malleson, of Mill Bay, owner of the missing vessel, said yesterday two men had been seen boarding his boat at its Mill Bay mooring. The rowboat the two men used to reach the 16-footer was tied to its stern, and the couple left the mooring and headed toward Salt Spring Island.

Mr. Malleson said the missing vessel is clinker-built, powered by a three-horsepower Briggs engine. It has a blue canvas top, a blue cabin and a hull painted white above the waterline and red below. The vessel is valued at about $800.

SPECIAL MEETING TUESDAY

A special meeting of persons interested in an improved shipping service for the Gulf Islands is to be held at Galiano Island next Tuesday. Details of the meeting have not been announced.

Discussing the matter, Chamber of Commerce President Fred Hawes remarked "The business of the Gulf Islands belongs to, or should belong to, Victoria." Actually, because of inadequate shipping facilities to and from Vancouver Island, the business of the Gulf Islands goes to Vancouver. It has been estimated there are at least 5,000 persons living among the Gulf Islands.

There was a time, said Mr. Hawes, when the C.P.R. operated three sailings weekly between the islands and Victoria.

For some time now the C.P.R. has had no shipping connection between Victoria and the islands.

CLARIFIES PURPOSE

Mrs E. R. Sayer, former honorary president, and statutory member of the British Sailors' Society of London, England, has clarified purposes of a recent meeting held at the Connaught Seamen's Institute, 106 Superior Street.

Sponsored by the committee of management, representing the British Sailors' Society, the meeting featured the handing over of title deeds to the institution to Capt. O. J. Williams, representative of the Pacific Division of the British Sailors' Society of Canada.

"The British Sailors' Society bought the site on which the Seamen's Institute now stands," Mrs. Sayer pointed out.

"Victoria's own Seamen's Institute was built and furnished by donations, subscriptions and collections," Mrs. Sayer continued. "It must be made clear in fairness to all who contributed in money and kind, and for our own records—Toronto's and London's."

Mrs. Sayer arrived in Victoria in June of 1912, and joined the first guild. Mrs. J. W. Troup was then president.

SALMON PACK

British Columbia's salmon pack has passed the 828,998-case mark, according to the chief supervisor of fisheries. This is an increase of almost 94,000 cases over the corresponding period last year. Retaining its lead in the pack to date is the sockeye species, with more than 259,000 cases packed to date this season.

DELAYING RETURN

The railway strike is presenting a major obstacle to plans of many University Naval Training Division personnel now winding up their Summer training within H.M.C. Dockyard.

Here from various cities and towns all over Canada, the young seamen are confronted with a big transportation problem. Practically all of them had been depending on trains to get them to their homes.

It is understood the R.C.N. is trying to be of assistance.

For two of the U.N.T.D. men, however, the situation presents an opportunity for adventure. They intend to get to Port Angeles or Seattle aboard a Black Ball Ferry Line vessel, then to hitch-hike to San Francisco. After a brief stay there they will head for their homes in London, Ont.

NOT ALLOWED ASHORE

Officers and maintenance crews aboard the C.P.R. ships now at anchor at various locations as a result of the strike, are not being allowed to leave their vessels and go to shore, it was learned yesterday.

The men aboard the ships, it was said, are working regular shifts, with their days off not effective during the current tie-up. Upon completing their day's or night's work, depending on their shifts, the men remain aboard ship until their next work shift starts.

Arrangements have been made however, to have relief personnel aboard the vessels this week should the strike continue until that time.

Most of the ships are anchored in English Bay, off Vancouver. One is anchored in Nanaimo Harbor, and two are stationed in Royal Roads.

SPECIAL YULE SAILING

Victorians planning to visit relatives or friends in England this Christmas will be interested to know that the Cunard-Donaldson Line's Ascania is scheduled to conduct a special Christmas sailing out of Halifax December 13.

In making the announcement yesterday, local C.N.R. Agent Austin Curtis said the vessel will call at Greenock, as well as Liverpool. "This will be an excellent service for those wishing to be in the Old Country for Christmas," he remarked.

It is expected the ship will reach Greenock December 21, and Liverpool a day later.

U.K. TRIPS FROM VICTORIA

Victorians will have an opportunity again early next year of traveling to the United Kingdom aboard ships leaving this port and Vancouver.

Austin Curtis, general agent, passenger department, C.N.R., said yesterday the Donaldson Line vessels Laurentia and Lismoria are each to make a trip to Victoria and Vancouver—via the Panama Canal—from Liverpool.

The Laurentia will leave Vancouver January 20 for Liverpool, while the Lismoria is to depart from the Mainland port on March 1. These same ships conducted similar runs from this coast last year, and with full passenger lists going and coming. Each combination cargo-passenger ship carries 50 passengers, in single and two-berth cabins. During Summer months the ships operate between Montreal and Glasgow.

AORANGI TAKING MAIL

A despatch of parcel mail for Australia, New Zealand and Suva will be made up at the local post office for transmission by the Canadian-Australasian Line's Mv Aorangi, scheduled to leave Vancouver next Thursday, it was announced yesterday by J. B. Sinclair, Victoria postmaster.

Definite times for the closing of this mail may be obtained at the Victoria post office early this week.

DUE AT ESQUIMALT

The United States naval reserve training ship Weeden is scheduled to reach Esquimalt naval base today for a three-day visit to this port. The ship carries a complement of 15 officers and 200 men.

Air Lines Ticket Offices To Remain Open Today

Offices of Trans-Canada Air Lines will be open today between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., to cope with the large numbers of persons requiring transportation to the Mainland. The ticket offices are located at 918 Government Street.

More than 1,100 persons passed through the company's headquarters at Patricia Bay on Friday to establish what is believed to be a record day.

A total of 30 round trips are being flown daily between this city and Vancouver, double the regular number. One extra flight has been added to the two regular ones linking the Island with Seattle.

Leaves at Midnight

Third Sidney Ferry Run Set During Rail Strike

To meet increased demands for shipping services linking Vancouver Island with the Mainland, the Black Ball Ferry Line yesterday announced a third return sailing between Sidney and Anacortes.

George Paulin, local agent for the line, said the extra sailing from Sidney would leave at midnight (Daylight Saving Time), for Anacortes. (The first such sailing was conducted last night). The extra sailing from Anacortes to Sidney will leave the American port at 8 30 p.m. (Daylight Saving Time).

The extra sailing will bring to three the total number of return trips made daily between the two ports. Used in the service are the ferries Nisqually and Klickitat, each capable of carrying 87 cars.

The extra sailings, Mr Paulin stated, will be continued until settlement of the railway dispute.

New Boat-Bus Service to Seattle and the East

A new fast bus service will meet the M.V. Chinook which leaves Victoria at 8 15 a.m., arriving at Port Angeles at 10 30 a.m. where the bus will wait till passengers are loaded, then proceed to Bremerton where you board the ferry to Seattle arriving at Colman Dock at 2 45 p.m.

Here you have plenty of time to catch the 4 30 p.m. bus for Spokane, Nelson, Cranbrook, Lethbridge, Calgary and the Prairie cities. At Bremerton you may continue on to Tacoma, Portland and all points south to California, and from Portland to Eastern United States and Ontario.

This new service gives you the most scenic bus route of the Olympic Peninsula. Make a circle tour of the Hood Canal by going one way, returning another—you will enjoy it.

The Western Canada Travel Service issues tickets and exchange orders for all bus lines of connecting carriers, air line tickets, steamship tickets, rail tours and tickets, hotel reservation orders, hotel and resort reservations, Gray Line sightseeing tours for all Canada and America, and European tours.

Victoria's most complete travel service, our combined fares are always the lowest. Hotel and resort reservations, itineraries are made without charge.

Sea Cadets Given Gunnery Instruction

Instruction in gunnery is included in activity-packed program of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Rainbow," which will open its 1950-51 term September 5. Cadets pictured above are aboard H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, on board which groups of cadets are taken on week-end cruises to Pacific Northwest ports during Summer. Practically all cadets' activities, however, take place at their own headquarters at foot of Robert Street during Winter months.

Hopes to Boost Membership

Sea Cadet Corps "Rainbow" Boasts Success in Producing Good Citizens

Most Victorians have heard of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Rainbow." But few have gained an insight into the actual purposes of the young men's organization.

The corps has played an important role in recent history of Victoria as a seaport, and has provided many distinguished Canadian citizens.

Originally known as the Boys' Naval Brigade, the organization was founded in 1918 by Lieut. W. M. Hotham. Its commanding officer is Lt.-Cmdr. P. W. Tribe, who has held that post for the past 26 years.

SUCCESS PROVED

Today, Rainbow has a membership of about 90 boys, within the age limits of 14 to 18, but it is hoped in time to boost this number to 200.

Purpose of the group is to produce good Canadian citizens, and every effort is made to arrive at this objective. Success of the corps has been proved in many instances, with graduates of past years today holding important posts in the industry and business of the land, and within the ranks of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Officers in charge point out, in an emphatic manner, however, that boys completing the Sea Cadet four-year course are not under any obligation to join the active naval force. They stress that training received by the boys gives them a "solid foundation" for all walks of life.

The program offered these cadets is interesting and educational.

There's much variety. Seamanship, communications, boatwork, sailing, coastal navigation, band activities, gunnery and parade ground programs and first aid are among activities offered the men of tomorrow. An accent is placed on discipline.

AMPLE FACILITIES

Facilities to be found at the corps headquarters—at the foot of Robert Street in Esquimalt—include a parade ground, rifle range, boathouse and docks, two 26-foot cutters, two larger cutters, and two regulation type naval whalers.

Tuesday and Friday evenings belong to the cadets, and it is during a few hours of these nights throughout the Winter months that they profitably spend their time learning much that will prepare them for their futures.

When Summer rolls around the boys find themselves looking forward to such adventures as camping on scenic Gambier Island in Howe Sound, and week-end visits to ports of the Pacific Northwest aboard H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, trim warship of the city's naval reserve division.

"Parents" of the Rainbow are the Navy League of Canada, sponsors of the unit, and the Royal Canadian Navy, which provides equipment and supervision.

September 5 marks the opening of the 1950-51 term for the sea cadets, and any Victoria boy between 14 and 18 wishing to participate can receive full particulars by telephoning G 8442.

Fire Fighting Costs For B.C. Increase

FIRE fighting in the province this year has cost the Government $89,264, an increase of $27,338 over last year, the British Columbia Forest Service reported yesterday.

So far there have been 1,181 fires in the province as against 1,416 last year.

At the week-end there were 34 fires burning. During the week there were 48 new fires and 46 extinguished.

Legion Urges Accommodation For Tenants

The situation involving the emergency shelter camps under the Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee was fully discussed by the Victoria and District Council of the Canadian Legion at its last meeting.

It was understood that the camps will eventually revert back to the Canadian Government or one of its agencies when the Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee ceases to function, September 30.

The council will urge strongly that the Government continue the camps until accommodation is secured for the tenants.

WORK WITH D.V.A.

Members were informed at the meeting that the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion is working out a plan with the head office of the Department of Veterans' Affairs to continue to supply veterans' organizations with copies of the amendments to the Veterans' Charter.

An endorsement was given at the meeting for a resolution requesting the re-establishment of the Canadian Legion War Services, if the present Korean conflict spreads.

Egg Cheque May Achieve Ripley Fame

The story of Comptroller-Treasurer Henry Watson's novel donation to the Juvenile Detention Home may find its way into the syndicated feature "Believe It or Not," which was originated by the late Robert L. Ripley.

An official of the "Believe It or Not" feature has written Mr. Watson from New York asking him to verify the story of his strange gift which took the form of a $15 cheque made out on the shell of a hard-boiled egg.

MADE DONATION

Mr. Watson agreed to make a donation to the Juvenile Home on the request of Alderman Mrs. Margaret Christie, chairman of the social welfare committee. When Mr. Watson declared that he would be glad to make a donation but did not have his cheque book with him Mrs. Christie pinned him down by grabbing the first blank object at hand—a hard-boiled egg—and making out a cheque on the comptroller's bank.

A few days later the bank cashed the "cheque" for Mrs. Christie.

Yesterday Mr. Watson said he intended to mail the copy of The Daily Colonist which carried the story on August 5 to New York with the explanation that "these are the facts."

Theft of Bicycle Reported to Police

Theft of a bicycle belonging to Alfred Lalonde of 1440 Bay Street was reported to city police yesterday.

The machine was taken from in front of the Atlas Theatre on Yates Street some time during the afternoon.

Mariners Told Of Firing at Sea

Mariners are advised surface and torpedo firing practice will be carried out by units of the Royal Canadian Navy from 8 p.m. to 2 p.m. D.S.T. on August 28. The danger area lies approximately between Race Rocks and Discovery Island.

Mariners are also advised that anti-aircraft firing practice with drogue target will be carried out by units of the Royal Canadian Navy from 8 to 11 a.m., D.S.T., on August 28, in the area which lies approximately between Race Rocks and Discovery Island. Mariners are requested to keep out of this area as much as possible during the practices.

LIGHTS RELIT

The following lights have been relit: Tahsis North Narrows Light, Tahsis Narrows, B.C.; Double Island Light, Esperanza Inlet, B.C., and San Jose Light, Barclay Sound, B.C.

The following buoys have been replaced on station: Alert Rock Buoy, Broughton Straits, B.C.; the red spar buoy at the entrance to Whaletown, Cortes Island, B.C., the red spar buoy off the southwestern extremity of Boulder Reef, Sutil Channel, B.C., and the Esperanza Inlet gas and whistling buoy.

Artillery Band Plays in Park

The Parks Board will present the Royal Canadian Artillery Band during the regular Sunday afternoon concert at Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Memorial Pavilion today at 8 p.m.

Sgt.-Major Charles South will conduct the 31-piece band. The concert will feature a varied program of marches, waltz selections and light music.

Permission for the band to perform was given by the officers commanding the local artillery regiments, Lt.-Col. G. P. Paulin and Lt.-Col. J. W. Farnsworth.

The next B.C. Electric band concert will be held at the same place on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

New Thoughts..

So many, many times the shop is asked, "How many different pieces do you make."

Added up they amount to quite a few but that doesn't discourage thoughts on something new.

The dipping room is working on something now.

Hometowners Win at P.N.E.

Victoria's old-time dance orchestra, the Hometowners, yesterday won one first and three second prizes in the International Western Music Roundup at the P.N.E. in Vancouver.

The cash awards totaled $1,200. The Hometowners won a $500 second prize in the world group vocal open category, described by the P.N.E. as the world musical rodeo championship.

The group picked up another $700 with a first prize in the provincial square-dance orchestra event and seconds in the Northwest square-dance orchestra and Northwest group vocal open classes.

Competition between the Victoria group and the Rhythm Pals of New Westminster in the world group vocal event was so close that Roundup judges declined to disclose final scores.

Miners Return to Work As Trucks Replace Rails

NANAIMO, Aug. 26.—Three hundred coal miners went back to work when Canadian Collieries reopened their No. 10 mine on Friday, using trucks to haul the coal instead of the strike-bound E. & N. Railway.

The coal is brought to the company plant in Nanaimo, washed, then transferred to scows for shipment.

Managing Director H. R. Plommer is pleased with the system.

Friday night a large fish packer brought in supplies to a local ice and locker plant.

New schools in the district may have to have their opening delayed because of the strike. In well-advanced stages of construction now, materials such as linoleum and other interior finishings may be delayed.

Only a few tourists are seen in the district and hotels are hard hit. One local hostel reports a 40 per cent decline and cancellations coming in every day.

Cassidy airport, nine miles south of Nanaimo, is buzzing all day long with QCA. bringing in three flights every hour.

Hundreds of pounds of freight and about 325 passengers arrive by air each day.

One Motorist Pays $50

Magistrate in Parksville Fines Two for Speeding

PARKSVILLE, Aug 26—William P. Porter of Nanaimo was fined $50 and costs for exceeding the 30-mile-per-hour speed limit on the highway last week

Appearing before Magistrate R C. Weld, he was also fined an additional $6 for failing to produce his driver's licence and was issued with a blue licence.

Also fined was John Hustlew of Courtenay, who was found guilty of traveling at more than 30 miles per hour within the Parksville limits. He was ordered to pay $25 and costs.

Prosecuting officer in both cases, Police Constable P H Hutchinson of Parksville.

Colwood Autumn Fair To Be Held September 8

Final arrangements have been made for the Colwood Autumn Fair, sponsored annually by the Colwood Community Club and the Colwood Women's Institute, to be held September 8.

The fair is open to all. A large number of entries is expected, and officials remind competitors that entries should be handed in to Mrs. B. W. Parker, RR 1, by September 8. They will also be taken at the hall on Thursday at 7 p.m. and again in the morning of the fair up to 11 o'clock

Those wishing to donate their entries to be auctioned during the evening may do so. All proceeds from the auction will go towards the work of the club and the Women's Institute

Prizes will be given to all winners There will be exhibitions in needlework, handicraft, garden products and home cooking There will also be a children's stall

Mrs. E. Sedola Dies in Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Aug 26—Mrs. Jean Sedola, 39, wife of Ernest Sedola, well-known taxi owner of Nanaimo, died suddenly Thursday.

Born in Winnipeg, Mrs. Sedola had lived in Nanaimo for 15 years. She was an ardent gardener and was also interested in sport fishing.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Evelyn, at home, two brothers in the East, and a sister, Mrs. Amil Tripard of Vancouver.

Requiem High Mass will be celebrated on Monday in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church with Msgr A. O. Baker officiating

Gibson Talks To Rotarians

QUALICUM BEACH, Aug 26.—Canada's labor problems are being capably handled by the new Labor Minister, Hon. Milton Gregg, J L. Gibson, M.P. for Comox-Alberni, told the Qualicum Beach Rotary Club.

Mr. Gibson paid tribute to the work of the late Humphrey Mitchell, former Labor Minister, who died in Ottawa recently.

He briefly reviewed the work of the Chalk River atomic plant, which he visited last year

Donors Sought At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS, Aug. 26 — Four hundred donors will be the aim when the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic holds a clinic Wednesday, September 13.

At present, Mrs. K. Bonde and her zone captains are completing a canvass of the district.

Any overlooked in the canvass are asked to get in touch with Red Cross executive members or Mrs Bonde if they wish to donate.

Chemainus Class Will Be Tested

CHEMAINUS, Aug 26—Twenty girls and 26 boys will take their swimming tests Wednesday at the beach at the foot of Maple Street.

Red Cross swimming instructor G. W. Anderson has made arrangements for the swimming class tests and for an examiner from Vancouver to award certificates to successful candidates on completion of the tests.

Refreshments will be served to the swimmers by Red Cross committee members.

Accident Victim Flown to Hospital

CAMPBELL RIVER, Aug 26—Suffering from a deep knee wound sustained while cutting logs with an axe, George Mitchell, 53, was flown to Lourdes Hospital Friday from Loughborough Inlet

Pilot of the B.C. Airlines plane which brought the injured man in was Robert Langdon

Few Tourists Cancel Plans

CAMPBELL RIVER, Aug 26—After five days of rail strike Campbell River residents report that little discomfort has been felt thus far

There have been few cancellations at hotel and tourists resorts. Visitors vacationing at the Island town plan to return home by way of Victoria and Port Angeles.

Local airline offices report that they are booked up two or three days in advance and Campbell River residents on the Mainland are having some difficulty returning home.

Reports say that Up-Island freight shipments have been somewhat curtailed, but most regular freighters made calls last week

Hundreds Visit New Theatre

NANAIMO, Aug 26—R.C.M.P. officers were required to control the traffic along the Island Highway near Wellington as hundreds of cars made their way to the opening of the new drive-in theatre.

Mayor Earle C. Westwood pulled the switch which started the film after he had expressed satisfaction that the owners had thus showed their confidence in the future of Nanaimo by the establishing of such a project.

Others who spoke briefly at the short opening ceremonies were John Louden of Wellington, Max Joiner of Famous Players, and Mel Gow local manager.

Pet Parade Highlight Of Fair Day

PORT ALBERNI, Aug 25—Pets and children—more than 1,000 of each—swarmed over the exhibition grounds here for the Alberni District Fall Fair's annual pet parade.

From toddlers to teen-agers the youngsters trotted out their dogs, cats, ponies, crows, squirrels and chipmunks. The pet parade was non-competitive but everybody received candy, ice cream or some other gift from the Fall Fair Association.

MODEL PLANE SHOW

The parade was a highlight of the fair's second day, which also saw judging of fruit, field and garden produce, flowers, photographs and model aircraft.

Model planes, from tiny eight-inch-wingspan jobs to husky 30-inchers, held the big crowd spellbound. Flying singly and in pairs, the models performed all the tricks of the full-sized counterparts, and cut a few aerial capers the big ones couldn't match

Brilliant sunshine drew large crowds to the grounds and the Exhibition Building was packed by 10 p.m. If the good weather holds today, it's expected total attendance for the three-day fair will top 11,000

Today is Farmers' Day, with livestock judging in the morning and a Parade of Champions this afternoon.

A two-hour gymkhana starts at 6 p.m. and will be followed by a monster fireworks display.

Many Entries Expected In Sports Day

CAMPBELL RIVER, Aug 26—A parade of children and their pets with prizes awarded for best entries will start off seventh annual loggers' sports planned by Campbell River Kinsmen for Labor Day

To be held at the local ball park the sports day will feature logbucking for both men and women with many Island entries expected.

In addition, other attractions will include contests of power-saw bucking, log rolling, tree climbing and ladies' nail driving.

Baikie Bros are offering special prizes for a novice log-rolling competition.

Throughout the day there will be midway attractions and refreshment stands at the park. Events will conclude with a dance in the school auditorium with the Country Club Orchestra playing the music.

Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

2 Years' research by LEADING UNIVERSITIES proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, has a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate

FURTHER PROOF FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN

Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.

The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay! . . . Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! . . . 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! . . . The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

Victoria Specialist Thinks Begonias Best of Flowers

By G. E. MORTIMORE

THE "begonia king" of Vancouver Island has abdicated because doctors ordered him out of the garden.

Donald H. Gurney, 864 Leslie Drive, retired English electrical engineer and former poultry man, has always been interested in gardening. Between wars he began to specialize in begonias, the lush semi-tropical blooms which are catching the fancy of more and more British Columbia gardeners.

Mr Gurney pioneered in raising begonias from seed here. Today he probably knows more about begonias than any man in Western Canada.

ALLERGIC TO SOIL

A few years ago he developed a skin irritation which grew worse and worse. Doctors diagnosed it as contact dermatitis, a form of allergy, allied to hay fever and asthma. Mr Gurney was allergic to something in his garden.

Medical men have not been able to pin the blame on begonias or anything else in particular. The closest they can get is to say the allergy seemes to be caused by something in the soil.

Nowadays Mr. Gurney dares not even pull a weed or transplant a seedling. To do so means days of misery.

Doctors have suggested a long sea voyage. Mr. Gurney will probably comply. He retired some time ago from commercial begonia raising, and now he has sold his house. Next month he will probably be on his way because Victoria, far famed as a health resort, seemes to be unhealthy for him.

TREASURE IN SEED

A reporter found Mr. Gurney reading in his low-ceilinged front room. He was a kindly, soft-spoken man with a pointed white beard.

He handled a large test tube three-quarters full of tiny brown grains, almost as fine as dust. It was choice begonia seed, he explained.

"If that was full it would weigh an ounce," he said. "That amount of seed would be worth $3,000."

"The catch is that there isn't a market for so much seed. It's probably enough to supply the continent."

Begonias, he said, draw their name from a French botanist called Begon. They are a big family, including many fibrous-rooted kinds as well as the tuberous-rooted varieties. Tuberous - rooted begonias grow in cool, moist, shady glens at higher altitudes in tropical Bolivia, Peru, Mexico, Central and Southern America.

Plant breeders started paying attention to begonias about 1864, 20 years after they had been introduced. In that year, cross-pollination began producing the beautiful named varieties.

EASY TO GROW

Although the exotic blooms and lush foliage of begonias scare off many flower lovers who think they look too delicate, they are "as easy to grow as geraniums," Mr. Gurney says. It is only growing from your own seed that is especially difficult.

Begonias bear separate male and female flowers on the same plant. The fully-double named varieties developed by plant breeders have no pollen in the big male flowers. The female flowers are always single, and they must be painstakingly pollinated by hand from another plant.

Seedlings from the named doubles don't "come true," so growing them from seed is full of surprises, Mr. Gurney says. You may get almost anything in form and color from pure white to deep red (but there are no blues).

Single varieties grow dependably from seed, but the doubles are generally grown from cuttings. Tens of thousands of specimens all over the world stem from one original plant of a named variety.

Good seed equal to the bulk of a grain of wheat would be enough to sow a two-foot-by-one flat so thickly that the grower could not handle more than one-quarter of the plants in it. Pricking out or transplanting the tiny seedlings demands skill and a steady hand.

EXILE from his garden will be the fate of D. H. Gurney, noted begonia expert who lives near Swan Lake. Mr. Gurney is moving away because he is allergic to the soil, and suffers a painful ailment as a result.

SPECIAL SOILS

Begonia seedlings need a sterilized soil, warmth, shade and constant moisture, preferably in a fine spray. The adult plants grow well outdoors when they are shaded, warm and damp. They are generally a failure indoors, because they dry out.

Described as "succulent herbs," begonia flowers will give off juice by cupfuls if squeesed.

Tubers have to be lifted before the frost and kept through the Winter in clean, warm sand.

Mr. Gurney first started to grow begonias from his own seed in 1940, when the war threatened to cut off the supply of imported tubers and seeds from Belgium, Holland and Britain. After several false starts he was successful.

He was an electrical engineer at Cowes on the Isle of Wight when he and his wife decided to come to Canada in 1907. They came to Victoria and set up in the hatchery business on land which Mr. Gurney acquired near Swan Lake.

BUILT OWN HOUSE

Over the years he built his unique Tudor-fronted house. "It just happened," Mr. Gurney smiles, waving toward the upstairs, where unexpected little passages opened around corners into unexpected little rooms.

A conservatory which is the focal point of the house contains the few begonias which remain of his once-large collection, the odd few orchids a climbing cucumber, a fig tree bearing fruit and many other plants. In another part of the house is a little aviary inhabited by about a dozen canaries.

The upstairs sitting-room has a big picture window opening on a garden containing many rare shrubs. Begonia growers sometimes become monomaniacs and look with disdain on every other form of vegetation. Mr. Gurney was never like that.

In his heyday of begonia growing, Mr. Gurney had visitors from all over the world, and he keeps their signatures in a visitors' book. The visitors still come down Leslie Drive, but they go on a little further down the street to the new Swan Lake Conservatory, where Hobbyist D. B. Howard keeps an octagonal greenhouse full of a rainbow assortment of blooms.

However, the new owners of Mr Gurney's house will probably have to open the door every now and then to friends from far away who come looking for Mr Gurney and his begonias.

A NUMBER of new issues are in process of preparation in sundry British colonies. First and foremost are the series of sets to be issued by the British West Indies to celebrate the opening of the new university college. There will be 18 sets in all, with only two low values to each set. The lower value will depict the arms of the college and the higher value will show a full-length portrait of Princess Alice, seated, and in her robes as chancellor of the college.

Both stamps will bear the Royal Cypher and the words "University College of the West Indies." A list of the colonies participating in this celebration and their value are as follows: Antigua, 3c brown and black, and 12c black and violet; Barbados, 3c brown and green, and 12c blue and sepia; British Guiana, 3c black and red, and 6c black and blue; British Honduras, 3c purple and brown, and 10c green and brown; Dominica, 3c green and purple, and 12c green and red; Granada, 3c black and red, and 6c black and olive; Jamaica, 1½d black and chocolate, and 6d grey black and purple; Leeward Islands, 3c orange and black, and 12c purple and rose; Montserrat, 3c black and purple, and 12c black and violet; St. Kitts-Nevis, 3c black and orange, and 12c green and rose; St. Lucia, 3c green and red, and 12c black and claret; St. Vincent, 3c green and red, and 12c black and claret; Trinidad, 3c green and brown, and 12c black and purple; Virgin Islands, 3c black and red brown, and 12c black and purple. All the above have now adopted the decimal currency with the exception of Jamaica.

In addition to these St. Kitts will issue a set of six stamps to commemorate the tercentenary of British settlement in Anguilla, the 1d, 1½d, 2½d, 3d, 6d and 1/- have been ordered overprinted in black "Anguilla Tercentenary 1650 - 1950." Grenada also announces a new definitive issue as follows: A central design which will embody the border of the 1851 Queen Victoria "Penny" issue with Chalon head, with a vignette portrait of King George, will be shown on the ½c black and brown, 1c black and green, 2c black and sepia, 3c black and scarlet, 4c black and orange, 5c black and violet, 6c black and olive, 7c black and pale blue and 12c black and purple.

A design showing the current Colony Badge and the Royal Cypher will be shown on the 25c black and brown, 50c black and light blue and $1.50 black and yellow. On the top value of $2.50, printed in slate blue and claret, will be found a design similar to the present 10 - stamp, but with the Imperial Cypher to be replaced with the Royal Cypher and the word "postage" deleted, will be used.

A three-value set of stamps will be issued to commemorate Queen Salote's 50th birthday on the Island of Tonga. Values will be 1d red, 5d purple and 1 - green. Designs will consist of three different portraits of Queen Salote.

The Deer With the Wooden Leg

PEOPLE who go up into the Canadian forest country see all kinds of amazing things, but nothing could be more surprising to the hunter than to see a fine Canadian deer with a stiff, wooden leg.

Canada's forests, and the animals that live there, are very valuable. It took Canadians a long time to understand how valuable they are, but today we try to take care of them and keep them from being destroyed. To do this Canada has game wardens and fire wardens whose job is to protect forests against fires and to prevent thoughtless hunters from killing too many animals.

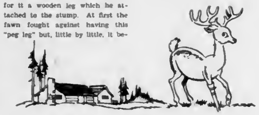
Far up in Northern Ontario a game warden lives all year round in a little log cabin. With him are his wife and little girl. One Spring day, three or four years ago, the warden's little girl found a tiny fawn, or baby deer, which had been born with only three legs. Its right front leg was just a stump. Unable to move about with its mother and the other little fawns, the young one had been abandoned. The warden carried it home, although he did not think it would live.

In the kitchen of the warden's cabin the little fawn rested in a bed of soft blankets, and was fed on evaporated milk until it could eat more solid foods such as vegetables and porridge. Gradually it became stronger and showed that it wanted to go out in the forest and play.

Having nursed the young deer back to health, the warden carved for it a wooden leg which he attached to the stump. At first the fawn fought against having this "peg leg" but, little by little, it became used to it and soon learned to walk and run about almost as well as the other deer. Every once in a while the warden added a little bit to the end of the "peg leg" as the deer's other legs grew longer.

Today the deer is fully grown and is as tame and friendly as a house cat. It stays for days around the cabin and every once in a while goes to the door to beg for a cookie or a piece of potato, but what it likes best is what is left of the oatmeal when the warden and his wife and daughter have had their breakfast.

Then after a visit, the deer is off again to the forest. The only worry the warden has is that some day a hunter will shoot the deer with the wooden leg, not knowing that it is a pet; or that the wolves will get it, for the deer cannot run and jump like a normal deer.



Clearing the Sea Beds

TWO naval wreck dispersal vessels, H.M.S. Lindisfarne and H.M.S. Trondra, are now working in the Bristol Channel disposing of wartime wrecks that are lying there. There are 500 wrecks around the shores of Britain and these are being disposed of at the rate of 100 a year. H.M.S. Lindisfarne has been on the job for some time and removes the wrecks with depth charges, and a B.B.C. reporter told listeners just how the job is done. Forty are laid round a wreck and exploded all together. This is called a "40 Blow." If the wreck is near inshore they can only give it a "12 Blow," so that windows of houses nearby are left intact. First the ship's motor cutter runs over the sunken ship's position with an echo sounder. This finds the depth of water and automatically makes a tracing of the sea bed where the wreck sticks up. The second step is to sow depth charges all round it and detonate them. The last operation is to run over the position again with an echo sounder, which should then show a clear and even sea bed with no traces of wreckage sticking up. The fourth stage, not strictly scheduled as naval procedure, is to scoop up the fish that have been stunned by the underwater explosion.

A small boat full of depth charges which looked like harmless 25-gallon oil drums, but were filled with 300 pounds of high explosive, pitched and rolled in the choppy sea. The charges knocked about most alarmingly, but were eventually lowered into place with a rubber-covered fuse attached to one of them. The explosion was "a double rumble like an earthquake, the sea split for 100 yards across the wreck, and a sheet of spray 200 feet high plumed up in the air." Later on the boat steamed to where the wreck had been. The sea was smooth as glass with little bits of wreckage floating on it.

Small Towns Have Their Parks

* * * * * *

B.C.'s Interior Communities Take Pride in Surroundings

By LES RIMES

WHILE Nature has endowed one province with beauty aplenty, small towns are adding to her handiwork with park beautification. Nearly all British Columbia towns, right down to the smallest, are park conscious knowing full-well that beauty and civic pride make for a happier town—and, incidentally, attract more tourist dollars.

Even Cawston, brand new town in the Similkameen Valley, has already started a park program which will include sport facilities, picnic tables, kiddies' playground. Thirty residents turned out for the first work party in June, bringing along their own bulldozers to clear the acreage. Since that time more work sessions have pushed the work ahead.

Okanagan Falls, another new town, has started on its park at the side of Skaha Lake, planning it as a memorial to Robert Christie, a local lad who was killed in active service. Board of Trade is keen to get the work going and is looking for a generous millionaire.

AT CULTUS LAKE

Chilliwack's Cultus Lake is so attractive that it has pulled plenty of Vancouverites away from their own much-boasted Stanley Park to spend week-ends at Cultus, 75 miles up the valley from Vancouver. The city of Chilliwack and the surrounding municipality got together to save for the public weal 630 acres of lake-shore parkland. Now the investment runs into hundreds of thousands, the buildings alone being valued at $200,000. It is an ambitious job, successfully undertaken, by 20,000 people.

There's riding, tennis, outdoor dancing, miniature golf, extensive picnic facilities and the lake. Chilliwack has found that every cent put into flowers, shrubbery and buildings has paid dividends, both in attracting tourists and in making for a happier community.

BY THE LAKE SHORE

Kelowna has a well-established park down by the lake shore, and the park and beach have been major considerations in the success of the regattas that attract thousands from all over the continent each year.

The immediate Kelowna area has eight parks, five of them being on the lake shore. Gyro maintains one park, Rotary another. Kelowna's pride and joy, however, is the City Park comprising 33 acres, at the foot of Bernard Street, a stone's throw from the city centre. It's a mecca for hundreds on Sundays and during the long Summer evenings.

There's a cricket pitch, ball park, bowling green, tennis courts, playground, and the Queen Elizabeth Rose Garden shows hundreds of varieties of blooms for garden lovers.

AT PENTICTON

Nearby Penticton also has its park down by the lake, and offers a mile-long bathing beach with gently shelving lake bottom, making it ideal for the young fry. Vernon, at the other end of the lake, stresses the beauty of Kalamalka Lake and accentuates its beautification program on its lake shore.

Nelson's Lakeside Park puts the city in the position of deserving a pat on the back for a job well done. The park and lake beach in the Kootenay country attracts hundreds. In fact, an excursion train comes over from Trail each Sunday and pulls into a siding near the park, letting out 500 to 700 smelter workers who loll and sleep and eat and play under the shade of the evergreens.

Trail, unfortunately, has limited park facilities, but the Gyro Club has built up a little oasis at "Sandy Island" where Trailites swim in the Summertime. The park now has bowling greens and miniature golf facilities as well as a good crop of shade trees.

ROCK GARDENS

Built on a hillside, Trail is keen on putting in rock gardens on hilly road allowances, and you can't walk more than a block or two without coming upon a small park beaming over with civic pride.

In the East Kootenay, the Gyro has been responsible for the large fresh-water pool at Cranbrook—the largest in Canada, they say. The town has done its bit to beautify the land around the pool. So that, it's a "must" if you're touring in that corner of the province.

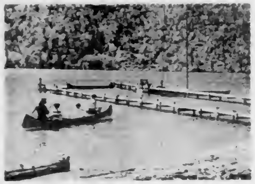
Up Kamloops way, the folks have their Riverside Park, and a lovely park it is, with its bathing beach, kid's pool, tennis courts, rose gardens, playground and checker board. Weather up in that area gets pretty hot, but Kamloopsians need or a few yards off the main street to enjoy the cool of the shade trees. There are two other small parks in the city.

It's an impossibility to mention them all. One could go on indefinitely.

DOING GOOD WORK

And because the bigger towns have come in for mention, that's not saying that the small towns aren't doing a dandy job, too, with their limited funds, in glamorizing their towns for the public. Like Rossland with its Esling Park, a fitting memorial to a beloved politician; Osoyoos with its lake beach; Abbotsford where the Lions Club cut down and cleared weather-blackened pilings where once a sawmill stood to beautify what was a rotting eyesore; Princeton with its Memorial Park just across the river from the town, and all the others.

KELOWNA is as justifiably proud of its city park as Victoria is of its Beacon Hill Park. Kelowna Park, on the lakeshore, is a mecca for hundreds on Sundays.



AT CULTUS LAKE, near Chilliwack, these four Vancouver girls canoe, swim, suntan and enjoy such facilities as riding, tennis, golf and dancing.

Plenty of hours of volunteer labor have gone into the planning and the work of laying out these park grounds. Perhaps those who have worked hardest in the small towns will pass on, unlisted among the great men of the day.

But their handiwork will live on. And all of British Columbia will benefit.

Sitting on the Fence

By Nathaniel Gubbins

TWO men in Britain die of worry diseases (heart arteries and stomach ulcers) for every one woman, according to the Registrar-General's 1948 survey of national health.

This may be because most men keep their troubles to themselves, whereas most women park theirs on others.

Or perhaps the Rev. Eric Bailey, bachelor vicar of St. John's Church, Upper Norwood, has found one of the reasons.

In his church magazine he wrote: "What a frightful sight a woman is made to look before retiring for the night. The hair is gathered up into a kind of net strapped under the chin and the face and neck are smeared with cream."

Although this is enough to give any sensitive man heart disease or stomach ulcers, any husband of the upper income group can save his life by sleeping in another room.

Those in lower income groups can save theirs by getting free sleeping pills from a sympathetic doctor.

* * *

What about protection for men in their waking hours?

During the day women still wear grease, though it is covered with powder and dabs of rouge, making them look like clowns.

They also wear clown's hats perched on what often looks like a purple or violet wig.

If you can believe everything you read, they are soon going to wear wooden shields to keep their tummies flat, black lipstick and black polish on their finger nails.

When this happens women will look so terrifying that the streets will be like a battlefield, with dying men stumbling forward, grabbing their hearts and stomachs.

Bishops will pray for peace and retired generals will write to the newspapers asking for the Home Guard to be called out.

* * *

As sleeping pills cannot be taken during the day without wrecking the export drive, dark glasses should be issued free to all British males over 16.

This would not only save thousands of lives, but would cost no more than £90,000,000—a mere trifle in the total cost of the National Health Scheme.

TRUNK-LOVE

A survey of the love life of African elephants has cost the taxpayer £225, according to a 1949-50 report on Colonial development.

If the Government had asked me first, anybody could have had the story for twopence with a cartoon by Giles thrown in.

As even animals are now influenced by American films this is what happens when a bull elephant meets a cow elephant:

Who are you whistlin at, smarty?

You, Super.

Didn't know there were any wolves around these parts.

There's plenty.

* * *

Fresh guy, ain't you?

Think so? I'm strong too. Care for a sapling?

I was just goin to pull one myself.

Here y'are. Right out of the ground. Want another?

What would I do with two saplings?

You can have all the saplings you want. How'd ya like somp'n big like a mahogany tree?

Don't go hurtin yourself, big boy.

There she comes. Roots an all. Now I'll get me a tiger, and you can have a fur coat. I'll get me two tigers, and you can have two fur coats.

My, my. I shall get a penthouse on Park Avenue next.

* * *

I could make a clearing in the forest for you. That's better'n any penthouse.

You're a swell guy, ain't you?

Care for a drink at the stream? Now the moon's comin up?

On the level?

Sure I'm on the level. I just wanna a drink.

I always liked a drink at the stream. When the moon's comin up.

O.K., then. Let's go.

WORLD STRATEGISTS

I've got the idea so far, old man. Russia is a giant right hand with its palm forming the Russian land mass, its thumb on Korea and its four fingers threatening points south, southwest and west. What points?

I thought it was obvious, old man. Her index finger is on Malaya, her middle finger is pointing at Persia, her third finger at Greece and her little finger at us.

What about America, old man?

Her little finger's pointing at America, too, old man.

Are you suggesting, old man, that Russia is going to fight us and America with her little finger?

Not at all, old man. You must remember that Russia is a two-handed giant.

* * *

You didn't mention it before, old man. But if she also places her left hand on the map of the world her fingers would be pointing towards the Arctic Circle, wouldn't they?

I'll tell you that when you tell me where her left palm would be, old man.

On Communist China, old man. Let me show you. Here is my right hand with my thumb on Korea and fingers fanning out south and west.

Mind my drink, old man.

That's all right, old man. And here is my left hand on China with my thumb pointing towards America.

* * *

What are you going to do now, old man?

When I have America, Great Britain, the Dominions, and the Western Allies committed to points threatened by my fingers and thumbs I bring my hands together and crush them. Like this, old man.

There goes my drink, old man.

I'm sorry, old man. My sleeve caught the glass.

It always happens when you play the fool in a bar, old man.

I'm not accustomed to be called a fool, old man.

Nobody called you a fool, old man.

In that case I must be getting deaf, old man.

Well, never mind, old man. Perhaps we'd better forget all about it.

Perhaps we had, old man. Good-night, old man.

Good-night, old man.

THIS WEEK'S COVER

Many a youngster will sigh with regret now that the happiest time of their lives, "vacation time," is over. In another week school doors will open after the two months' holidays. This week's cover shows a group of young people "homeward bound" from the Summer camp at Thetis Island.

Platter Chatter

CONCERT MUSIC

Walter Gieseking, whose only postwar attempt to play in the United States was frustrated by protests which had nothing to do with his piano-playing, is having his first American record release since 1941. It is of Beethoven's piano concerto No. 1, with the Philharmonia Orchestra of London under an anonymous conductor (Columbia; 12-inch LP).

Gieseking is among contemporaries one of the supreme masters of the piano. The record emphasizes the fact after his long absence from the American musical scene. From the record there comes, at you again the once familiar mastery of all pianistic things large and small.

CURIOUS ANONYMITY

Musically the return of Gieseking by the back door of a record gives only pleasure to those who cherish superlative piano-playing and Beethoven. The anonymity of the conductor is curious. English Columbia, which made the record, told American Columbia his "contractural relations" prohibited the use of his name on its label. However, there is no reason for him to take pride in his share of the collaboration. It is coarse and ragged.

A pleasing and recommended occupation for two-piano teams is reviving some of the vast and delightful literature for piano four hands. Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin have done as much for Schubert's Divertissement a la Hongroise (Columbia; 10-inch LP.). It is much more substantial and engaging, this music of gaiety and melody intended for four hands on one keyboard, than much of the music attenuated to make it playable by four hands on two keyboards. Vronsky and Babin should record next some of Mozart's pieces for four hands.

BOYD NEEL'S GRIEG

Boyd Neel's subtle ways with a string orchestra shine luminously in Grieg's Holberg Suite (London; 10-inch LP.). His sharpness and cleanness of line, his breadth and depth of dynamics are rarely enough encountered to make each new recorded example an event.—Delos Smith.

Old Homes and Families

By Jim Nesbitt

VICTORIA was filled with excitement that Summer of 1867.

"The Zealous must be quite a ship," the townspeople said to each other. "Well, we should have a good ship—this is an important station."

"The Admiral is a son of the Earl of Huntington," the prominent hostesses of the place said as they made plans to have yet another distinguished person at their dinner tables.

ADMIRAL ARRIVES

And so it was that in July of 1867 H.M.S. Zealous reached Esquimalt with Admiral the Hon. George Fowler Hastings as commander-in-chief of this station.

On her way here, Zealous visited San Francisco and made such an impression that The Colonist reprinted what one of the San Francisco dailies said: "The Zealous and the Fourth of July decorations—the grandest feature of the shipping yesterday was beyond all question the British iron-clad Zealous. Depending gracefully from her mast-heads might be seen banners and streamers and a vast variety of flags. In her holiday attire, this magnificent specimen of naval architecture looked splendidly. The compliment thus paid our countrymen by Her Majesty's tars was as delicate as it was grateful.

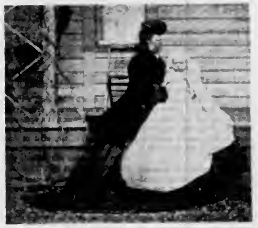
ADMIRAL AND MRS. HASTINGS with officers at "Maplebank."



MRS. HASTINGS and son, Walter

FINDING A HOME

Soon after the Zealous arrived, Mrs. Hastings and her children reached Victoria and took up residence at "Maplebank," on the shores of Esquimalt Harbor, opposite the dockyard. It was a fine home, roomy and dignified and the lawns terraced down to the water's edge. It had been built in the early 60's by Kenneth Mackenzie of Craigflower Farm. He knew the admirals would need a home and he hoped to sell it to the Admiralty. But Mackenzie soon lost it to the Hudson's Bay Company, which then leased it to the Admiralty.

The first admiral to live there was Hon. Joseph Denman. For a time Chief Justice Needham was in residence, followed by Hastings, then, among others, by Capt. Mist, C. W. R. Thompson of the original gas works and A. C. McCallum. About 40 years ago it burned to the ground.

A GAY SUMMER

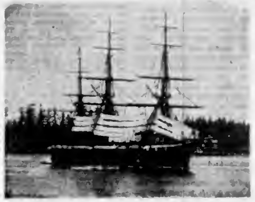
It was a gay Summer, the one of the Zealous arrival. Victorians went by the hundred to have a look at the ship. The sailors quickly made friends in the town and there was many an informal sing-song in the taverns of Esquimalt and Victoria. In those days the ships had concert parties—men who could sing, act and dance.

The Zealous was not here long before the first concert was given. The Colonist noted: "A few of the amateurs of H.M. ship Zealous entertained some of their friends and the citizens of Victoria at Scrammel's Music Hall, King's Head, Johnson Street, with glees, duets and songs, both comic and sentimental. The singing and comicalities of 'Phunny' Edwards were a rich treat, surpassing anything of the kind ever heard in Victoria."

PARTY ON BOARD

The first big party in the Zealous came six weeks after the ship's arrival. It was the talk of Victoria for days. The Colonist reported: "The naval theatrical entertainment on board H.M.S. Zealous on Wednesday under the patronage of Admiral Hastings, who was present with Mrs. Hastings, was given by amateurs belonging to the ship. Some five or six hundred persons were present as spectators. The pieces offered were 'The Idiot Witness' and 'Wandering Minstrel.' The acting in both pieces, taken as a whole, could hardly be improved upon by professionals. The dresses of the company and the scenery were equal, if not superior, to any yet presented to a Victoria audience. The band accompaniments, we think, were scarcely equal to the balance of the entertainment."

In the Autumn the Zealous and other ships of the station went cruising to California and South America waters. There was no drydock here in those days and each Spring Zealous went to San Francisco to the United States Navy drydock. Mrs. Hastings and her children lived on at "Maplebank," which was one of the most popular of the big homes of Victoria.



H.M.S. ZEALOUS . . . magnificent

POPULAR COUPLE

For two years Admiral and Mrs Hastings were among the town's most prominent residents. They participated in the Queen's birthday celebrations and no performance at the old opera house was quite complete without them in their box. The Admiral, in full dress uniform, lent splendor to dinners and dances at Cary Castle, the Governor's residence.

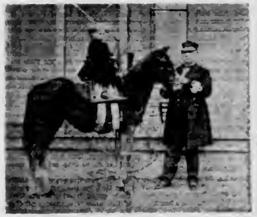
In April of 1869 came another party on board the Zealous, The Colonist saying: "Entertainment on board the Zealous—a large number of ladies and gentlemen guests of the officers of H.M. fleet on this station met on board the flagship Zealous, Captain Dawkins, yesterday afternoon and received a cordial welcome at the hands of their hosts. The noble ship was dressed in holiday attire and presented a picturesque appearance. Among the guests we observed Mrs. Seymour (the Governor being unavoidably absent), Admiral and Mrs. Hastings, the Chief Justice with Mrs. and Miss Needham, Hon. W. A. G. Young, Captain and Mrs. Delacomb and most of our leading officials and citizens with their families. At two and a half o'clock the company sat down to a sumptuous lunch. After lunch the guests repaired to the quarter deck where the enlivening strains of the Zealous band, under Herr Gunther, summoned the devotees of Terpsichore to the quarter, where dancing commenced and was maintained until an early hour in the evening."

LEAVES STATION

There was universal regret when the time came for the departure from the station of Admiral and Mrs. Hastings. He was a gruff, white bearded man, the typical British sailorman, jolly, stern, convivial, a very rock of Gibraltar sort of man. Mrs. Hastings was a gentle woman, a perfect hostess.

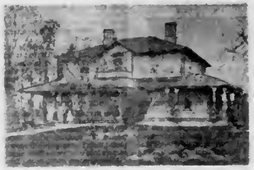
Admiral Hastings was born November 28, 1814, second son of Hans Francis, 11th Earl of Huntington. He entered the navy in 1828. After leaving Esquimalt he became commander-in-chief at the Nore and died in March of 1876. It was his name that was given to Hastings townsite, later Vancouver, and Hastings Street is named for him.

The Zealous continued on this station several years after Hastings' departure. The Colonist of November 30, 1871, said: "At noon today H.M. Ship Zealous will steam out of the harbor, in all probability never more to disturb these waters. Some at least of her officers, we may hope to see again, and even the genial Admiral (Farquhar) may return; but the ship herself, with her wooden walls and iron facing, will not likely enter our harbor again.



ADMIRAL HASTINGS, his son, Hans, mounted

"The brightest day sets in night and the best of friends must part. The large circle of friends created on a former visit has been greatly extended during this, and very many amongst us will look back with pleasurable recollections to happy hours spent on board the Zealous or in the company of her gallant officers on shore, hours which 'banish'd like dew-drops from the spray.' They are going away from us now, but these happy memories will remain a green spot in many a life, and when on public occasions we drink the toast of 'The Navy' the recollections of the Zealous and her admirals and officers will ever be uppermost. In the name and on behalf of them, one and all, a happy and brilliant career and speedy promotion."



"MAPLEBANK," the Admiral's house.

Electric Energy From Earth

NEW ZEALAND engineers are applying lessons learned from Italian geohtermal work to harness heat from underground steam.

The first strike in search for a new source of power for generation of electricity was made at Wairakei, in the northern island of New Zealand.

Government scientists and engineers are basing their work on experience gained in Italy, where more than 200,000 kilowatts of plant is established or projected in an area of about 75 square miles in Tuscany.

A huge increase during and since the last war in industrial and domestic demand for electricity is spurring the Government's present attempts to harness steam. The state-owned hydro-electric department is unable to install new equipment fast enough.

Violent explosions occured when steam was struck at some bores at Larderello, Italy, but experts here have no fears of any great danger at Wairakei. The flow of steam is diverted from the top of each bore from the drilling plant and drilling is continued even when the vent is blowing steam.

Scientists are measuring gravity variations to determine the location and depth of rock masses.

The search is for deep-rock-imprisoned steam reservoirs to ensure steady and adequate supplies of steam.

If enough steam can be tapped here, the Government may call Italian experts for consultation. When flows of reliable steam are found, many technical problems will have to be overcome before it can be put to work.

Corrosion which troubled the Italians may be even more serious with New Zealand natural steam. Special alloys may have to be developed for bore casings.

Experimental Farm Notes

Currants Freed From Fruit Fly

IT has been a pleasure to again harvest currants and gooseberries free from the maggot of the fruit-fly. For many years the culture of these fruits had to be abandoned because of the prevalence of these maggots. Thanks to DDT these crops can again be safely grown and should be given due prominence in the garden. One application of DDT while the bushes are in flower has given complete control. Just so that things will not be too easy for the gardener, mildew seems to be more common on both currants and gooseberries in recent years. Now is a good time to prune off affected tips and burn. Spray control measures have not been very effective during the past season in station plots where lime-sulphur and sulphur dust were used. Where mildew is a problem, it is suggested to get in touch with your experimental station or agricultural office for resistant varieties.

EARWIG CONTROL

Requests for control of earwigs are so numerous this year that it is obvious this pest is present in more than usual numbers. Here is the latest word from the entomologists in earwig control. Use either or both a bait and a 5 per cent DDT dust for effective control. The best baits are either S & P earwig bait, obtainable in Victoria, or else Noxal. In general, those baits with a fish oil base are preferred as they are more weather resistant in regard to rain and watering as carried out in the garden. Baits with a sweet base such as molasses are more readily dissipated by rain and therefore are more inclined to lose their attractiveness to the earwigs. The following formulae can be used to make up your own earwig baits:

Bait 1—Fish oil, 1 quart, bran, 12 pounds, sodium fluosilicate, 1 pound, or sodium fluoride, 1½ pounds.

Bait 2—Sodium fluoride, 1 pound molasses, 1 pint; bran, 5 pounds, sawdust, 15 pounds, water, 10 quarts (approximately).

Repeated applications of bait will likely be necessary on account of re-infestation from adjoining property. Effective control with baits call for their application commencing early in May, depending on the crop, and continuing in the end of August. No danger need be feared from poisoning chickens or domestic animals by the use of baits containing sodium fluoride or sodium fluosilicate if spread thinly and not left lying in lumps.

GROWING SEEDS

To the often-asked question, "Can I sow my own vegetable seed?"—the answer is yes and no. As a general rule it is far wiser to leave seed production in the hands of the experienced grower than to attempt to save seed from a few plants in the garden. In the main, the care which is given to insure high quality seed is difficult for the novice in duplicate. For example, it is very difficult to insure sufficient isolation of cross-pollinating sorts to prevent contamination in the average garden, if more than one variety is blooming at one time. Self-pollinating vegetables such as peas, beans and lettuce are less likely to intercross and in special cases seed may be saved providing certain precautions are taken. The tendency to save seed from that part of the crop which has not been gathered for consumption because of poorer edible quality should be avoided. Only seed from good type, vigorous plants can be expected to reproduce like progeny, and therefore discard weak or off-type plants, putting them on the compost heap rather than saving them for seed.

Battling Pests by Banding

THE home gardener can protect fruit trees and grapevines against climbing and crawling insects by the simple expedient of banding. The bands, coated with a sticky, tanglefoot substance, imprison the insects.

The bands should be applied in the early Fall in order to catch both the Fall and Spring worms. Different insects, however, make their appearance at different times in various localities. The Spring canker worm, for example, makes its appearance in the South as early as January. In the North the insect rarely appears before the middle of March.

Banding will aid in protecting fruit trees and grapevines against cutworms, canker worms, tussock moth caterpillars, hop flea beetles, Fuller rose weevils, brown mites and red spiders. When banding grapevines, do not forget to band the trellis posts as well as the main stalks of the vines.

There are two kinds of canker worms. The females of the Fall variety lay their eggs in October and November, and those of the Spring variety in March. All the little caterpillars of both varieties hatch in the Spring, in late April or early May. Banding traps the wingless female moth as she climbs up the tree to lay her eggs.

All gardeners are familiar with the cutworm which cuts off newly transplanted plants at the surface of the soil, but the climbing cutworm attacks the leaves of older plants, young fruit trees and grapevines.

The climbing cutworm works at night, hiding just below the surface of the soil during the day. The insect comes from the ground each Spring in a wingless condition. The adult moth is of medium size with wings that spread from an inch to an inch and a half.

Gardening Hints

Until September at least, roses should be cultivated regularly to destroy weeds and aerate the soil. The soil never should be allowed to bake and form a hard crust.

* * *

Cuttings of scented geraniums rooted now and potted will make sizable plants by Winter. Cuttings taken from inside plants root easier than those from plants growing in the open.

* * *

Rhubarb hills should be divided and reset every seven or eight years. Otherwise the plants become too thick and produce only slender stems.

TERMINATING THE GARDEN PATH

- END OF THE PATH -

Locating the house on a suburban lot of fair size always permits the development of axial lines to tie in with the floor plan of the house. Two trees bounding the property line might be made a focal center with a path leading to the garden and centered upon a rear terrace or porch.

Opportunities for interesting treatment always exist and the home builder should always consider the house in relation to the property. In the sketch indicated rough stone steps lead up to a small terrace and seat which is flanked by twin elm trees.

A little imagination can create lovely effect with small expense. It is possible to have a rustic arbor or summer house to accent the end of a vista flanked with suitable planting. This will give a year round effect and will repay the effort involved.

Bleeding Heart, an Old Favorite

By DEAN HALLIDAY

BLEEDING heart, the old favorite can be easily propagated in various ways. Some gardeners plant seeds, while others increase their supply by division of the crown or root cuttings. In the latter case, the roots are cut into three-inch pieces and planted in good loam in early Spring.

Cuttings can be taken in the early Spring or shortly after flowering when new shoots form in the shoulders of the leaves. When these shoots are about four inches long they can be cut, leaving a piece of the parent stem attached.

Cold frames are ideal for propagating bleeding heart during the Summer. When a cold frame is not available use a fruit jar, tumbler or an aquarium for a propagating case.

The larger type of bleeding heart, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is the old favorite known as "Spectabilis." It blooms in April-May. It is important to mark it, for after blooming the plant dies back to the ground.

A lower, bushy variety of bleeding heart, illustrated, is known as the fern leafed type. It is also called "Eximia," or fringed. It grows one foot high and its dainty pink flowers bloom throughout the Summer. It thrives in sun or partial shade, therefore, there is usually a place for it in any garden.

Both varieties of bleeding heart prefer a rich, moist soil, but the plants are not fussy and will do well in any fairly good garden soil.

A white-flowering variety of bleeding heart is found in some gardens but it does not have the sturdy qualities that have made favorites of the other varieties.

Winter Bouquets Provide Lovely Home Decorations

ENJOYMENT of beauty in surroundings is desired by all people. Homemakers possessing a heated greenhouse can be masters of the problem by providing table and living-room decorations even during the depth of Winter. The many who are unable to grow flowers in January, or to afford frequent purchases from their florist, may derive pleasure and considerable satisfaction from making long-time bouquets from flowers and plant parts which dry attractively, says W. R. Leslie, superintendent of the Experimental Station at Morden, Man.

The range of materials is wide and varied and the choice of inflorescences for drying range from the dozen common kinds of strawflowers or "everlastings" to cattails, bittersweet and pine cones. The cones of evergreen trees may be tinted with varnishes or left in the natural tawny hues.

A WIDE CHOICE

Among subjects employed for building Winter bouquets are gayfeather statice, mullein, milkweed, Chinese lanterns, barberries, mountain ash, echinops, eryngium, sorghum, prairie clover, okra pods, sumac, sagebrush, red popcorn ears, matrimony vine, honesty, sedums, celosia cockscomb, hydrangea, oak leaves, grasses, hazel husks, birch twigs, pine cone, willow galls, pussy-willow, yucca spears, cacti, sempervivums, moss, chunks of bark carrying lichens, roses, cotoneaster, buckthorns, seabuckthorns, hawthorns, wahoo or burningbush, winterberry pods, juniper, yarrow, and the very useful double-flowered baby's breath. The last-named may be dipped in brilliantly colored dyes where gaiety is sought. The large Bristol Fairy variety does not hold up in drying.

PREPARING FLOWERS

In preparing flowers for drying, the selected stalks are cut as the flowers have opened or are about to open. Older flowers may shed petals or tend to discolor. Drying in a dark or dimly-lit basement is often preferable to an upstairs room. Cattails are gathered as fully grown and before the little brown nutlets have any inclination to separate from one another. Some florists varnish the head.

There is very much scope for originality and artistry in building Winter bouquets. The container often enhances the floral effect by being unusual and naturalistic. A piece of white birch branch, a chunk of rough oak bark bent into an urn, a copper, pewter or clay vessel are a start in possibilities for receptacles.

Canadian Chicks in Pakistan

From far-away Pakistan some months ago a request came in for hatching eggs from no less a personage than the Governor-General himself. Arthur Brunton, a poultryman at Port Perry, Ont., filled the order—with very happy results.

During the recent visit to Canada of the Prime Minister of Pakistan, Liaquat Ali Khan, a presentation was made on behalf of the Governor-General, of a valuable ornate hand chased silver decanter and matching glasses to probably the most surprised hatchery operator in Canada. This was the Governor-General's way of expressing thanks for a gift of a few dozen hatching eggs, Mr. Brunton having declined to accept payment for the initial shipment.

It is reported that the Pakistan order was filled with hatching eggs from the New Hampshire and Barred Rock cross called Red Rock. This cross apparently gives a fowl of good table quality, but generally it is not given the same chance of survival as some of the lighter breeds, according to those who have traveled in Pakistan.

They say that the light breeds stand up better under the heat than do the heavier fowls, and that the lighter the bird the quicker evasive action they can take against the attacks of native dogs that roam the compounds. It is to be hoped that the Canadian chicks may be spared at least one of these hazards in their new Pakistan home.

Youbou: Vancouver Island's Model Mill Town

* * * * * *

Pride in Community Affairs Spurred High Achievements

By ELIZABETH WALSH

YOUBOU is distinguished by its name if for nothing else. For those who like to be correct it is pronounced YUBO! The managers of the pioneer Empire Lumber Company were Yount and Bolton, and in the course of time their property, formerly known as Cottonwood, was called Youbou, the first syllables of both names being used.

The first settlement at Youbou was affectionately termed "Yap Alley" and many families still live there. With the arrival of the railway in 1926, the first store was opened by Stanley Gordon, under the managership of Ernest Wright. At the same time, a school was started under Miss Redhead, the first schoolmistress, consisting of seven pupils. In 1930 the road connecting the "Foot" and the settlement at Youbou was completed.

Youbou is situated on the north shore of the 23-mile-long Lake Cowichan, halfway between the "Foot" and the head of the lake, 29 miles from Duncan. Cowichan is an Indian term meaning "warmed in the sun" and the settlement of Youbou with its exquisite distant view of Honeymoon Bay is certainly that. It is set in ideal surroundings, the lake at its doorstep and the hills encircling it. To anyone new to a Canadian mill town this is truly Canada.

FUTURE PLANS

The British Columbia Forest Products say it is the intention to make Youbou one of the finest communities in the lumbering industry, and to have seen it develop during the last ten years is indeed a tribute to this company. The street lighting along Woodland Drive and pavements are a great source of pride to this go-ahead community. They are proud of the village. The buildings are clustered around a garden of Western dogwoods, emblematic of British Columbia, flowering shrubs and arbutus trees. The large Youbou department store, formerly the Red and White store, has the latest in refrigeration and lighting, and has become a colorful meeting-place on Saturday mornings.

The Woodland Theatre, with a seating capacity of 300, shows two pictures a week. The doctor's office, equipped to take four stretcher cases, if necessary, modern bunkhouses, the company residence, the female residence, commonly known as the "Henhouse", the warehouse, cookhouse, the company office and a recently-opened shoe repair store, complete the business area.

WORKERS' HOMES

The extension of what is commonly known as Youbou, or the Townsite, the original property owned by the mill, is called Block 7. This was purchased from Chemainus Lumber Company and was divided into lots which have been bought by many workers. Attractive homes have been built here and improvements are constantly being made. One of the best known landmarks along Woodland Drive is Frog Rock, a 90-ton boulder resembling this animal. Children have painted in the eye and mouth that Nature forgot. When seeking direction the stranger will be told his destination is east or west of the Frog Rock.

The population of Youbou is approximately 1,500 persons. This number is almost entirely composed of the employees of the mill. It is an international community, practically every nationality being represented. There is a settlement of French-Canadians and many of the employees are Hindus and Chinese, some having been with the company for many years.

A HAPPY PLACE

It is a happy go-ahead community, and an excellent place to bring up a family. The children in this beautiful spot grow up healthy and strong and the schooling facilities are excellent. There are approximately 200 children attending the Yount elementary and kindergarten school. This has recently been enlarged to seven teaching rooms and an auditorium with equipment similar to most modern schools in Canada. The boys and girls of high school age attend the high school at the foot of the lake.

Most of the dwellings belong to the company. They are fully modern and rented at moderate figures to employees. Nearly all these homes have beautiful views of the lake and hills. The interiors are delightfully furnished in the very latest fashion. There is nothing backwoodsey about the people or their background.

THE BIG MILL

The sawmill on Cowichan Lake is one of the most up-to-date on the Pacific Coast. The craneway, which is the longest in the British Empire (one-half mile), is serviced by two traveling cranes. The craneway has a storage capacity of 20,000,000 board feet of lumber. The plant itself really consists of two mills, the big mill, which is operated by two shifts, day and night, and the small mill, or pony mill, which cuts small logs and runs one shift. About 600 men are employed. The two mills are operated by a 6,000-h.p. turbine electric engine. The modern powerhouse generates power for the mill, and also acts as a public utility for the townsite, supplying light and power to the houses and street lights. The hydrant line along Woodland Drive is provided with water from the mill, as in any other city or town, and there is also a good supply of drinking water from Whiles Creek, named in honor of Bill Whiles, the manager.

The Cowichan Prince, 17-ton New Westminster built tugboat, manoeuvres the enormous booms into the Mill Harbor. One is reminded that Captain Cook was British Columbia's first boom logger. In 1778 he laboriously snaked out a couple of tall, thinnish Douglas firs to replace the rotting masts of his weather beaten ship, the Resolution. He was forced to develop methods on the spot to solve his problems.

SAFETY PLANS

In this part of the world forest fires, or fires at the mill, are always a danger to life and security. Youbou has had several unpleasant and costly fires. The community and company have developed an up-to-date fighting unit. Last month saw the completion of the expansion of the Youbou Fire Hall. The ground floor was enlarged to house the ambulance, as well as the two fire trucks and the upper floor was added to provide instruction and training facilities and recreation quarters for the members of the Youbou Volunteer Fire Department. A fire alarm system was installed in 1948, which brought about a reduction in insurance premiums on residential property.

The water supply in Youbou is more than adequate. At all times the hydrant system is kept supplied with water by a service pump, which keeps a constant pressure of 125 pounds, but in the case of an emergency 1,000 gallons a minute can be pumped by two turbine driven pumps. In addition to this water supply a concrete dam holding 230,000 gallons has been constructed above Youbou conserving the waters of Whiles Creek.

COMMUNITY EFFORT

Youbou has one church, which is used in turn by all the religious organizations. The members of the women's organizations patronize each other's teas and bazaars, and considering the size of the community, an extremely large sum of money is contributed to charity each year.

One-half of 1 per cent of every employees' wages is contributed to a fund entitled The Youbou Welfare Association. Every year donations from this fund are given to the Canadian Red Cross, the Solarium for Crippled Children, the European Refugee Fund and many other worthy causes. A proportion is set aside as an emergency fund. In the past donations have been given to help build the community hall and to lay out the ball park, both of which were completed entirely by community effort.

SPORT FISHING

Lake Cowichan and Cowichan River have long been a haunt of fishermen. Visitors with hook and line come from all over the Island to fly fish for trout. Until the last year or two the hatchery at the foot of the lake was responsible for re-stocking many streams, lakes and rivers on Vancouver Island. There is plenty of wild life in the hills and mountains surrounding Cowichan Lake for those who wish to hunt. Many cougars have been shot in this vicinity, and stories of bear and elk are often told by the old-timers.

The Provincial Game Reserve has established what is known as the Shaw Creek Game Reserve, which provides a safe refuge for deer, the wapiti or Roosevelt elk, which species has become very scarce; blue grouse, marten, mink, racoon and black bear. During the cold weather last Winter deer came down to Youbou in search of food, and to warm themselves by the steam outlets. They were treated as pets, and even the most ardent gardeners forgave them for eating Brussels sprouts and leaves of the rarest plants.

From Office Desk to Dairy Farm

By E. M. CUPPAGE

WHEN she slams down the cover on her typewriter and bangs the office door every Friday afternoon, Mrs. Phyllis Sherman of Five Cedars Farm retires to a 16-acre paradise of her own creation on the Old West Saanich Road. Here, she forgets the clack of her machine amid lowing, sleek Jersey cows, the cluck of laying hens, and pee-peep of baby chicks.

"This is the life," she declares. "I love to open the door, let out the hens in the gorgeous early morning air, visit the barn and talk to my cows. I'm all pepped up to catch the first bus to town. There is a wonderful view of the mountains on the ride in and that's really something."

DREAM CAME TRUE

"For years I'd dreamed of a little farm on Vancouver Island," Mrs. Sherman confesses. Left a widow after the Great War she farmed in Saskatchewan, as well as holding down a job as police court stenographer in Saskatoon.

Now, her dream has come true for week-ends, holidays, and the evenings which are such a joy in country surroundings. Of course, there is supper to cook and many chores. But this is all part of the dream and never a burden.

When you ask who looks after the dairy herd and shipping gallons of milk daily, Mrs. Sherman points to Cornelius, a sturdy Hollander who knows just about all there is to know about cows.

He keeps the great white, modern barn and dairy spotless. There are facilities for electric machine milking, and ample water with two electric pumps. The cows enjoy an automatic drinking device. The low, rambling white cottage is flanked with flower beds and shaded by majestic cedars. Cherries are ripening in a sun bathed orchard. Beyond is a vista of snowy, cool Olympic mountain peaks.

BIG BAY HORSE

No other help is kept except Major, a big bay horse hefty in muscle, and obliging in disposition. But don't let him step on you, for terminating fine boned limbs are enormous feet. "He's a bit slow but that's O.K.," says Cornelius.

Major helps bring in the hay. "Good hay," Cornelius smiles, showing me why. He had cut it single-handed with a scythe. But it took all hands to get it into the barn.

Also in the menage is Fluffy, aristocratic white Persian pussy who accompanied his mistress from Saskatoon and has special rights. Two industrious Tabbies discourage verminous intruders. Baldy, a piebald pup makes up in exuberance what he lacks in pedigrees, by hurling himself upon everybody and everything and falling backwards on impact.

"Does dairying pay?" we ask.

"Sure," replies Mrs. Sherman, confidentially. "Provided you keep the right type of cow. And work, and work, and work—and like it."

New Wrinkles in News Writin'

* * * * * *

Methods Have Changed Since Pop Was Reporter

By G. E. MORTIMORE

GIANTS ten feet tall, speaking a language unknown to modern science, have been found living under Stone Age conditions in a remote valley of Vancouver Island, ruled by a king who is reported to practice black magic but who has never seen an automobile, a television set or a metal cooking pot. Dr. Carl Clifton, leader of an anthropological expedition, returned to Victoria yesterday with three specimens of the "forgotten people" in a cage and placed them on exhibition in Beacon Hill Park.

That's a longish paragraph to read through in one breath. Unhappily, it isn't true. It's just a fictional example of a kind of news writing which used to be popular.

In the old days, they say, the "lead" or first paragraph of a news story had to contain all the essential facts. That sometimes made it very long indeed.

GIANTS ten feet tall, in a cage . . .

A TIME SAVER

Older people tell me that the lead of an average newspaper story was so long that you could smoke two cigarettes, drain the coffee pot and burn the toast before you got to the end of it. And once you had got to the end of it, you didn't have to bother reading any further because the whole story was there in the first paragraph.

But things began to change. Readers had less time to spend. They might race through a massive paragraph about ten-foot giants. If it was about street lighting or garbage disposal, though, they might not get beyond the third line.

So leads became shorter. No longer were editors satisfied with this kind of thing:

"Victoria's street paving program announced at 4.10 p.m. yesterday by Angus McMuffin, superintendent of public works, calls for the hard-surfacing of 21 main thoroughfares, 190 side streets and 74 alleys before October 27 with a new mixture of tar, cement and molasses."

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

That wasn't good enough. It had to be whittled down, as follows:

"Victoria's streets will be paved with molasses this year.

"Public works superintendent Angus McMuffin announced yesterday that the sticky stuff will be mixed with tar and cement to surface 294 city streets."

That's the way it went. First the long lead of several sentences. Then the long one-sentence lead. Then the short sentence. At last the lead which wasn't a sentence at all:

"Giants on Vancouver Island?

"Dr. Carl Clifton, leader of a scientific party which returned to Victoria yesterday, says there are. And he has three men in a cage to prove it. They are ten feet tall. Dr. Clifton found them in a remote valley."

THE MODERN WAY

The one-phrase lead wasn't the end either. Presently some newspaper genius invented the one-word lead. At the same time the language became less formal:

"Molasses!

"If you think the stuff is only good for smearing on bread, brother, you're wrong.

"Works chief Angus McMuffin said today molasses, tar and cement will be mixed to pave city streets."

So much for short leads just now. Older people tell me there have been other changes in news writing as well. At one time reporters had no names.

"Panting for breath, a Daily Toot reporter stumbled into his office yesterday and told his astounded colleagues how he single-handedly fought off a pack of wild fongo-hounds which had torn six men and a boy into small shreds."

The story went on to list the names, addresses and ages of the six men and a boy, but nobody ever found out who the reporter was. He was supposed to stay in the background. Everything was strictly objective. No opinion. Nothing but facts.

"A ten-ton fragment of boffle crumbled and fell 91 feet from a fog-burning tower at Ace Fog Company's downtown yard at 3.11 p.m. yesterday, instantly killing two elderly Armenian women who were watching from a sidewalk. Dead are Mrs. Vladmitch Khatchaturian, 91 and Miss Hetimdalv Nairutabetahh, 104 . . ."

HOLD THAT POSE!!

FOUGHT OFF a pack of wild fongo-hounds . . .

THE BY-LINER

But as manners, morals and traditions decayed, the reporter came out of hiding. Not only was his name sometimes printed in large letters at the top, but he was allowed on occasion to tell an eye-witness story in the first person:

"By TED SLUDGE, Daily Toot staff reporter

"I watched in horror yesterday as a ten-ton chunk of boffle crumbled from a fog-burning tower yesterday and plunged 91 feet to crush and kill two elderly Armenian women. It was horrible . . ."

The newspaper business has come a long way, with the development of the one-word lead and the first-person story. But the road lies onward and upward.

THE FINAL STEP

The next logical step is the one-syllable lead, which might be combined with the first-person approach, as follows:

"I.

"Yes, I was the man who single-handedly fought off a pack of wild fongo-hounds which had torn six men and a boy into small shreds.

"In my encounter with the vicious beasts I was armed only with a knuckle-duster and a bottle of tomato ketchup . . ."

But let's do the job thoroughly. For a really short lead, the punctuation mark is hard to beat:

"!

"That was my reaction yesterday as I peered through the bars of a cage at three ten-foot giants captured in a remote Vancouver Island valley by Dr. Carl Clifton and his scientists . . ."

If anyone can write a shorter lead than that, he is wasting his talent in the newspaper business. He ought to be able to name his own salary as a condenser of articles for The Readers Digest.

"Hold That Position!"

By ALEX J. MORRISON

"SWING easy, keep your head steady and hold your position at the end of your swing." That is advice I give my pupils. Comparatively few follow this instruction because the habits of doing otherwise are quite strong. Also, few players see any point in doing so and even those who do try to hold the finish position seldom hold it long enough to properly examine it.

Thus one of the most valuable means of learning the real cause of swing errors is lost.

If you are slicing by cutting across the ball from outside in you'll find your body off balance at the finish of your swing, your arms will be out of proper plane, and there is a good chance that your left hand will be loose on the club.

TURN TOO FAR

Hooking or pulling will find your body turned too far to the left with your head turned even more. Your follow-through may have been checked by a locked right side with your weight remaining on your right leg.

But you will not see any of these things in their true light if you don't look in the right direction.

Posing for several seconds in whatever position you reach at the end of your swing simply is facing the truth about your positions and movements.

If you really want to know the truth about your swing then hold your finishing position while you count aloud to at least three. By then the excitement or confusion of your effort to strike the ball properly should be low enough to permit you to take a good inventory.

CHECK BALANCE

Check your body balance first, then your head position and finally your grip. Your weight should be mainly on your left leg, your right side loose. Your head should still be steady over the ball location and your left little fingers should be firm in their original position on the grip.

Then you'll be scoring better than ever before.

—Central Press Canadian

A SURE WAY to learn what goes on in your swing and to eliminate faults is had in holding the position in which you finish until you have taken inventory of essentials.

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS

IF you're a 'teen girl and think it's time that you were allowed to take charge of your own wardrobe, why not do it as fashion models do? It's efficient and it's fun.

No fashion show could run smoothly without some sort of chart made in advance to show the models clearly which hat, bag, gloves and shoes are to be worn with each outfit. The chart eliminates confusion and saves time. A similar chart will do as much for your wardrobe.

Begin the chart, or list, with these four basic divisions: Daytime clothes, sports clothes, date clothes and accessories. Under each division, list the type of garment (suit, skirt, jacket), the color, and the accessories for each complete outfit. Then under accessories, list all shoes, gloves, belts, blouses, sweaters, spring flowers or scarfs, hats and handbags.

When the list or chart is completely filled in, have a look at it. It will tell you a story that may surprise you. Perhaps it will show a co-ordinated wardrobe with no waste and no clothes or accessories that don't dovetail. . . . Or perhaps it will tell you that you have closet pruning to do, and it will also show you exactly where to do it.

Here's another reason for making a list of the clothes in your wardrobe. It will serve as a shopping guide, helping to show what you need most and with what it should harmonize or match.

The Haughty "Major" From Dartmoor

By
EX-SUPT. BOB FABIAN
Of Scotland Yard

* * * * * *

Slick Forger Out of Prison After a Four-Year Stretch Preyed on Members of Swank Clubs Until Scotland Yard Put Him Away for a Further 11 Years

DARTMOOR'S sullen gates opened in 1929 to release handsome Gilbert Carstairs, who walked out leaving four years of life behind.

He had paid his debt to society. Winter snowflakes made a halo in his dark hair. A touching sight . . .

It was not long before Gilbert was trying to touch my heart with a .38 revolver bullet!

And soon he was back in Dartmoor doing a further 11 years.

In his brief space of liberty Carstairs wrought more havoc in the West End than most men could achieve in a lifetime.

It began among the elegant clubs of Mayfair and St. James'.

Albert Greenacre (now retired to a farm in Norfolk) and I, young detectives fresh from exams, were given the job of investigating what at first appeared to be merely a series of daring petty thefts from these clubs and exclusive hotels.

Brief cases were stolen, locked leather document bags, overcoats with papers in the pockets, suitcases.

OPERATION PLAN

We soon found the method of theft. A smart military gentleman, rather short in temper, would walk into a club around lunchtime, disappear into the writing-room.

After an hour he re-emerged, frowning. "Look here, if Lord So-and-So does eventually arrive, tell him Major St. John waited an hour—and I'll be lunching at the Public Schools if he cares to join me."

Then, impatiently pointing: "My coat and brief case, please!"

As easy as that. Even when the unusually careful hall steward noticed the initials on the brief case were not "St. J.," the major merely bristled. "Eh—what? Oh, I see—must have left mine in the writing-room—cut off and fetch it for me, will you?"

FORGED CHEQUES

When the puzzled steward returned, empty-handed, Major St. John had departed. But he was not empty-handed. The brief case had gone, too.

Greenacre and I sent warnings round to all the clubs and West End hotels. Almost at once the thefts stopped.

We beamed at each other. "The primary object of an efficient police is the prevention of crime," I quoted. In came the C.I.D. inspector, glowering. "Hey, you two, what is the matter? Tired?" He waved a bundle of reports. "Look at these!

"Nearly every club in the West End has had its letter box robbed in the last two days! What've you done about it?"

We gulped, grabbed the reports. It was true. Since it was early January, most West End club members were busy paying their annual subscriptions, by cheque. Many of these letters, including cheques, were now stolen.

Within three or four days, the two series of thefts had skilfully merged. From the brief cases and suitcases, even from overcoat pockets, cheque books had been taken. Now, the cheques in the letter box thefts gave the crook all the specimen signatures he needed.

Across the austere counters of a dozen Mayfair and St. James' banks went a flurry of forged cheques. Signatures on ten-guinea club subscriptions were skilfully copied to a stolen cheque forms made out for sum ranging up to £500.

AS EX-CONVICTS

We spent hours, late into each night, inspecting them through microscope and magnifying glass, picking out points of similarity. These we then compared among the thousands of such cheques from other crimes, filed in the Forgery Library of New Scotland Yard Criminal Record Office, where samples of the workmanship of every convicted forger are tabulated under method and style.

At last . . . "It looks like the work of Harry Gristeller," I said.

So it was going to be easy, after all. We took the lift up to the Record Office.

"Got anything on Harry Gristeller, the forger?" I asked. The sergeant turned up his files.

"Plenty," he said. "D'you want to know where he's living now?"

We nodded briskly. The sergeant yawned. It was about 2 a.m. "Next train to Dartmoor," he said. "Harry's got two more years of a five-year stretch to do yet." Our faces fell.

"Where was his last address?" we asked.

"No fixed abode—a list of lodging-houses, all around the middle of Kentish Town."

Next morning, Albert and I reported to a certain department of the Yard, emerged wearing suits that looked new, rough and slightly uncomfortable. They were the sort of suits convicts get, at the end of long sentences, when their own clothes no longer fit.

For the idea in our minds was that Gristeller could not have done the forgery. Therefore he had been teamed up with a skilled forger who was still, apparently, at large—and who had now got himself an accomplice with real brains.

CHAT WAS A CLUE

We hoped to pick up the threads in Kentish Town. There was a certain fried fish shop where folk of the underworld drifted in and out with basins and tuppen-orths soaked in vinegar.

We slunk in, grateful for the greasy warmth of the shop. Nobody bothered us. I detected a knowing smile as somebody took in the significance of our garb. Just as an ex-soldier can spot a demob suit, so can an ex-convict tell a prison hand-out.

A woman came in, began a low-voiced conversation with the proprietor's wife. We couldn't hear much of it: ". . . "the Moor . . . just got home . . . says our Harry . . . T.B. . . . applying for a special visit . . ."

That evening we telephoned Dartmoor. Anybody named Harry recently removed to the sick-bay with tuberculosis, having relatives in Kentish Town?

"Yes," they reported after a pause. "Harry Gristeller!"

ON THE WATCH

We kept watch on Mrs. Gristeller. Greenacre ate six separate parcels of fish and chips as he leaned against the street corner observing her shabby house. We learned nothing.

One night as I sat in the fish shop Mrs. Gristeller came in. I nodded good evening. She smiled vaguely, gave her order.

Then a taxi stopped outside. A young woman, quite pretty and extravagantly smart, with a whiff of perfume that drowned the smell of chips, came. The taxi waited.

Mrs. Gristeller stiffened—sniffed challengingly. The girl raised her pert nose and gave her order. But she was uncomfortable. And when she had gone, and the taxi whirled away, Mrs. Gristeller said angrily: "Well—of all the blinkin' nerve!"

I grinned encouragingly. "Tricky bit of 'omework!" I said. Mrs. Gristeller's mouth went tight as a trap.

"Trash, she is!" she sniffed. "Butter wouldn't melt in 'er mouth when my Harry was spending his money on her. But as soon as he gets a lagging, she's off with another fellow—flying kites!" (Passing dud cheques).

FIRE IN A HOUSE

"Never mind," consoled the proprietress. "That kind doesn't get all the luck. She had a fire at her house last night."

"What time was that?" I asked. "I didn't hear any fire engines."

"Well, you must be tripe (deaf)!" snorted Mrs. Gristeller. "Fire engines—I heard 'em all right. Eight o'clock it was."

I swallowed my chips in decent haste and hurried to find Albert, told him what happened.

"Where does the girl live?" said Greenacre.

"We'll find that from the fire brigade call book. Eight o'clock last night—she had a fire at her house!"

The house was in a slightly better-class district. We couldn't watch it from the street corner. There were no empty buildings opposite. I rented a top front room from which I could keep observation on the house across the road.

A LONG WAIT

For nearly a week I sat at my dingy window. But the smartly-dressed girl did not show herself. Probably she was busy enjoying her wealth in West End hotels.

It seemed almost futile to continue my attic vigil. Better to seek her in the West End.

Yet, if I failed there, I wanted to be able to return to my attic lodging without arousing suspicion. I decided to get myself arrested.

It was raining that afternoon. I saw a car turn into the road, thought with a faint grin: "This'll be the squad car come to 'arrest' me!"

But it was a private-hire limousine. Out of it stepped the smartly-dressed girl I had been waiting a week to find! She paid the driver, waited until the car was out of sight, then walked down the street, knocked at the door opposite, and was quickly admitted.

Just as I was hurrying to the door to get a message to Greenacre, my landlady came hurrying up the stairs. "Quick, son," she said. "The 'tecs!"

UNDER ARREST

Very good of her, I thought. I slipped out the back way, was enthusiastically grabbed by one of the local C.I.D. men.

But meanwhile—the girl across the street! As soon as I was bundled in the squad car I had a call put through to headquarters to phone an urgent message to Greenacre.

It was not a moment too soon. Greenacre had barely reached the street before the girl left the house in a hurry. Albert stayed on her trail, saw her go into an hotel and leave an envelope for one Gilbert Carstairs, to be called for.

Washed, shaved, changed into clean shirt and suit, I joined Albert at the hotel. We sat in the lounge, waiting.

A quick phone call to the Yard's Record Office told us that Gilbert Carstairs was a convict on licence from Dartmoor who had failed to report to the police, but was otherwise unwanted. We got his description.

Clean-shaven, side-whiskers, aged 29, height 5 feet 11 inches, strong built. Tattoo-mark on left wrist.

That should be fairly easy. We waited. People came and went. Nobody answered the description.

Yet when a man with greying hair, bristly moustache, limping slightly, and with the arrogant bearing of an old-school army officer came in both Albert and I stiffened.

THE WANTED MAN

There was something about him . . . some response to an invisible tug in the brain—you don't learn it from books, any more than a coal miner, or a horseman, or a seafaring man learns the ways of his craft. We just knew he was our man.

He went to the reception desk. "May I see your railway timetable, please?"

We looked at each other, Albert and I. This was not according to the book. Nevertheless, we both nodded slowly, rose to our feet, walked over to him.

"Mr. Carstairs?" His eyes narrowed. "No—must be some mistake—my name's Marshall!"

"We are police officers. Can we see your left wrist?" He was wearing gauntlet gloves.

"Indeed, you may not!" And that, for us, clinched the certainty. This was Carstairs disguised. We arrested him, put him into a taxi for Vine Street. The three of us, all burly men, wedged in the seat with Carstairs in the middle. He tried to fumble for his hip pocket.

"Sit still," I said pleasantly. "It's hard enough to breathe without you fidgeting."

"I want my handkerchief, dammit!"

HE PULLED A GUN

"You'd still better wait until we reach Vine Street." I shall never know why I was so insistent. It certainly wasn't my way of dealing with arrested men.

He stalked sullenly into Vine Street, dark with anger. "I must complain against the overbearing manner of these officers!" he said stormily to the inspector on duty. "They won't even let me blow my nose. Now may I or may I not use my handkerchief?"

The inspector, busy writing the preliminary details in the charge book, didn't even look up. "Certainly," he said.

With a glance at me, icily malevolent, Gilbert Carstairs reached to his hip pocket for his handkerchief . . .

I saw a glint of dark steel. I jumped for his wrist. Desk, books, ink bottle, went flying, we were grappling on the floor—in a whirl of arms and threshing legs, thudding blows into each other.

HE SAID "THANKS"

I felt the comforting weight of Albert Greenacre join the fight, and in another moment the man's fingers had been wrenched open.

I held him pinned in a wrestling grip. Albert thoughtfully regarded the revolver.

"Neat little thing, isn't it?" he said.

The rest of the evidence was in Carstairs' pockets. Cheques, stolen and forged. We searched the house in Kentish Town. It was equipped with mapping pens, colored inks, more cheques, and a notebook of names and addresses of West End club members, with such details as "usual amounts drawn in cash," etc.

Carstairs pleaded guilty at the Old Bailey to 13 counts of larceny, forgery, and to possessing a firearm with intent to endanger life. Twenty-four other cases were taken into consideration.

He got 11 years, shrugged his shoulders. "Thank you," he said. "I had expected at least 15."

What amused me about the case was the letter at the Connaught Hotel—that urgent, vital message which Carstairs' girl friend had been so anxious should reach him. It said:

"The police have just arrested a man in the house opposite. So you'd better stay away from Kentish Town for a while."

Mr Carstairs certainly obliged. He stayed away for quite a while!

Next week: Fabian describes the case of the murdered hitch-hiker.

Planning To Build?

DEPTH OF JOIST IS IMPORTANT IN SOUND HOUSE CONSTRUCTION

Joists are planks that carry the weight of the floors and ceiling. They are the base to which the sub-flooring is applied. The usual spacing is 16 inches.

Strength and rigidity are the prime factors in choosing the type of joist to be used. This is even more important than the grade of material. Stiffness in a joist, which prevents bending or vibration, depends upon the actual depth of the joist. A lower-grade material with a greater depth will give a better floor than a higher-grade material with a lesser depth. Both would cost about the same.

The joist rests on the girder and should have a four-inch bearing at either end. As with the floor beam, the size of the joist depends upon its length and the species and grade of material used. A chart for judging spans may be found in the National Housing Act building standards.

When regular joists are cut to provide openings for stairs or chimneys, auxiliary joists are installed. These are called headers and are placed at right angles to joists that have been cut. Headers should be the same size as joists. Both headers and joists around openings are usually doubled regardless of the strength.

All joists should be stiffened with cross-bridging (Figure 2) usually one by three's nailed to form an X pattern between the joists. Bridging helps to stiffen the floor. Each piece is nailed by two or three nails at the top. The lower ends are not nailed until the sub-flooring is in place.

(This is the tenth in a series of articles written in the interest of readers who are contemplating building or buying a house.)

You and Your Car

* * * * * *

By FREDERICK C. RUSSELL

Experience demonstrates that the safest way to show up best on the highway is to show off the least.

TOO MUCH BRAKING

STOP stopping suddenly! That is the warning to every motorist who would safeguard himself by maintaining the security of his car's braking system.

So capable is the automobile in its ability to stop that most drivers feel they still have a great reserve of braking power to bank on even if they waste it. This is a dangerous delusion. Experience demonstrates that unwise use of the brakes soon depletes the reserve. Sudden stopping is wasteful in terms of gas and tires, not to mention the universal joints which are always shocked. Believe it or not, much overheating is due to sudden stopping, coolant being forced forward and out the overflow. But the most serious consequence of sudden stopping is warpage of the brake drums. Moreover, there is the chance that one of the brake pistons will be jammed.

USEFUL IN TESTING

How to test for a short circuit is simplicity itself. Just use the battery. To do this make sure that all of the car's electrical equipment is switched off and that the battery ground strap is connected. Now take the other terminal, disconnect it and then tap it against the battery post to which it would ordinarily be attached. If there is sparking you will know that there is a short in the electrical system and that current is flowing when no such flow should exist. Before testing, of course, make sure that the fuses are not burned out.

BOOKS

By W. T. GALT

Impatient readers who have been waiting 15 years for a look at T. E. Lawrence's "The Mint," will be at least partly rewarded by Christmas this year.

The book was completed by Lawrence before his sudden motorcycle death in 1935, but under the terms of his will was not to be published until 1950.

But publishers this year declared the book still too hot to handle until a prominent person is dead and unable to bring a libel action.

However, Clarke, Irwin announces that by Christmas it will bring out a Canadian edition of "The Essential T. E. Lawrence," in which will be included excerpts from the unpublished volume.

Besides the interesting excerpts, the book, edited by David Garnett, will contain many of Lawrence's unpublished letters, diaries and selections from "Seven Pillars of Wisdom."

Meanwhile, the same Canadian publishers announce that the Lawrence of Arabia Medal has been awarded to Lieut.-Col. F. Spencer Chapman, D.S.O., author of "The Jungle Is Neutral," published here in 1949.

Col. Chapman was visiting relatives in British Columbia when the World War broke out and he returned at once to Britain to join the army. Eventually he spent some years in the Malayan jungles organizing harassing raids upon the Japanese after the fall of Singapore.

For part of that time he served with the Chinese Communist guerrillas.

The book is an exciting record of the highest courage. It is considered to be the most important first hand document on the methods of the Communists among the Chinese and a blueprint on jungle warfare.

Publishers Clarke, Irwin report that it continues in steady demand.

In his Saturday Review of Literature column, Bennett Cerf reports on a pleasant reunion between Wallace Irwin, creator of Hashimura Togo, and P. G. Wodehouse, creator of Jeeves.

One of the subjects discussed, Cerf says, was the difficulty of finding a good servant in these troubled days.

One of the Autumn publishing highlights this year will be the reissue of John Marquand's "Haven's End," his first novel to deal with the New England social theme.

The book was first published in 1933, four years before "The Late George Apley," and sold only 2,300 copies. It is expected to sell considerably more than that this year.

Another Autumn book expected to hit the upper sales brackets is Mary and Lawrence Frank's "How to Help Your Child in School."

Other books expected before the end of the year include:

"Helena," by Evelyn Waugh, reportedly a novel based on the life of the daughter of Old King Cole and the heroine of many legends.

"Blandings's Way," by Eric Hodgins, another Sunday punch at the group that is still reeling under the impact of "The Hucksters."

"The Ladies, God Bless Them," by Helen Hokinson, a posthumous volume of drawings by the incomparable New Yorker cartoonist.

"Owen Glen," by Ben Ames Williams, about the nineties, when the United States was emerging as a world power. The novel is set in the Ohio coalfields where small-town life reflects the growing pains of a nation.

"Our Jungle Road to Tokio," by Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, General MacArthur's second in command, tells of the problems of the occupation in both Korea and Japan.

"Fifth Chinese Daughter," by Jade Snow Wong, is the autobiography of a young Chinese-American woman brought up in San Francisco's Chinatown.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

PIERRE BERTON

ARTICLES by at least two former Victorians are included in "A Maclean's Reader," a White Circle Pocket Edition of articles, stories and features from the Canadian magazine. Bruce Hutchison, whose humorous article "I Hate the Country," was selected, needs no introduction to Victoria readers. Pierre Berton, now an editor of the magazine, attended Oak Bay High School and founded the Victoria College publication The Microscope before leaving for wider journalistic fields. Other writers represented in the volume include Blair Fraser, Eve-Lis Wuorio, Jeff and Stuart Keate, and the irrepressible Eric Nicol.

Skillful Suspense Woven Into Unusual British Book

"Mr. Byculla," by Eric Linklater (Clarke, Irwin, $3).

This is a superior suspense novel that has its roots sunk firmly in the rich soil of good writing and characterization.

VIVID SCENE

After setting his mood with a vivid scene in a psychiatrist's office, Mr. Linklater turns his flair for the unusual to good account by introducing his chief characters in action and begins his sure weaving of the skein of horror that has the inevitability of true tragedy tempered by the uncertainty of how or who it will strike.

In the psychiatrist's office the faintly bizarre Mr. Byculla is recounting the grotesque nightmares that prompted his visit to Dr. Lessing in the first place.

As his character is more sharply defined, Mr. Byculla is presented again with Sir Simon Killaloe and Dr. Lessing's wife Claire in scenes tugged by a subtle undertow of tension.

SHARP EDGE

It would be unfair to dull the sharp edge of Mr. Linklater's inventiveness by outlining any more of the novel's material.

Set against a modern London background, the story gathers speed and fascination as the threads of the plot are gathered into a tight cord of suspense that is held firmly in the author's hand throughout the novel.—W.T.G.

Engaging Amateur Sleuth Seeks Out Rustic Slayer

"Keep Cool, Mr. Jones," by Timothy Fuller (McClelland & Stewart, $3).

Jupiter Jones had kept as neutral as Switzerland in the constant strifes of the studiedly rustic village of Saxon, but when he found four people locked in a deep freeze room his natural fascination for crime made him jettison his isolationism and jump into town affairs with a vengeance to get to the bottom of what looked like attempted murder.

Sure enough, a real murder turns up the next day, and Jupiter turns out to be a pretty engaging sleuth as he gets to know the inside life of the small Massachusetts village.

The author keeps his conversation witty and full of life; he trots his plot along at a brisk pace and keeps interest high all along.

Besides that, he does a good job of describing a small-town-near-a-big-city atmosphere and has written a book that would make pleasant reading even if there hadn't been a murder and a buried treasure.—W.T.G.

On Hudson's Bay, 1743

"James Isham's Observations on Hudson's Bay, 1743," edited and with an introduction by E. E. Rich. (Limited edition issued only to subscribers to the Hudson's Bay Record Society).

Isham's observations present a fascinating picture of how the wild fort of Churchill, of which he was factor, appeared to an everyday man who was not a specialist in any one field.

But Isham was an enthusiastic observer, and through his eyes the appearance, habits and traditions of the Indians is seen. There is an extremely extensive description of animal, bird and vegetable life around Hudson's Bay that must have been a genuine contribution to knowledge when it was written.

Mr. Rich's exhaustive and scholarly introduction presents an admirable history and background of the time studies and outlines the ceaseless attempts to find a Northwest passage and the many differences of opinion that flared up within the company, some of them including Isham who Rich calls "the model factor."

Through the pages of Isham's mis-spelt and rather garrulous observations there emerges something of the shrewd and sympathetic character who wrote them.—W.T.G.

The Odd Corner

In 1877 Robert J. Burdette wrote in his preface to "The Rise and Fall of the Mustache":

"Books have been published for the consolation of the distressed; for the guidance of the wandering; for the relief of the destitute; for the hope of the penitent; for uplifting the burdened soul above its sorrows and fears; for the general amelioration of the condition of all mankind; for the right against wrong; for the good against bad; for the truth. This book is published for two dollars per volume."

Balzac's Bohemian Life Ended One Century Ago

NEW YORK (AP) — Women and debts, and a lot of each . . . those are the most popular angles in the story of Honore de Balzac, the most Bohemian and, excepting possibly Stendhal, the greatest 19th century French novelist.

He died 100 years ago. Stefan Zweig, in his "Balzac," says death occurred 100 years ago, August 17, at 10.30 in the evening. The Encyclopaedia Britannica gives the same day, puts the hour at 11.30. Another reference work claims he died August 18 and three others say it was August 20.

AGREEMENT

But everyone agrees about the novelist's fantastic spendthrift ways. When he was only 26, he owed 15,000 francs; at 29, it was 100,000; at 37, it was 140,000. Like his contemporary Wagner, he spent years dodging the sheriff.

Once he rented three Paris apartments only one in his name, and two of them had secret stairways just in case. His creditors, by some fate, never clapped him into jail. It took his king to do that, for refusing to submit to Louis-Philippe's conscription laws and don the national guard uniform, he was imprisoned a week.

RASH VENTURES

Some debts were for love affairs, but always money poured down the sewer for rash publishing ventures, attempts to run print shops and magazines, investments in silver mines in Sardinia, in gardening, or one of those risks which dazzled his vast admiring public in Paris, Vienna, or the cities of Italy.

His well-to-do Bourgeois parents wanted him to study law. He stuck it as long as he could, then determined to write. They gave him a miserly allowance for two years with the understanding that if that didn't make him rich and famous, he'd quit. That was their understanding, not his, and he kept at it, soon making a comfortable living with the trashiest kind of potboiling.

FIFTY VOLUMES

He was more than 30 before he began to turn out the masterpieces . . . "Louis Lambert," "La Cousine Bette," or the vast "Human Comedy" in which we see a total of some 2,000 characters taken from private, political, provincial, Parisian, military and rural life and spread through nearly 50 volumes.

He was a man of prodigious, unbelievable energy, who could, and had to, work 10 and 15 hours at a stretch.

Plot Studies Motives For Suicide

"The Weeping and the Laughter," by Vera Caspery (McClelland & Stewart, 3.50).

Motives of people who make unsuccessful attempts at suicide are many and devious, and in the case of Miss Caspery's heroine not pretty at all.

HAS TROUBLES

Emily Awkwright, although beautiful, wealthy and famous as a fashion designer, undoubtedly has her troubles. She shares her home with a shiftless brother and his luxury-loving wife; supports her mother, who cloaks avarice with gentility, and competes with her business partner for the same man.

But this doesn't constitute sufficient grounds for suicide in the opinion of young Dr. Nat Volck, and in determining why Emily decided to end it all, he comes up with some pretty complicated psychological theories which will nonplus many readers.

PSYCHIATRY

However, those who like a dash of psychiatry in their love stories mixed in with philosophizing about the meaning of life, and those who can reconcile themselves to a rather unpleasant heroine, should find this book palatable.

Previous novels by Miss Caspery include "Bedelia" and "Laura."—M.D.G.

Novel Views Men at War

"Worlds Without Heroes," by Arthur C. Fields (McGraw-Hill, 3.50).

The forces that lead a soldier to commit cold-blooded murder after the battle is over are recited with some impact by Mr. Fields in this psychological study of men at war.

From the assortment of American soldiers advancing into Germany in the concluding stages of the World War, the author has described the philosophies in war and peace of many types.

COSTS LIVES

For example, there is the much-hated lieutenant whose "failure to admit mistakes costs the lives of hundreds of his own men. There is also the rough-talking hero with a heart of gold, the sensitive youth, the unemotional Chicago slum kid, and the average, normal American boy who ends up a murderer.

Unfortunately, Mr. Fields tries to tell too much about too many rather stereotyped people through their dialogue alone. And because his writing formula is rather rigid, he usually has only time to allow his various characters to bare their souls immediately before they are either killed or commit an act of bravery or cowardice.

In comparison with top-flight war novels of recent years, Mr. Fields' book can only be considered as rather good. Perhaps it is because the book is a late contribution to this field that the reader feels he has read all of this before.

The perplexing murder committed by the average American boy gives the book a belated punch, however.—M.D.G.

KEEPING Summer clothes in good condition need be no problem if you'll follow these tips.

White cotton gloves will remain neat longer if they're dipped in starch after rinsing. They'll also shed the dirt because of their smooth, glossier finish.

When pressing a skirt or blouse with a lot of pleats, the job is made easier if you take a few minutes to run a basting thread through the garment, before applying the iron.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Chef's Salad

(Serves 6)

- 6 leaves of lettuce
- ½ bunch watercress
- 1 bunch curly chicory
- ½ cup French dressing
- 1 cup celery, cut in strips
- 2 cups cooked ham, cut in strips
- 1 cup cooked chicken, slivered
- 1 cup carrot strips
- strips of cheese
- radish roses

Arrange lettuce in salad bowl. Break up remaining greens and toss with French dressing. Arrange in bowl. Top with alternate layers of celery, ham, chicken, carrots and cheese. Garnish with radishes and pass more dressing, if desired.

Use a soft cloth or a chamois for cleaning patent or calf shoes especially after applying a cream polish. This is easy to handle and will help keep the surface shiny and soft.

Large circular skirts which are a big ironing task can be made a smaller job if they are spread completely out on the line to dry. Remove them when almost dry and iron immediately. Folding them during dampening puts more wrinkles in them.

Fireside Musings

ANCHORS

In coastal waters there used to be—there still may be—buoys anchored for safety and navigation purposes. According to their location those who knew anything of seafare would recognize safety or danger zones. A sort of analogy with our traffic lights.

Traffic buoys for sea lanes swaying gently with the wash of the waves, yet firmly anchored!

A pretty and rhythmic conception! A worthy simile!

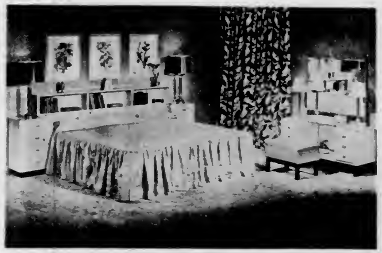
Swaying yet anchored. Does this conjure up any thoughts as to our own lives swaying and tossing in the tumult of things? Have we anchors? Sad indeed would be our plight if we had not.

Paramount there stands the beautiful anchorage of home which most of us can claim—and which secures by links stronger than any cable ever forged.

And from that safety zone there are many anchors for our use. If we attach ourselves to them we shall feel both greater security and courage.

Two invaluable anchors are work and self-respect, but prayer and loyalty are as firm and strong that they are something we can really hold on to in time of stress. The anchor of companionship is a comforting one at all times—yet there are still more supporting ones.

There is hope and faith and duty. Thoroughly dependable ones! But the anchor of God's love is the one on which to trust to keep up afloat on the boundless ocean of life's journeyings.



A PERFECT SELECTION for a small bedroom is this simply designed modern blonde wood furniture.

Furnishing a Small Bedroom

By BETTY LENAHAN

SMALL bedrooms, characteristic of the small homes being built today, can be given an air of greater spaciousness by following a few suggestions for planning the decorative scheme.

Paint the walls and woodwork the same light shade and finish. Or if papering the walls, select a wallpaper with a small pattern and paint the woodwork the background color of the paper.

Cover the floor with a solid color wall-to-wall carpeting.

Select only the pieces of furniture essential to comfort and convenience keeping in mind that simple design and light wood finishes will make the room look larger.

Do not clutter the room with too much pattern. Enough can be brought into the scheme, with the draperies or bedspreads, lamps, pictures or other decorative accessories.

NATURAL WOOD

The walls and woodwork of the small bedroom illustrated are a natural wood finish, and the floor is completely covered with a deep pile carpet in a lovely shade of turquoise. The bedspread is beige taffeta and the chintz draperies have an allover pattern in beige, maroon, turquoise and white. The three framed Audubon prints hung over the bed bring added pattern and color into the room.

The simple modern furniture is natural blonde wood, Karina, which is causing quite a stir in the decorative field. This new bedroom furniture combines the warm glowing tones of the exotic blonde wood with rich Cordovan finished bases.

The bed bar is composed of a three-compartment shelf and two night tables made to fit either roll-apart twin beds or a double bed.

The vanity has a glass centre section and shelf separating three-drawer units and is topped with a simple wall mirror.

Other pieces in this lovely new finish include a three-drawer and a six-drawer dresser, a five-drawer and a ten-drawer chest and a triple dresser, any one of which could also be used without overcrowding this small bedroom.

Chinchillas and Fleeces In New Tones for Teens

FABRIC and color are as much a part of the fashion picture for back to school in 1950 that many teenagers will find it easier than ever to make a Winter coat selection early this year. With color and size ranges more plentiful as the season opens, they should find just the coats to go over suits, separates and dresses to make their wardrobes complete.

Chinchilla, fleece and tweed are important because of the fashion interest in surface texture. In addition, they offer ways to create fabric contrasts (also a pet fashion theme) and so a girl will find hreself combining these nubby and shaggy surfaced coats with smooth flannels, corduroys and velveteens underneath.

EASY TO WEAR

Silhouettes are easy to wear with straight coats ranging in fullness from the type moderately flared—so that it hangs almost straight—to the fuller balmacaan. There are semi-fitted coats, too, and those with half belts in the back. Winter winds can't blow inside snug fitting shawl collars, those similar to the Peter Pan or squared-off types. Shoulders are smooth and some are narrow, while armholes are deep and sleeves roomy enough to go over suits with ease—the raglan is seen again and again. Double rows of buttons and pocket flap are details that teens are sure to like.

News is in the wider color range of such materials for they now come in warm Autumn leaf colors—orange, henna and gold. Fresh looking also are cocoa and jungle green.

HANDSOME NUBBY chinchilla is a favorite for the teenager's Winter coat this year. The back is gored in gentle fullness to balance the impression of narrowness in the front. Sloping shoulders and deep raglan sleeves that ensure good fit over suits and Winter woolens are added fashion assets that a girl should look for when she makes her selection. The snug-fitting shawl collar will keep her warm and a double row of buttons add interest to the front closing.

Separates For Fall

By MARIAN RAHL

Fashion proves that a girl is never too young to learn to co-ordinate her separates, and if she wears a size 7 to 14, she may begin assembling her own by choosing a few pieces for back-to-school wear.

There are blouses, skirts, jumpers and jackets done in these fabrics, and related in color so that a schoolgirl may learn about both, even at an early age. Blouses are in hardy nylon, easy-to-care-for cottons and wool jersey. Just like dad's shirt are those in white-on-white tone made with long sleeves and finished with French cuffs. This type shirt stood out at a Fall showing of clothes, for it made jumpers and skirts look just a little bit newer when teamed with them. Dark solid-colored blouses were shown with light plaid skirts, and just to be practical every girl should include at least one dark shirt in her wardrobe this year. Plaid shirts had showy white pique collars and dickies. A "bittersweet" or orangy blouse teamed with a grey flannel skirt couldn't be smarter.

SWING SKIRTS

Swing skirts will be worn again and they are cut on full circular lines. Others have all 'round pleats or a single deep pleat back and front. Solid colored woolen skirts take a tip from high fashion by having embroidered waistbands and hemlines. Wool jersey is pleated to stay that way and there are tartan plaids as well as lightly flecked tweeds. In addition to a variety of skirts many girls like to switch to a smooth fitting jumper, and one with flared or pleated skirt and fitted bodice can be quite an asset in a basic color. For example, one in navy could be worn with practically any blouse in the wardrobe—solid or plaid.

SEPARATES FOR MIXING and matching are a boon to the girl who wears size 7 to 14 and she is just as clever at co-ordinating such pieces as her older sisters. Here is a handsome scalloped all-wool jersey blouse with a corduroy skirt. The centre pleat and large cuffed patch pockets meet with every girl's approval. A classic lined jacket of matching corduroy completes the ensemble and, of course, it may be worn with other skirts in the wardrobe, too.

Columbia Summer Camp

By FRED McNEIL

ALL Summer long the sun-drenched shores of Thetis Island have been echoing to the care-free shouts of girls and boys at Camp Columbia. It all began as an idea in the head of Canon Michael Coleman, since appointed Anglican Bishop of Qu'Appelle. In 1947, the Diocese of British Columbia bought 80 acres of land on the island and one large house. Since then volunteer labor has turned it into a holiday camp for the church's children and young people.

During July and August, a steady stream of school-age youngsters shuttle across from points all over Vancouver Island to enjoy a holiday of fun and frolic mixed with training in leadership and the Christian way of life.

At other times older church groups meet for conferences.

This page is the result of a visit by a Daily Colonist photographer-reporter team when 11 and 12-year-old boys were having their turn at camp.

"WATER BALL" . . . competition is keen in the games which form a large part of each day's activities.

"CHOW" . . . when the dinner bell rings out the unwary visitor is likely to be trampled in the rush of hungry boys to the eating hall There is no trouble here getting junior to eat his porridge.

THE SWIMMIN' HOLE. After morning games the lads cool off in a sheltered, shallow, rock-bottom bay under the careful eyes of hut leaders, ready to blow a whistle when venturesome ones stray out too far.

THE CAMP'S MOTOR LAUNCH "THETIS", a sturdy converted lifeboat which brings supplies from Chemainus. Here everyone is aboard for a short cruise—in this case a photographer's ruse to get 30-odd boys in one spot long enough to snap a group picture.
